D86 board approves $47 million in bids

By Ken Knutson

kknutson@thehinsdalean.com

The Hinsdale High School District 86 Board of Education has awarded the second set of bids as part of the $145 million Future Ready Facilities project.

At its meeting Feb. 26, board members approved 24 bids totaling about $47 million in work at both Hinsdale Central and Hinsdale South high schools. The construction to improve both campuses was approved by voter referendum last spring.

In his remarks to board members, project director Marty Platten of Pepper Construction characterized the bidding period as successful.

"We had 96 bidders submit proposals for the 26 different bid packages that we had that are part of bid period two," he said.

Two of the bids submitted — for elevators at Central and for landscaping at both schools — were rejected for being unresponsive and will be rebid.

"Neither of those will impact our phase one schedule," Platten said.

Among the bids awarded were the following:

- $9.69 million for electrical work at Central and South
- $\bullet$  \$6.46 million for HVAC and temperature control work at both schools
- $2.79 million for masonry at both schools
- $\bullet$  \$2.75 million for site utilities
- $2.08 million for pool equipment and structural work at Central
- $2 million for structural steel and miscellaneous metal Funds available are about $1.55 million short, or 1.07 percent, of the estimated $145.5 million cost for the entire scope of work, board members were told. Platten said he believes that discrepancy will continue to shrink.

"We still have a little bit of work to do with the bids that have been incorporated for both bid periods one and two," Platten said. "We're going to continue to find value out of those, and we've targeted about $850,000 worth of voluntary alternates from those bid packages that we think we can work to decrease the budget from bid period two.

"If we're successful in doing that, which we think we can be, our revised delta becomes $700,000, which is less than half a percent of the overall referendum budget, which we think puts us in a very good position, based on where we're at with the project."

Board member Kevin Camden praised Pepper and architect Arcon for finding ways to trim costs and meet the target budget.

"You're doing exactly what the board told you to do, and I appreciate that," Camden said.

Board member Keith Chval remarked at the absence of any community opposition at the meeting, in contrast to the rancor that had surrounded the referendum.

"It's nice to see that the team has done such a nice job and that things have worked out well," Chval said.

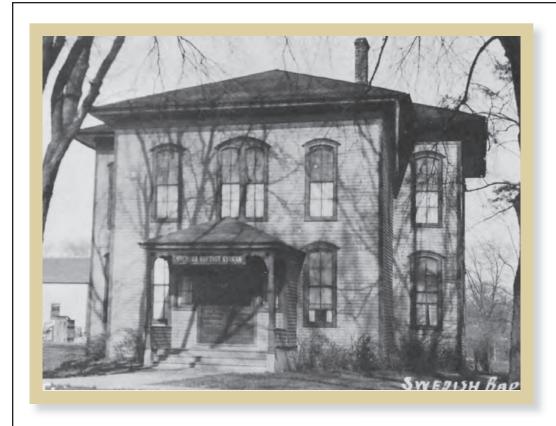

Phase one construction at Central is slated to begin this summer. Work will include building the new pool facility, relocating the buildings and grounds department, replacing the artificial turf surfaces and repairing the tennis courts.

It seems wherever you look this week crews are busy trimming trees across the village. This crew from Asplundh is working for ComEd on Hickory Street clearing branches from nearby power lines. Meanwhile the village public works department along with Nels Johnson are pruning parkway trees. The trees typically are pruned once every five years to maintain their structure, enhance vigor and maintain safe conditions for motorists and pedestrians. (Jim Slonoff photo)

Multi-use building — The building built at 11 N. Lincoln St. was built by O.J. Stough in 1872. The first floor was a school and the second was a meeting hall. According to Sandy Williams' book, "Images of America - Hinsdale" Stough's Hall was the social and civic center of Hinsdale until the Hinsdale Club on First Street was built. This photo was taken in 1904 when the building was purchased by the Swedish Baptist Church.

New HMS gym offers more than good looks

Inviting space with fitness mezzanine gives teachers room to keep all students moving

By Pamela Lannom

plannom@thehinsdalean.com

Walk into the Hinsdale Middle School gym and it's hard to know where to look.

The striking blue Spartan logo painted on the west wall. Abundant natural light filtering in from the windows. Fitness equipment lined up along the railing of the fitness mezzanine.

And a gleaming wood floor that looks like it wouldn't be out of place at an NBA stadium.

It actually wouldn't be, said Mike Duggan, facilities director for Community Consolidated District 181. When the new school was being built, plans called for a maple floor of medium-high grade, with some visible knots.

"There was a complete shortage of it at the time, so the company that supplied it was able to give us the clear floor for the price of what they had bid, which is the second grade," Duggan explained. "It turns out the grade we got is the grade for NBA stadiums."

The wood floor looks even more beautiful thanks to the artistic eye of Maria Grilla, a parent who volunteered her time to work on the design team.

"She was a major part of getting that designed the way she did, and I think it turned out fantastic," Duggan said.

Grilla designed not only the new logo, but the color scheme that would be used to stain the floor.

"I loved seeing that come together," she told The Hinsdalean last September. "I had to learn about basketball and other sports I didn't really know anything about."

The new gym, with its 14,000-square-foot floor, isn't that much bigger than the third-floor gym at the old HMS. But it certainly appears to be, Duggan said.

Gym teacher Dan Powers agrees.

"I hate to be generic, but look at it," he said Monday. "It's light. It's spacious. It's inviting. It's just a welcoming space.

"The neat thing is when we

Sixth-graders in Tim Klayum's third-period PE class spent time in the fitness mezzanine Tuesday while their peers in Dan Powers' and Melissa Livanos' classes played pickle-host opposing schools, when they come in here for the first time and their jaws drop," he added. "You don't realize how fortunate you are to have this space until you go see some other schools in the area and you see the space they have."

Sixth-graders are currently in the middle of a three-week pickleball unit. The fitness mezzanine allows one of the third-period gym classes to meet there for a week while the other two groups learn and play the sport. Then they the fitness equipment this week.

"We love it — absolutely love it," he said of the space, which includes treadmills, elliptical machines, stationary bikes, rowers and a rig system with monkey bars and TRX suspension training

Adaptive PE classes use the fitness mezzanine every day, Klayum added.

The new gym helps the teachers meet the goal of PE class, Powers said.

"We want to give these kids the opportunity to move, move for that 30 or 35 min-ball on the main floor. The space is large enough to keep three classes — or about 100 students — active. (Jim Slonoff photos) utes," he said. "We know as adults when we're sitting for an hour, two hours, your mind starts to wander."

After teaching in the new space for a full school year, Powers said badminton has been his favorite unit.

"It's the only unit in which we can fit 90 kids all down here together," he said, noting that students from different classes played against one another. "That was neat. It doesn't happen often that we can get all three classes all on the main level all competing against each other."

The PE curriculum will change even more once students have access to outdoor space.

"That is going to create a whole new dynamic when this parking structure is finished and they turn this current parking lot back to a field," Powers said. "We almost forget what it's like to be outside and do flag football and ultimate Frisbee."

Board President Nancy Pollak read the following statement following a closed session on the matter: "We are aware of an incident at Hinsdale South involving a member of our staff, Lisa Fernandez, who exercised poor judgment by using a racial slur when trying to engage students in a discussion about Black History Month. We take these matters very seriously, and immediately launched an investigation into this situation that was led by our human resources department. The 1893 home at 244 E. First St. was torn down yesterday morning to make way for a new residence, and 716 S. Oak St. and 419 S. Oak St. are poised for demolition. Hinsdale officials are now looking at ways to preserve its historic homes. "The village would truly lose something when we tear down those homes," Village President Tom Cauley said. (Jim Slonoff photos)

Village mulls demolition ban for homes

Officials are alarmed as a number of historic properties fall to, face the wrecking ball

Bv Ken Knutson

kknutson@thehinsdalean.com

In an effort to stem the teardown tide of historic homes in the village, officials are exploring ways to promote preservation.

At Tuesday night's village board meeting, trustees discussed measures including a moratorium on demolitions after Village President Tom Cauley said 716 S. and 419 S. Oak St. were poised to be razed. Both sit in the National Register's Robbins Park Historic District in southeast Hinsdale.

Cauley told trustees that the village's historic preservation commissioners have expressed frustration at not being able to prevent such demolitions under the current zoning code.

"I just think we could do much, much more than we're doing to protect these homes," Cauley said.

To underscore the situation, yesterday, a 127-year-old home at 244 E. First St. was torn down after its landmark status had been lifted. Cauley proposed putting a six-month moratorium on demolitions, pending a public hearing before the village's plan commission. During that period, officials would develop zoning modifications aimed at preservation.

"It would be to hit the pause button while we figure out if there's something different we can do," he said. "I do think we should have some structure, some impediment, some roadblock, before you can take down a classic home like (these)."

The scope of such a moratorium also needs to be defined. Trustee Jerry Hughes said vintage charm is scattered all around town.

"I can think of lots of homes outside of the historic district that if we were to lose, we'd get the same kind of reaction," he said.

Regulations in other communities will also be researched. In Wilmette, a home-rule community, officials said the village board ultimately determines whether a demolition permit can be issued. Village manager Kathleen Gargano, who previously worked in Wilmette, said the scrutiny even extends to proposed residential alterations

"If certain things didn't fit, then they were denied," Gargano remarked.

Historic preservation Commissioner Jim Prisby lamented to trustees about the advisory commission's lack of "Our group really has no enforcement capability. We make our rulings, and it really doesn't go to anyone," he said.

Fellow Commissioner Alexis Braden said efforts have been made to be more proactive.

"We are encouraging homeowners to present their plans to us early on so we can help work with the homeowner and the architect on what the streetscape currently looks like and incorporating historical elements," she said.

Trustee Scott Banke said the village should also consider incentivizing preservation by reducing village fees for those who want to rehab instead of rebuild, or, at least for keeping the facade of the home intact.

"I think that goes a long way to maintaining the character within the neighborhood," Banke said.

The permit applications for the two Oak Street homes were on the agenda for last night's historic preservation commission meeting, after The Hinsdalean went to press. Braden and Prisby were asked about the viability of persuading those applicants to reconsider in exchange for zoning relief from the village.

"If there's anything we can do to keep them, or keep the facade, please explore that with them," Cauley said.

Prisby indicated it may be too late.

"In terms of these two houses, I'm not sure what we can do," he responded.

The village board is expected to refer a moratorium ordinance to the plan commission once it has been prepared by staff.

Cauley suggested time is of the essence.

"When all these homes are gone, they're gone," he said. "I don't want (people) to look back at this administration as somehow being asleep at the switch when this happened."

Staffer devotes four decades to village

When Jim Piontowski started his new job with the village of Hinsdale, Jimmy Carter was president. Sports fans were discovering a new source of sports information called ESPN, and Americans had yet to fall in love with Pac Man.

A lot has changed in and around Hinsdale since January 21, 1980. But one constant is Piontowski, who for 40 years has enjoyed his job as building maintenance supervisor for the village he considers home. Although he now lives in nearby Darien with his wife, Nanette, Piontowski grew up in the village, having moved here with his parents in 1971.

Freshly out of college, Piontowski was engrossed in an episode of "Gilligan's Island" when his mother told him about an ad she had seen for maintenance help at the village. He applied, took a test to assess his knowledge of all things maintenance related, and returned home, confident that his job search would continue.

"I had little hope that I would get the job," he said. "Two days later I got a call from the powers that be here at village hall."

He reported for his first day of work that very same day.

Then and now, Piontowski's job is to oversee maintenance of all of the village's public buildings. That includes Memorial Hall, which dates back to 1928, the police and fire departments, the youth center, the Public Works garage, the buildings at Katherine Legge Memorial Park, the park buildings and the Hinsdale pool.

"It's comprised of a lot of properties," he said, some old and some new, and each with a unique heating and cooling system that he needs to know inside and out.

About five years into his job, Piontowski's supervisor, building engineer Merle Eubanks, left the village, leaving Piontowski in charge. It was on Piontowski's first day at the helm that a tank in the boiler room at Memorial Hall sprung a leak, sending water into the board room below.

"The room was flooding," Piontowski recalls.

There have been small emergencies over the years, but perhaps the biggest disaster of Piontowski's tenure didn't happen in one of his buildings. When the Illinois Bell switching station was damaged by a fire on Mother's Day in 1988, leaving more than 40,000 customers without phone service, Piontowski was stationed at a Hinsdale intersection. Armed with a two-way radio, he was there to relay messages in case of emergency, as people from miles around had no means of contacting the fire or police departments.

Thanks in part to diligent maintenance and a job well done, disasters have been few in Piontowski's four decades on the job. But should a pipe break in the middle of the night or a door to a public building be left unlocked, it's likely he's who will be called to resolve the problem.

The fact that no two days are the same keeps things interesting.

"I like the fact that I'm always moving around and there's always some sort of challenge," he said.

Piontowski's job is one that is never done. And he likes it that way.

"We've had 25 successful years in the Hinsdale community and look forward to another 25 more."

The long awaited and anticipated Jaguar Land Rover dealership in Hinsdale held their official grand opening on February 21st. Over 180 guests attended the event.

Construction on the facility began in early 2018. "We are so proud to open our all-new, state-of-the-art facility. It's truly a spectacular dealership and we're excited to share it with all of our customers and the residents of the local community.

We encourage everyone in the area to stop by for a visit and a tour", said Kevin Jacobs, a representative of the ownership group.

The dealership is the largest sales tax generator in the Village of Hinsdale and employs 65 people. The new building is located next to their previous dealership on Ogden Ave - the former site of the GM training facility. Jaguar Land Rover Hinsdale is at 336 E. Ogden - jlrhinsdale.com.

Celebrate Women's History Month, Hinsdale-style

"From the first settlers who came to our shores, from the first American Indian families who befriended them, men and women have worked together to build this nation. Too often the women were unsung and sometimes their contribution went unnoticed. But the achievements, leadership, courage, strength and love of the women who built American was as vital as that of the men whose name we know so well."

— President Jimmy Carter

With those words, our nation's 39th president designated March 2-8, 1980, as National Women's History Week. Seven years later, Congress passed a law designating March Women's History Month.

We continue to celebrate the contributions of women each March. The 2020 theme — selected by the National Women's History Alliance — is "Valiant Women of the Vote."

The work of suffragettes is certainly something to celebrate, but we'd like to focus on something a little more local this month, namely women who have been part of Hinsdale's history — or are busy making it.

This list is by no means exhaustive. We're limited not only by space constraints but by a lack of documentation of many women's accomplishments. Nevertheless, we hope it inspires readers to learn more about the women who helped shape Hinsdale's history and those who continue to bring credit to this town.

- Loie Fuller, an actress and dancer in the late 19th and early 20th centuries who was a pioneer of modern dance and theatrical lighting techniques
- Mrs. John Burton, first president of the Woman's Club in Hinsdale

- Nelle Schmidt, who organized the Hinsdale Red Cross Society in June 1916
- early members of the American Legion Auxiliary, established in 1923, who collected donations from Hinsdale residents to fund the construction of Memorial Hall as a home for village offices and a monument to service members who made the ultimate sacrifice
- Katherine Legge, whose devotion to her husband, Alexander, and employees of International Harvester inspired him in 1927 to donate the land on County Line Road that now bears her name
- Virginia Kettering, who in 1958 with husband Eugene co-founded the Hinsdale Health Museum, predecessor to the Robert Crown Center for Health Education
- Ly Hotchkin, who in 1961 became the first executive director of The Community House, an agency she went on to lead for more than three

Music the universal language — just turn on TV

We all have those songs that transport us back to a particular moment in time.

Play Michael Jackson's "The Way You Make Me Feel" and I'm on the dance floor at the Hippodrome in London on one of the final days of a college short-term trip in January 1988. A few lines of "Some Enchanted Evening" and I'm back at James Hart Junior High School, watching the eighth-graders perform "South Pacific" and my closest friend's heartbreak (long story). And when Barack danced with Michelle to Etta James' "At Last" at his first inauguration ball, I was at my wedding reception, enjoying the first dance with my husband.

I think that must be some of the appeal of "Zoey's Extraordinary Playlist," a new hour-long program on NBC.

My own life has had a soundtrack over the past couple of months, with a different tune from the Community Revue running through my head every day.

Some days it's "Be Our Guest" from "Beauty and the Beast." Other days it's the '60s vibe of Carol King's "Some Kind of Wonderful" (transformed into "Hinsdolopy").

Sometimes it's a song I'm not even in, like "Green (Greased)

"Green (Greased)
Lightning" or "Mr. Chanceman
(Sandman)."

Zoey's playlist works the opposite way. She hears, as she explains it to her father, "people's innermost thoughts as big musical numbers." That conversation leads to one of the most touching moments of the pilot. Typically nonresponsive due to a neurological disorder, her dad responds to her plea for help by serenading her with "True Colors."

I loved the show from the first notes of "Angel of the Morning," which opens the first scene, to the closing confession of her best friend in "I Think I Love You."

Musicals have been making a comeback for some time now — in live TV versions, in series on the small screen, in Hollywood blockbusters and on the live stage. In 2016, Broadway saw the premiere of more new original musicals than it had since 1978-

Why is it that music appeals to us this way?

Zoey's neighbor, Mo, has the answer.

"Songs are all just an expression of our deepest wants and desires — joy, pain, heartbreak, yearning, forgiveness, revenge. Good music can make you feel things you can't express in words," she tells Zoey.

Lesley Wake Webster, the creator of "Perfect Harmony," an NBC show that premiered this fall starring "West Wing" favorite Bradley Whitford, offers another explanation.

<sup>a</sup>People who are from very different backgrounds and different worlds can all have a shared experience of liking a song," she told New York Times writer Alexis Soloski.

Actress Jane Levy — Zoey herself — says during musical numbers she feels the molecules in the air change.

"It's just a little more joyful, a little bit more connected," she told Soloski.

Come Sunday, when I'm no longer singing and dancing myself, I'm going to count on some of that joy to lift my spirits.

Creating a new habit worthwhile

Changing habits can be difficult, especially when it's a choice and not something that is forced upon you.

When I first lived in Belgium more than 30 years ago, the grocery

Here in and around Hinsdale, the bags are thrust upon me at checkout, whether it's at a big chain supermarket or a smaller grocery.

"Paper or plastic" is often the only choice I'll get. I'm never asked if I actually need the bag and have seen people handed a single piece of fruit in

I bring my own bags because it's a habit and because I think it's important. Whether they're paper or plastic, disposable bags do cause environmental damage. This takes different forms, from the pollution caused by making paper bags to the remains of plastic bags that can linger in landfills or float in our waterways for literally 1,000 years.

In 2017, the city of Chicago put a 7 percent tax on all paper and plastic checkout bags. This certainly changed habits; for example use of single-use bags fell from 82 percent of Chicagoans each shopping trip to 49 percent after just one month of the tax.

Research suggests strongly that it's the cost, not the environmental arguments, that change these habits. But noticing the cost also makes us mindful of the impact of these bags.

Perhaps that's one reason why Gov. J.B. Pritzker has proposed a 5-cent bag tax and a bag tax bill has been submitted by State Rep. Ann Williams in Springfield. Taxes may not be the most effective way.

Like many European Union member states and California, New York state banned single-use bags completely on March 1, 2020.

Whether or not there's a tax or ban, I'm bringing my bags because it's already my habit. Don't wait for someone to cajole or force you into doing it. Make it your habit today.

Make time to see the hilarious 'Hinsdopoly' this weekend

If you have not yet seen "Hinsdolopy" at The Community House, then make time this weekend for some fun entertainment.

I ended up smack in the front row because I was a late purchase on Saturday. The best part of being so close was that I had a new appreciation for all the costumes and set design. The crew literally made a Monopoly board come to life. Not only were they spot on to the actual game board, but they were extremely well done! After reading so many humble remarks about performing in the Stagebill, I could not help but think, "Do they have any idea that to even be willing to get up on stage and perform is a gift?" I don't think I would have had the many hours required to learn all those unique song lyrics, dance moves, dialogue, etc. — let alone have the nerve to stand up there and do what the cast did. Then to put a final touch on it all, I was able to enjoy some really exceptional singing. The satire in the writing kept me laughing from one joke to the next. Very clever!

So if your goal is to have a little escape from your Hinsdalean life, then support the show this weekend. You will not only be entertained, but the cost of your ticket supports our very own Community House, which supports us all. Very special thanks to the Community House Players for their tireless dedication! — Cathy Daly, Hinsdale

Stop 5G is making progress, still needs residents' support

Four months ago Stop 5G Hinsdale & Neighbors was formed. Since then, we have made significant progress, but much more remains to be done.

We have had town hall educational presentations. We have diligently worked with our village board and staff, resulting in the hiring of a lobbyist and an engineer who will review each telecom application for its impact on our community.

We have convinced Sen. Durbin to cosponsor a federal bill (S2012) and Rep. Mazzochi to sponsor a state bill (HB-4653) that will allow the return of local authority regarding the 5G rollout.

Members of the Stop 5G Hinsdale were also successful in convincing Sen. Glowiak to sponsor a bill that asks that a task force be formed to assess the health effect of 5G.

All of these actions are in preliminary phases and some represent simple political posturing, but they do represent a foot in the door. Now is the time to step in.

"Hinsdopoly" at The Community House serves as a venue for satirical reflection. This weekend it featured a skit on 5G that showed Hinsdaleans complacently watching as they "radiate the kids." Good satire always hints at the truth. Good satire provokes a gut reaction. Now is the time to self reflect and not be complacent. The door has been opened. Please make it wider by writing to your local politicians that you support these efforts. The Stop5GHinsdaleandneighbors.com website and the Stop5GHinsdale Bacebook page make it easy. Now is the time we need your support. — Dr. Fariha DiPasquale, Hinsdale

District 86 board was wrong in thwarting public comment

The Open Meeting Act provides the public a statutory right to address public bodies. Per OMA, the rules for addressing a public body may only impose reasonable "time, place and manner" regulations that are necessary to further a significant governmental interest, such as maintaining decorum during the public meetings.

Having watched the live telecast of the Dec. 12 D86 Board of Education meeting, it seemed pretty clear that the D86 BOE did not follow OMA when they stopped three community members from reading a letter that had already been shared with them, posted on Facebook and referred to an administrator in a factual manner. Even though the second speaker attempted to continue the letter while simply referring to the position of the administrator, they were not allowed to continue.

Public comments allow community members to share their perspective with board members but more importantly with administrators, other district employees and community members. Understandably, being a board member can be a thankless job, but once you accept this position you are obligated to listen to all comments respectfully as long as they follow the "rules." Per board policy, board members are also allowed to respond to public comments. I hope the current D86 BOE will choose to correct its error outside the legal system and move forward with the business of educating our students and updating the facilities for which the community helped pass a referendum. #### Paul Edward Purcell Sr.

Paul Edward Purcell Sr., 73, of Hinsdale died Feb. 28, 2020, in Sarasota, Florida from complications from cancer. His wife and four children were with him at his death.

Paul was born in 1946 in Salt Lake City, Utah, the third child of Philip and Shirley Sorensen Purcell. His father successfully ran the Continental Insurance Agency in Salt Lake City.

Paul was 5 years old when his mother died of cancer, leaving behind him, his older sister Ann and his older brother, Philip. When Paul was a teenager, his father married Norine Maxfield and the family later welcomed Paul's sister, Patrice.

Paul attended Judge Memorial High School in Salt Lake City, and then the University of Notre Dame. In his freshman year at Notre Dame, Paul met Patricia Wiedner, a student at the neighboring St. Mary's College. Following his graduation in 1969, Paul enrolled at the University of Chicago Graduate School of Business and, in June 1970, he and Patti were married in Glen Ellyn. Their wedding reception was in the backyard of Patti's parents' home.

Paul began his business career in the Chicago office of Kidder, Peabody & Co. He spent 22 years with the firm, ultimately in the role of managing director and head of the Midwest investment banking group. In 1994, Paul and several of his Kidder colleagues joined Robert W. Baird & Co., the Milwaukee financial services firm. He was named president of Baird in 1998, chief executive officer in 2000 and chairman in 2006. He served as chairman and chief executive officer until 2016, when he was succeeded as CEO by his long-time friend and colleague, Steve Booth. Paul and Steve had worked together since their days at Kidder, Peabody. Paul continued to serve as chairman of Baird until his death.

Paul brought to Baird a relentless work ethic and an unmatched devotion to clients and colleagues. Under his leadership, the firm enjoyed consistent success and grew throughout the US and internationally. Paul was enormously proud of Baird's place in the top ranks of Fortune's 100 Best Companies to Work For. Baird's success results from its culture of service and excellence, virtues Paul lived every day.

Paul matched his devotion to Baird with his commitment to his community. He believed deeply in the power of education to shape lives and was committed to making opportunities available to young people from all backgrounds. He was a founding member of the board of Cristo Rey Jesuit High School in Chicago, the first Cristo Rey high school, providing a college preparatory education and work experience to Chicago students with limited educational options. He continued as a member of the board of directors of the Cristo Rey Network, now made up of 37 schools employing the Cristo Rey model. For over 10 years, he served as the chair of the University of Notre Dame Mendoza School of Business Advisory Council.

Purcell

His other community commitments included serving as the co-chair of Teach for America — Milwaukee, as a member of the board of trustees of Alverno College, and as a member of the board of Junior Achievement of Chicago. He was very involved with the Milwaukee community, serving on the boards of the United Way of Greater Milwaukee, the United Performing Arts Fund and Discovery World. Paul received numerous recognitions for his achievements and service, including the University of Chicago Booth School of Business Distinguished Corporate Alumni Award

Paul adored his wife and was devoted to his family. He and Patti enjoyed 49 years of marriage; their love undiminished. Together they raised four children in the Chicago suburbs and welcomed six grandchildren. Papa Paul was beloved by his grandchildren, who delighted in his Donald Duck voices and his famous Mickey Mouse watch. He was never happier than when swimming with his grandkids in the pool or watching them play on the beach in Longboat Key, Florida.

Paul had many friends and enjoyed spending time with them on the golf course or over long dinners. He was a warm, gracious host and wonderful company. He loved watching Notre Dame football games and was always optimistic at the start of every season. Golf was a passion for him, even when slowed by a bad back. He enjoyed playing with his family and friends at Butterfield Country Club, The Founders Club, Sarasota, and Muirfield Village Golf Club, Dublin, OH.

Paul is survived by his wife, Patricia (Patti) Wiedner Purcell; their children, Carolann (Baird) Allis, Paul Jr. (Mary) Purcell, Emily (Josh) Locke, and Mark (Michelle) Purcell; his grandchildren, Catherine, John Paul and Mark Allis, Owen and Madison Purcell, and Frank Locke; his siblings, Ann Perini, Philip (Anne) Purcell and Patrice (John) DeCorrevont; and many nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Philip and Shirley Purcell; his step-mother, Norine Purcell; his brother-in-law, Albert Perini; his nephew, James Wiedner; and his great-nephew, P.J. Purcell.

Family will greet friends from 2 to 7 p.m. Sunday, March 8 at Sullivan Funeral Home, 60 S. Grant St., Hinsdale.

Family and friends will meet for a Mass of Christian burial at 11 a.m. Monday, March 9, at Notre Dame Catholic Church, 64 Norfolk Ave, Clarendon Hills.

Interment is private.

DANIEL LEUNG, SPEECH TEAM MEMBER

What's the secret to speech team success?

Last year's IHSA state speech final was triumphant for Hinsdale Central, which took home the first place trophy. But team member Daniel Leung said his nerves and lack of confidence hampered his individual humorous interpretation performance.

This year, a self-assured Leung placed second in original comedy and third in humorous interpretation at the state meet Feb. 21-22 in helping lead Central to a third-place finish.

"With the support of my friends and the coaches, I really gained that self-confidence and allowed me to do pretty well this year," said the Central senior.

Refining his routines through dozens of practices and competitions certainly helped, too. Leung workshopped his concept with teammates again and again, taking their feedback to heart.

"Our team is tight-knit," he said. "We're really good at having group performance practices, We also have a really positive atmosphere. Everyone knows that we're giving critiques not to put you down but to build you up and be the best performer you can be."

Leung said he's always enjoyed expressing himself in unique ways to others but didn't fully recognize his knack for comedy until his speech team audition sophomore year.

"It showed me a totally different side to me that I probably never would have even realized had a not done speech," he said.

His humorous interpretation routine involves delivering an over eight-minute performance from memory. His self-developed version requires him to embody a cast of characters including a valley girl, a Russian mobster and Dracula.

"I'm given a script and I build characters around them, the way they move, the way they talk," said Leung of the act, which took first place at regionals and sectionals. "You have to develop a way to think. It's the way that you use the space around you and create sound effects and interact with imaginary objects."

For his original comedy performance, he also incorporates elements of physicality.

"I drag my body halfway across the stage while moaning," he said. Keeping the routines fresh is key even at the point when he can do them largely by rote.

"Halfway through the season, I really didn't have to practice as much. I'd only practice if I was trying to add something new," he said. "It kind of comes down to physical memory after a while."

Leung said comedians John Mulaney and Chris D'Elia are among his favorites, particularly their ability to use both words and body language to convey a story.

Leung said he and his teammates endeavored to conduct themselves at the meet in a way that reflected well on the school both during competitions and at the hotel and restaurants.

"We made sure to follow curfew," he said. "The juniors and seniors really took it upon themselves to show the underclassmen the expectations."

Leung credited speech team with having a profound impact on his Central tenure.

"I really have enjoyed my time on speech," he said. "I think it's one of the highlights of my high school experience."

— by Ken Knutson

Hinsdale Central speech team member Daniel Leung captured second and third place prizes at the IHSA state meet last month as part of the team's overall third place finish. The senior said a belief in himself was a pivotal factor in his success. (Jim Slonoff photo)

Theater students learn from master

Chicago Shakespeare's casting director offers advice to BAM ensemble members

By Pamela Lannom

plannom@thehinsdalean.com

Bob Mason spent 15 years performing in musical theater before he became casting director of Chicago Shakespeare Theatre. He still remembers what it's like to audition — trying to perform while grappling with nerves and a sense of the unknown.

He knows a lot more now than when he started in the business, and he imparted some of that wisdom Sunday to students in the Hinsdale-based BAM Conservatory Ensemble.

"I was an actor and I always think, 'What do I wish someone had told me that would have saved me a lot of time and energy?'
" he told The Hinsdalean Monday. "I feel like I've started to learn what those things are."

He played the role of a casting director at the master class, with 15 students presenting a song as if they were at an audition. He offered individual insights to the actors as well as general advice. A common theme of his critique was to make the song more personal.

"Try to convince yourself this is what you need to do to survive," he told one student. "Feel free to go overboard. Feel free to make a fool of yourself because that's why we're here."

He suggested another student pay more attention to the point in the song at which she poses a question.

"Really ask the question as if you don't know the answer," he suggested.

He encouraged students to have a second song prepared if the director asks to hear something different. Kiki Sikora, who sang "What It Means to be a Friend" from "13," performed "Killer Instinct" from "Bring it On" as her second piece.

"It's a great song for you because you look like you don't have one," Mason founder and artistic director, watches as her students perform for and receive feedback from Bob Mason, casting director for Chicago Shakespeare Theater. Charlotte Froiland of Hinsdale and James Leonardi were among the students who participated in the master class. (Jim Slonoff photos)

In an effort to make it more convincing, he asked her to sing the song to her peers.

"This time I want you to actually get in their faces," he said.

She did — and offered a completely different version of the song.

Student Hayley Johnson of Hinsdale attended a master class almost 10 years ago, accompanied by her older sister, Shannon, and led by Jim Cordi, artistic director at the Paramount Theater in Aurora

"He had my sister sing and she was really focusing on her voice," Johnson recalled. "He gave her one critique and her whole performance changed."

Cordi led a master class again this year, on Feb. 23, and Johnson sang for him then. She had the opportunity Sunday to sing for Mason as well.

"They are so different but so amazing in their own ways," she said of the two professionals.

Her rendition of "Say the Word" made quite an impression on Mason. "Your voice is crazy good," he said.

"That's a song I've been working on for a couple of months with my voice teachers," Johnson said Monday. "To get some recognition for it was really cool."

She said anxiety can be hard to manage when singing for someone who is distinguished and knowledgeable, but she credited Mason with putting students at ease.

"I don't think anyone felt judged or evaluated in a poor way. I think he made it very clear he was there to make everyone better," said Johnson, who plans to major in musical theater in college.

Making a change on the spot to a song that has been rehearsed for months can be difficult, she said. "I think that sometimes the nerves can kind of get the best of people, and I think that sometimes it's hard not to revert back to an old habit that you have. Sometimes it can be difficult to grasp a note someone gives you and immediately apply it," Johnson said.

Mason praised the students' willingness to put themselves in a vulnerable position.

"It takes so much bravery. It really does," he said.
"When I look at the people who come in every day, I often wonder, 'How did I do that?' I often wonder how I had the guts to do that."

He also was impressed with the talent he saw.

"Some of those voices blew me away," he said. "It's amazing, the teenage talent pool. Twenty years ago the talent wouldn't be that developed at that age."

He said programs like those offered by BAM
Theatre combined with students' dedication put young performers in place where they already sound great, and he can work with them on specifics.

"How do they make the song personal to them so no one else would ever sign it the way they sing it," he said.

The final master class this Saturday will feature Broadway actress Jessie Fisher. The series is the culmination of a yearlong curriculum for the 26 students who auditioned and earned a place in the ensemble, said Melanie Lamoureux, founder and artistic director of BAM.

"The program I designed for a more advanced actor who really wants that type of coaching, so we're hopeful that the students are receptive to the feedback, and so far I've really seen positive things come out of that," she said.

Lamoureux acknowledged the exercise can be a bit intimidating.

"Most of these students have never gone to a professional audition at one of the major houses in Chicago, and these are the individuals who cast those shows," she said.

She has enjoyed watching her guests interact with her students.

"It's been really fun," she said. "I love Bob. I was his casting intern many years ago at Chicago Shakespeare. It was really lovely to bring him to my theater home in Hinsdale."

The cast of "Hin$dopoly" will present its final two shows this Friday and Saturday, March 6-7, at The Community House. See Page 23 for details. (photo courtesy of Jim Hutchinson)

Is it best to eat or not eat before morning workout?

Since the dawn of the fitness industry and fad diets, this question has been raised: which is better for fat loss—eating or not eating before a morning workout?

Some say fuel before a workout boosts blood sugars, giving the body energy to increase the intensity and length of a workout while fighting off fatigue and dizziness. The eat-after proponents say that you burn more fat if you fast before exercise.

According to CNN Health, a recent UK study supports the latter point of view. The study included 30 obese or overweight men who were followed for six weeks. Those who exercised before breakfast burned twice the fat as the men who ate breakfast before they worked out.

In one aspect, working out without fuel allows the body to better use what has been stored rather than what is currently in the bloodstream from the meal prior to exercise. Fasting before exercising forces the body to turn to stored carbohydrates, and after this initial supply has been used, to quickly shift into burning fat cells.

While study participants in the eat-after group didn't Heat lose more weight than the eat-before group during the six weeks of the study, skipping the meal before exercise did have "profound and positive" effects on the health of the eat-after group, researchers say (CNN Health, October 2019).

Not only is an individual burning more fat as fuel, when carbs are stored away as glycogen to replenish a worked muscle or tissue, the body's response to insulin is also changing. Fasting before exercise made the men's muscles more responsive to insulin, which controls high blood sugar levels, helping to ward against diabetes and heart disease.

Eric Bishop Healthbeat

"The group who exercised before breakfast increased their ability to respond to insulin, which is all the more remarkable given that both exercise groups lost a similar amount of weight and both gained a similar amount of fitness ... the only difference was the timing of the food intake," stated researcher

Javier Gonzalez, an associate professor in the Department for Health at the University of Bath.

If burning more body fat is the main goal, engaging in steady-state or interval cardio training in a fasted state will yield the best results for fat loss.

If you are a power athlete or an individual aiming to lift weights and strength train at a higher intensity, having the primary fuel source — carbohydrates — present will be necessary to perform at optimal levels to achieve the desired outcome in those areas that aren't directly related to weight loss.

At the end of the day, make fitness goals that work for you.

— Eric Bishop is fitness supervisor at Edward-Elmhurst Health & Fitness in Woodridge.

750+ homes in the local market, and President's Club affiliation set you apart from the competition by a long shot!

Given the recent instability and uncertainty in the national housing market, I needed a seasoned real estate professional who knew Hinsdale inside and out, to do a thorough market study and provide the most up to date analytics necessary to begin the daunting process of listing my home.

Coldwell Banker's foothold in the Hinsdale market coupled with your willingness to invest in the resources necessary to provide the best marketing and internet presence in the industry, proved to be a tremendous asset. The professional photos and printed materials you prepared were top notch. Your organization of a comprehensive home improvement list, utility information and plat survey proved incredibly valuable for potential buyers. You knew my house inside and out!

I very much appreciated your candor and honest feedback throughout the process. I believe all homeowners come to the table with preconceived notions, but as you always stress, the numbers are the numbers, the market is the market, and the agent's responsibility is to align the client's decision making process with the reality of the marketplace in order to achieve the best possible outcome for their client.

Your detailed and methodical approach, impeccable level of customer service, subject matter expertise, and professionalism is unmatched. Your tireless efforts to identify the pool of buyers, keep the lines of communication open with the buyer agents, and accommodate numerous requests for additional information necessary to move the process forward was priceless.

Watching you meticulously negotiate the contract and close the deal while looking out for my best interests provided me the reassurance and confidence I needed at a very stressful time.

THE FLIPFLOP ARROW! Here's a neat way to stump your friends. On a square of cardboard draw a one-inch arrow pointing to the left. Bet anyone that you can make the arrow point to the right without touching the card or moving the table. Secret: Fill a tall clear glass with water and place it about two inches in front of the card. Now, when you look at the arrow, through the glass, it will appear to have flipped and point.

SPORTS — ROUNDUP

STUDENT ATHLETE PROFILE

Name: Helene Friedman Year: senior Hometown: Hinsdale

When did you start playing softball?

I started playing when I was in kindergarten for Burr Ridge-Willowbrook, My sisters actually played.

What do you enjoy most about the sport?

Not a lot of people play it because it's pretty unique. You play with the same girls for a really long period of time and you get to know people really well, and I like that.

What is the most challenging part of being an outfielder?

You're the last line of defense, so if it gets past you, there's nobody else behind you. You really just need to be on your toes.

How have you improved since your freshman year?

I think I've become a lot more hardworking. I didn't really know what to expert in terms of softball and school. Everyone there wants you to succeed. I feel like I've grown a lot as a worker and what I want in life.

What is the best advice you've gotten from a coach?

All the coaches really say, 'Don't get down on yourself," which is cheesy, but it's really easy to and so I think it's really important to know that you have a group of people around you that support you no matter what. Don't get down on yourself, but if you do, remember there are other people there to pick you up.

What is your goal for the season?

For me, I want to make a diving catch. For the team, last year we didn't really win that much, so I think we should slaughter someone. That would be fun.

What would people be surprised to know about you?

I'm really into painting by numbers right now.

Will you play in college?

I'm not planning on playing on a college team, but I think I want to do a club sport or something. I'm going to Brandeis University in Massachusetts.

Why does coach Brittany Zust like having Friedman on the team?

I enjoy having Helene on the team for her dedication to the program. This will be her fourth year with us and I couldn't be more grateful to have a kid like her with us. She is accepting of the coaches and the decisions they make. She wears her heart on her sleeve and it is clear she wants to finish her senior year strong.

Swimmers place eighth at state meet

200 medley relay races to title tie as boys program earns 10th straight top-10 spot

By Ken Knutson

kknutson@thehinsdalean.com

The Hinsdale Central boys swimming and diving team placed eighth over the weekend at the IHSA state meet at Evanston Township High School.

The team's total of 54 points placed it in the state's top 10 for the 10th straight season. Champion St. Charles North garnered 137 points, followed closely by runner-up Loyola Academy and third-place Glenbrook South with 135 and 128, respectively.

"We couldn't be prouder," Red Devil coach Bob Barber said of the outcome. "We exceeded expectations in many places."

Barber said the team tried to be "realistic" by setting its goal of a top-10 state finish.

But things quickly turned somewhat unreal after the team's 200-yard medley relay team led off the Saturday's slate of final races with a first-place tie for the title in a school record time of 1:31.31. (See full results on Page 41.)

"We didn't have a vision of state titles or school records this season, and to catch both of those on the first event on Saturday really set the tone for us," Barber said. "We did everything we could on Friday to ensure that we were well represented on Saturday to keep us in the top-10 hunt."

Relay member senior Cullen Cochlan said he and teammates senior Alexander Cho and juniors Nolan Lahmann and Erkan Ozgen were confident after being seeded third following Friday's prelims. Cochlan said capturing the title as a group was special.

"It was my first high school state win, and it was better to do with the kids on the team," he said. "Nobody really had us in contention, but we knew we could win and we did.

"It felt like years and years of hard work culminated in seeing that come to fruition," Cullen continued, reliving the joy in seeing freestyler Ozgen seal the victorious tie with their Glenbrook South counterparts. "We were able to get to that wall without letting them beat us."

Barber credited his veteran relay members with helping their teammates manage their emotions, as the raucous crowd and phalanx of officials at the state meet can be intimidating for first-timers.

"They definitely carried us through," he said, citing Cochlan and Lahmann's state meet seasoning benefiting Cho and Ozgen.
"They kind of led the way for Alexander and Erkan in both the physical and mental preparations right up to seconds before the race.

"I couldn't have done it with four rookies," Barber added.

The 200-yard freestyle team of Ozgen, Cochlan, junior John Tischke and senior Alex Daw came in 10th, and the 400-yard free relay (Benington, Cochlan, Tischke, Daw) came in 11th.

In the individual events, Cho took eighth in the 100-yard breaststroke, senior Michael Benington placed eighth in the 200-yard IM and 11th in the 100-yard backstroke. Daw placed 11th in the 200-yard IM, while Lahmann placed 11th in the 100-yard backstroke.

"I'm super happy," said Benington, who also competed at state last year. "I'd never finaled before, so it was a pretty neat experience. Before the race, it was probably one of my most nerve-wracking moments."

Barber said Benington gave an inspiring swim.

"He was really the spark that kind of lit our fire. We weren't sure where we would stand with our individual events," he said, adding that Benington's strong finish was a fitting final stroke on a portrait in perseverance.

"His entire four-year career is one to write a book about," Barber related, chronicling Benington's journey from JV swimmer to state standout. "To watch his success along the way has been a lot of fun." Benington was pleased with his results.

"It was a really good way to end my career," he said.

After an early season with numerous question marks over who could be plugged into which events, Barber said a healthy balance emerged and athletes stepped up. Among those who evolved was Cho as the swimmer to fill roles of swimmers lost last year to graduation.

"He really grew into the role physically and mentally," Barber said, saying his breaststroke performances were stunning.

"What he accomplished both on the relay and individual was fantastic. He went from a 59.9 relay time last year to a 57.4 this year. That's unheard of. That was a game changer for us and really gave the team an opportunity to rise to the next level."

Cho said the triumph was a group effort.

"We just gave it our all and it worked out really well," Cho said. "I still really don't believe it. I tried to visualize and dream about it happening the night before."

Cochlan said the state meet can be a microcosm of the season.

"There's a lot of highs and lows at the meet. So it's important to keep a good mindset and the handle the victories and losses," he said.

And they liked being able to sneak up on rivals this year.

"Everybody kind of saw us as the underdog, and we went out there with a chip on our shoulders," said the future University of Pittsburgh swimmer.

Etching a place for themselves in Central swimming's pantheon is rewarding, Cochlan said.

"Every year we've been able to come together and race toward one common goal," he remarked.

Barber said the postmeet spirit was jubilant.

"Everybody that was a part of that felt the joy of how successful we were with the work that we put in, and it came from the parents, it came from the coaches and it came from the fans," he related. "Wow, that was a lot of fun!"
