D86 board is focused on curriculum

by Pamela Lannom

plannom@thehinsdalean.com

A new assistant superintendent of academics will work with a new academic committee in Hinsdale High School District 86, following board action at the May 25 meeting.

The board approved hiring Jason Markey as the new assistant superintendent of academics, effective July 1. He will replace Chris Covino, who is leaving to become superintendent in La Grange Elementary District 102.

Markey, who attended the meeting, told board members he has admired the district from afar for some time and acknowledged its proud tradition.

"I'm really enthusiastic about this opportunity — very excited to be here," he said.

Markey has more than 20 years of experience in education, serving the past three years as principal of Glenbrook High school. He has a bachelor's degree in social science education from the University of Northern Iowa, a master's in school leadership from Concordia University and his superintendent licensure from Western Illinois University.

One of Markey's responsibilities will be working with a new academic committee the board created Monday night. Board member Debbie Levinthal said she has wanted to see such a committee for some time.

"It has been discussed for years, beginning when I first started on the board, and it was most recently discussed at the last board meeting," said Levinthal, who was appointed by board President Cat Greenspon to chair the committee

Levinthal suggested the group would function similar to the finance committee, hearing presentations from administrators before bringing recommendations to the full board. Topics could include curriculum proposals, academic data, the process by which new curriculums and courses are adopted and analyzing special education data, she said. With more time for discussion and questions at committee meetings, presentations could be streamlined for board meetings, she added. And the meetings could provide an opportunity for more collaboration between board members and administrators.

"We've seen a lot of pushback on a lot of our curriculum and a lot of our curriculum initiatives," she said.

Board member Terri Walker questioned whether the committee would be overseeing the new superintendent and micromanaging curriculum decisions.

"There's no explicit implication of oversight other than oversight of academics, which the board is actually charged with overseeing," Levinthal responded.

The committee could help the board and administration establish more trust with the community, board member Kay Gallo said. "We had many in the community who felt things were being done to them," she said. "I think this is a really good first step with the community with the new assistant superintendent."

The board ultimately voted 5-1 to create the committee, with Terri Walker voting no. Asma Akhras was absent. In addition to Levinthal, Akhras and board President Cat Greenspon will serve on the committee.

Social studies revisited

The board also tackled another curriculum issue at the meeting — upcoming changes to the social studies curriculum that were approved in the fall of 2021 as part of the program of studies. Board members cited the decision to offer AP modern world history to sophomores instead of AP European history, which would be available to juniors and seniors, as one of their primary concerns.

D86 support staff get new three-year deal

By Pamela Lannom plannom@thehinsdalean.com

Support staff, administrators and board members in Hinsdale High School District 86 hope a new three-year contract will help the district fill positions to support students.

The contract, approved May 22 by the Hinsdale Township High School Support Staff Association and May 25 by the board, lists a new hire rate of $18.50 for paraprofessionals and student supervisors and $40 for 1-to-1 nurses. All current employees will have their pay increased to at least these rates.

Negotiations took place a year early, as the previous contract didn't expire until 2024, Cheryl Moore, assistant superintendent of human resources, told The Hinsdalean.

"We did that because we saw a need to increase the hourly rate," she said. "We're fine at the (school) average, but the problem is McDonald's is now paying $20 an hour." All school districts are struggling to fill paraprofessional positions, he said.

"We acknowledged that and wanted to address it rather than wait another whole year," she said.

The new rate represents a minimum 5 percent increase, Moore said. Stipends that have been paid for longevity, education and other reasons have been rolled into employees' hourly rates. After those adjustments, any rate that was below $18.50 was increased to $18.50, Moore said.

The contract calls for a new job category called personal care assistant that will feature a $2/hour differential for those who are assigned to serve in the role a minimum of 60 percent of the day for at least a full semester. These are individuals who work with students who need physical assistance with tasks such as eating and toileting, Moore said.

The cost structure for medical and dental insurance will be aligned with provisions of the Hinsdale High School Teachers Association contract. The agreement also calls for 10 sick days and four personal days a year, up from eight and two, respectively, and modifications to allow for a 50-minute lunch to align with students' new schedule next year.

A press release issued by the district said the board, administration and association recognize the critical role support staff play in the success of schools and students.

"We want to thank the members of the negotiating teams for the collegiality and collaborative spirit they have exhibited throughout this process," the release states. "We also want to acknowledge and celebrate the strong partnership that exists between our groups. It is through this partnership that we will continue to advance the important work that is shaping the future of our schools and helping our students learn, grow and lead."

Board member Debbie Levinthal, who was on the negotiating team, also described the process as collaborative.

"I'm happy that this is before us tonight," she said. The contract runs through June 30, 2026.

Convicted car thief to serve 18 years

The man arrested for stealing a $250,000 Ferrari in May 2021 from Continental Motor Sports of Hinsdale has been sentenced to 18 years in the Illinois Department of Corrections

RaJohn Stewart, 26, formerly of Country Club Hills, plead guilty to one count of aggravated unlawful possession of a stolen motor vehicle, a Class 1 felony, according to a press release from DuPage County State's Attorney Bob Berlin's office. He was sentenced by Judge Ann O'Hallaren Walsh.

"An armed burglary crew is inherently dangerous to the public and law enforcement officers," Hinsdale Police Chief Brian King told The Hinsdalean. "A gun with a 30-round extended magazine was held by one of the juvenile offenders during the commission of this offense. The stiff sentence handed down in this case reflects the recklessness of the burglary crew's actions.

"Had it not been for the restraint shown by the responding officers, we could have experienced a tragic outcome."

ship at 336 E. Ogden Ave. at about 2:21 a.m. May 17, 2021. While investigating that site, officers were dispatched to another alarm at Continental Motor sports, according to the ralease.

There they found a broken window and a running 2018 red Ferrari convertible driven outside of the service bay into the rear lot. When officers encountered an individual with a crowbar next to the padlock on the rear gate, the individual ran to a nearby car, got in and fled the scene. A Hinsdale squad car located the vehicle and disabled it, and four individuals —

Stewart and three juveniles — fled on foot. Police took Stewart into custody after a brief pursuit.

"The quick apprehension, prosecution and significant sentence sends the message that in DuPage County, my office and law enforcement are 100 percent committed to protecting our businesses from violent criminal activity such as that committed by Mr. Stewart and his co-defendants," Berlin stated.

The juvenile co-defendants received sentences to the Illinois Department of Juvenile Justice.

Riessen and a racquet were potent combo

By Ken Knutson kknutson@thehinsdalean.com

Dubbed the "Ace of Burns Field" for his tennis exploits locally, Hinsdale native Marty Riessen went on to make a name for himself far beyond the village.

The Hinsdalean chronicled Riessen's life in as part of the "Hinsdale Originals" series in 2011, portions of which are included here.

Growing up in the 400 block of West Hickory Street, Riessen could often be found across the street on Burns' courts honing his game. His father Clare started the tennis program at then-Hinsdale Township High School, and Riessen (also a standout basketball player) became the first to win the Illinois singles title four years in a row. He capped his Red Devil career in dominant fashion, winning 49 out of 53 sets 6-0.

Riessen moved on to Northwestern in 1960, where his father had recently become head tennis coach. He reached the NCAA singles finals three times and played in events around the world while earning bachelor's and master's degrees.

With competitive tennis exclusively amateur in those days, Riessen planned to get his Ph.D. in school administration for a career in education. That same year of 1968, Texas businessman Lamar Hunt launched his World Championship Tennis circuit as a professional alternative to the amateur league. Riessen signed on.

"Hunt made a huge difference in tennis. Up until he started, there were no professionals. There wasn't that option. It was a very exciting time," he said.

As a pro Riessen became a doubles specialist, playing with legends like Arthur Ashe and Margaret Court to capture a total of nine Grand Slam titles in men's and mixed doubles. Riessen said his pairing with Ashe, which resulted in the 1971 French Open championship, came about by happenstance.

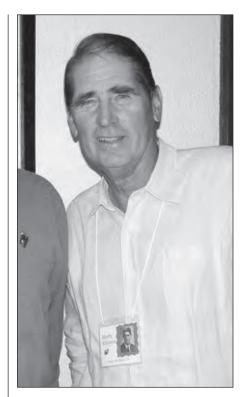

"We were on the Davis Cup team together. I guess that summer, we were each looking for a partner and we ended up playing together," he said. "For an American to win anything at the French was very good. Arthur wasn't considered a great doubles player. He was better known for his singles."

During a 10-year run with partner Tom Okker, the duo captured the 1976 U.S. Open along with three Grand Slam runners-up trophies and reached No. 2 in the world rankings. Riessen also won several singles titles over the likes of Rod Laver and Roscoe Tanner. Dunlop even came out with a "Marty Riessen" wooden racquet.

Riessen retired from the main tour in the early 1980s but continued playing both singles and doubles on the senior tour. Turning to coaching, he helped Tracy Austin win her 1981 U.S. Open championship and led two U.S. Olympic teams.

Riessen was inducted into the International Tennis Association Hall of Fame in 1989, and was similarly honored by his high school alma mater in 2000.

"Hinsdale was a great place to grow up. I really enjoyed it. It's a good community," he said.

■ "Two kids go out to a dock at night to look at the stars when one of them sees a light in the distance that keeps getting closer and closer. It's creepy." — Analise Budziak

Central senior earns recognition for short story

An early awakening. Out the window the sun has yet to make its rise. But a single light from the nextdoor neighbor's home suggests someone else is already stirring.

Those prosaic morning observances helped illumine the imagination of Hinsdale Central senior Analise Budziak, whose subsequent short story, "A Trick of the Light," took first place in the inaugural Randall Albers Young Writers Award contest, sponsored by the Chicago Literary Hall of Fame.

"It's very exciting," said Budziak of the honor, presented May 13 in a ceremony in the Harold Washington Library Center. "I like writing short stories. My creative writing teacher told me about it and thought I should give it a try, so I did."

Budziak, who uses the pronouns they/them, said the tale delves into the paranormal.

"Two kids go out to a dock at night to look at the stars when one of them sees a light in the distance that keeps getting closer and closer," they related. "It's creepy."

They said the story's characters had been in development for a while and finally had a opportunity to make it onto the page. While fantasy is Budziak's preferred genre, they enjoyed venturing into less familiar territory.

"There are so many different approaches you can take with a short story," Budziak said, "and trying different genres exercises different muscles."

Word of the writers award actually came secondhand since communications went through the parents of Budziak, then still a minor at 17.

"My mom texted me and said, 'Did you see the news?' I told her I didn't, but I figured probably something good had happened," they recounted.

Budziak's mom forwarded the message, but the reality didn't register at first.

"I had to keep skimming over it because my brain didn't think it was right," they said.

At the awards ceremony, each honoree read their stories. Budziak admitted reading their work aloud is not their favorite activity but also acknowledged the power in that practice.

"There's something about reading things aloud that just gives them a different life," they said, noting the enrichment of hearing the pieces of their fellow prize winners.

The award was named for Randall Albers, professor and chair emeritus of fiction at Columbia College Chicago, to honor his "tireless efforts to enhance the city's literary profile," according to the Chicago Literary Hall of Fame website, as well as his energy "helping young writers find, develop, and amplify their voices."

Budziak enlists others to make sure their voice comes through clearly, citing vital counsel from both their mom and Central English teacher Angelique Burrell during the editing process.

"I like to have people read over my writing," they said.
"(Mrs. Burrell) had so much good feedback that was really helpful. My mom and I read each others' work a lot because we both like writing. She sends me her chapters, and I send her mine."

After graduation, Budziak will pursue a degree in writing at St. Olaf College.

"Writing is what I hope to do when I grow up," said Budziak, recalling how reading the "Ranger's Apprentice" by John Flanagan ignited their interest. "Maybe one day someone will read my stories and want to be a writer. The world is a better place with stories."

New board in D86 off to a rather rocky start

The new board in Hinsdale High School District 86 has been busy.

After almost 90 minutes in closed session at a special meeting May 24, board members voted 6-0 (Asma Akhras was absent) to affirm the "leave with pay" status of Superintendent Tammy Prentiss and designate of Chris Covino as acting superintendent.

Prentiss' leave was announced more than a week earlier on May 16, with no information available as to whether the leave was paid or unpaid or if board members had voted to place Prentiss on leave. Now we know they had not.

They've also hired a law firm to provide legal advice on what was described in a 46-word paragraph that we're pretty sure translates to "getting rid of Tammy Prentiss."

We don't know what was discussed in a special closed session meeting held May 9, less than a week after three new board members — Akhras, Kay Gallo and Cat Greenspon — were sworn in.

Demands for transparency were a common refrain during the spring campaign, which now seems a bit hypocritical. We recognize this is a personnel issue, but holding votes in open sessions sandwiched between closed sessions hardly defines transparency. How many residents are going to go to a meeting only to wait — it could be 30 minutes or three hours — before board members emerge to take a vote?

In addition to appearing to be on the way to getting a new superintendent, board members have been busy in other areas as well. They've cleaned up some things they didn't like (now committee meetings will be recorded and posted and the director of communications will not automatically receive emails sent to the "boe" address) and created an academic committee that's been the subject of debate for two years. They also plan to revisit at their June 8 meeting changes made to the social studies curriculum that were approved almost two years ago. It seems the director of diversity, equity and instruction position might be on the chopping block as well.

What the DEI discussion will involve, we don't know. We do know Cheryl Moore, assistant superintendent for human resources, had a candidate ready to recommend at the May 25 meeting.

"We're not ready for that recommendation, I guess," she told the board.

Gallo attempted to amend the agenda to add a discussion of the position to last week's meeting but did not have support from other board members. We can only hope new leadership in the district will bring a change for the better. Jason Markey, the new assistant superintendent for academics, certainly has his work cut out for him. Yes, the board is responsible for approving curriculum changes, but we agree with Acting Superintendent Chris Covino that the board can't simply accept teachers' recommendations that they like and ignore the ones they don't.

Perhaps working with an academic committee, Markey can better lay out what educators' objectives are and take into consideration board members' concerns to end the cycle of approving curriculum changes and later reversing them.

On the board's side, we hope Greenspon will do a better job of managing agenda items so meetings don't last five hours. If there are too many topics to discuss, schedule a special meeting. Board members, administrators, audience members — no one is at their best at 10:30 on a weeknight.

We hope board members will be mindful of their comments to shorten meeting times as well. All opinions should be heard, but there is too much elaboration and repetition.

Two of the three new board members made a lot of promises about how much better things would be after they were elected. We're waiting.

COMMENTARY

So long, eighth grade — we're moving on!

By the time you read this — or soon after — I will officially be the parent of a high school student.

I believe the technical term these days is "rising freshman," but I think that sounds weird. No matter what words you use, Ainsley's days as a middle schooler are over.

She graduates tonight with a cheering section comprised of her father and I, my birth mom, and my birth dad and his wife. On Saturday, friends, family and neighbors will join us for a bigger celebration — featuring al pastor tacos from Ainsley's favorite Mexican restaurant.

She survived middle school relatively unscathed, despite an eighthgrade year filled with an unexpectedly high number of absences and unanticipated interactions with some truly mean kids.

For her crossing the finish line I credit all the adults who supported her at school, from teachers who saw her talents and knew how to elicit them to the social workers who talked her through tough times to the front office staff, who wrote her tardy passes (and were always so kind when I was calling in yet another absence).

Being her mom through all of this has been a challenge. I remember my best friend telling me years ago that as kids get older, they don't need you as much, but when they do need you, their problems are a lot harder to solve. I believed her at the time, but now I have the experience to know she was right. I wish Ainsley — and all of us — could learn all of our lessons through joy,

but sometimes we have to learn them through pain.

Middle school is a notoriously rough time, but eighth grade did have some great moments. Ainsley was selected to play in the ILMEA music festival, was one of 27 students out of 260 selected to win a spot at the writing showcase and received the Quincy

Jones award from musicianship from her band director. (Please excuse that bit of bragging.)

I don't have many memories of my own eighth-grade graduation, other than regret over my choice of dress (bright yellow — too much even for 1980). I do remember reading through the cards I received, with their inspiring messages about looking to the future and how the best was yet to come.

I know that will be the case for Ainsley. She has an exciting summer filled with travel and her first ASP mission trip to West Virginia. And high school is just around the corner, offering a fresh start and a host of new people with whom to make friends.

It seems not that long ago that I was at Ainsley's elementary school for her kindergarten graduation. The whole thing seemed a bit silly to me, and I resented not only having to take off work but the parents who showed up with cards and flowers for their 6-year-olds.

Today I am thrilled to celebrate Ainsley's accomplishment and to remind her the best is yet to come. — Pamela Lannom is editor of The Hinsdalean. Readers can email her at plannom@thehinsdalean.com.

The case against dogs

They say dogs are man's best friend. I wonder who came up with that? A dog, of course.

And why wouldn't they be, considering all we do for them. In fact, let's build two lists. First, what Man does

Man

- 1. We feed them.
- 2. We shelter them.
- 3. We pick up their poop.
- 4. We take them for long walks at 5 in the morning in all kinds of weather.
- 5. We play catch with their saliva-soaked, ratty tennis balls.
- 6. We give them heart-attack-inducing baths.
- 7. We pay for their exorbitant, designer haircuts.
- 8. We give up our retirement savings and our kids' college educations to pay "the vet."
- 9. We give them a comfy bed, usually our own.

at all.

12. We brush their teeth. 13. We pet them absentmindedly.

10. We pick vacations (com-

vacations and therefore don't up the tab for

11. Or -

14. We hug them endlessly.

15. We cuddle them obnoxiously.

OK. I think that about covers it. But I do reserve the right to add to the list. There must be dozens of things I forgot.

Now, ready? Here's what Dog does for Man.

Dog

1. They love us unconditionally.

That's it, people! Tally the score. Man 15, Dog 1. Just one thing they do for us. Yeah, just one thing. So irritating! Really unfair.

Hmm. I have to admit, though, it is a good one. OK, OK. I guess Dog does more for Man than Man does for Dog. Darn! Unconditional love to the

But you have to admit, it was really, really close. And when I remember all the things I forgot that Man does for Dog, unconditional love won't have a chance.

Runner says its time for village to turn fountains back on

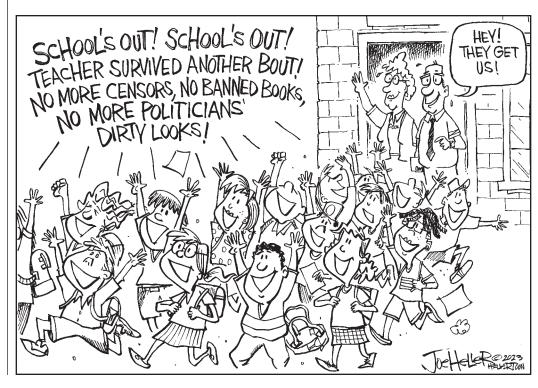

Can someone explain why the public water fountains in Hinsdale are off?

I know during the pandemic public fountains in schools, office buildings, airports, parks, etc. were turned off. But those have been brought back into service. Except in Hinsdale. As a runner, walker, biker, I have relied on those fountains. I used to stop by the tennis courts in Robbins Park or the fountains on Washington Street or the pool. Those fountains are still turned off.

I know many people carry a water bottle on their walks, but for me during an hourlong run it isn't practical. Fortunately, the fountains are on in Clarendon Hills, so I can adjust my route. But, why? If other municipalities can keep the water on, why can't Hinsdale? — Arlene R. Jarzab social studies teacher Chris Freiler said he came to support keeping AP European history as a sophomore class, as it introduces students to college-level analysis, interpretation and argumentation of history.

Curriculum focus of D86 board decisions

"In my view, the European history curriculum serves these higher purposes of history best not because of an European superiority but because it offers the strongest integration of themes, adroitly balances depth and breadth and introduces students to developments that are essential to their understanding of the world."

Freiler, who also supported keeping honors philosophy in the curriculum, said he was not speaking for the department but knows some of his colleagues agree with him

Covino confirmed some department members are not in favor of the changes.

"We've never hid that," he said

He pointed out that the program team spent significant time before making the recommendation and said the plan is to offer both AP Euro and AP modern world history in 2024-25 to sophomores before shifting to the new sequence. Making changes now at the sophomore level has other implications, he noted.

"I just want to caution the board, which I think is my old and potentially new role, that taking any action without addressing some of these very nuanced concerns that the teams have been working on for about three years now would be very rash and I do not think it would benefit the curriculum, the kids or the program."

He also cautioned the board against saying one thing and doing another.

"Again, I want to be really clear. We cannot value the teachers' work and then not value it when we don't like the work that has come out of the committee," Covino said.

Greenspon took issue with the inference that the board doesn't value teachers.

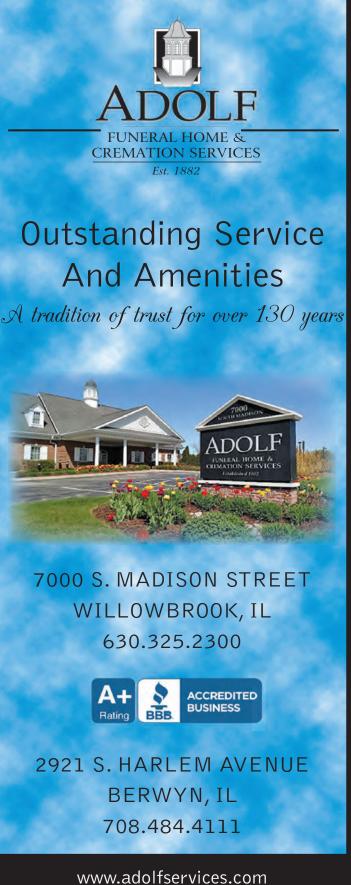

"Absolutely we are here to support teachers, but our responsibility, our obligation is first to the education of students," she said. "That is our charge. We do this through our teachers. I understand that. But if there is a possibility that we are taking away a demonstrated growth opportunity sophomore year to students, we do need to pause and think about it.

"I'm not saying that the work the social studies department has done is not valued, and I absolutely do not appreciate that every time the board has a question that it is automatically an attack or a repudiation for the work that has been done," she added. "It is our duty to ask questions if we have them."

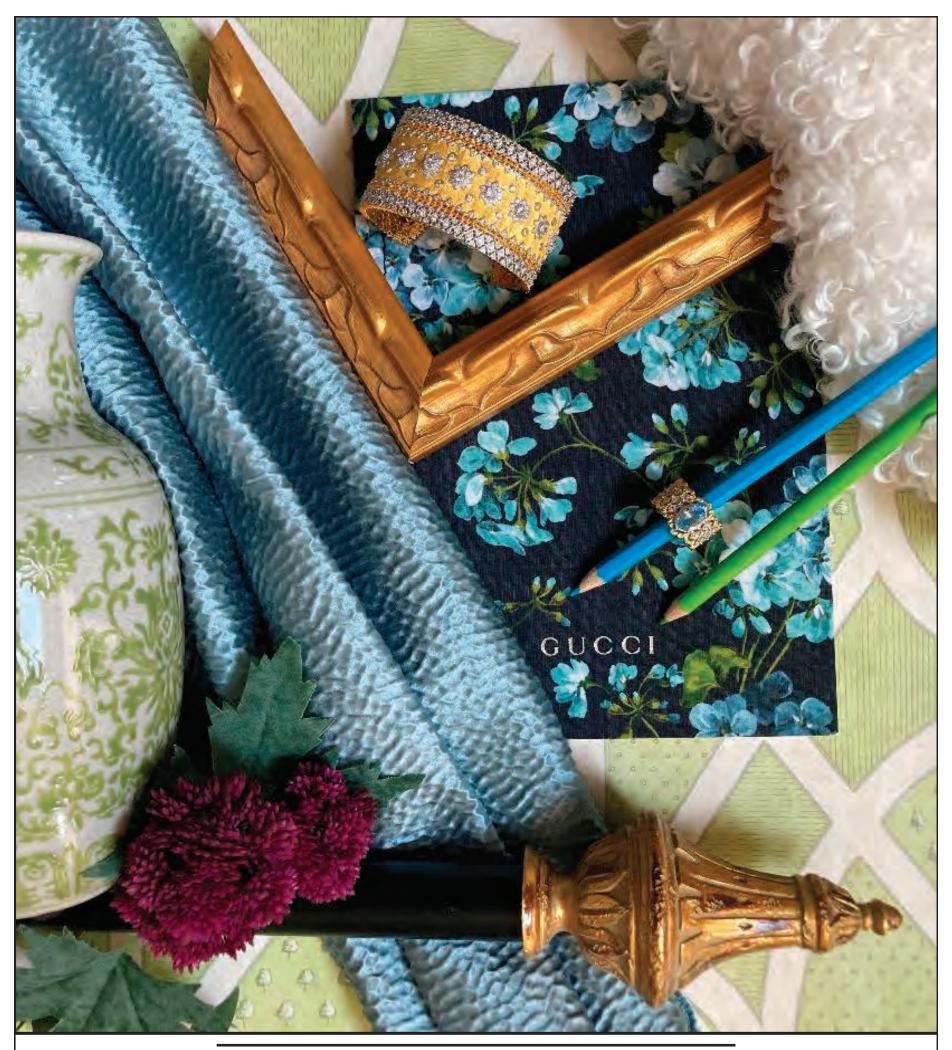

Discussion of the changes and a possible action item are expected to be on the agenda for board's next meeting Thursday, June 8.

AGENT PROFILES

GARY LEE, @ PROPERTIES

Families who choose to live in Hinsdale stay because of the schools, the walkability and what @ Properties real estate agent Gary Lee calls "an almost 1950s charm." But there's something else far less visible that's keeping homeowners not only in the village, but in their current homes.

"Currently 86 percent of residential mortgages are under 5 percent," he said, with about half of those at 3.5 percent or less. But new mortgages come with rates higher than 7 percent, which is causing homeowners to stay put.

"Many potential home sellers are 'rate locked' into their homes. (They're) unwilling to sell and lose that amazing mortgage rate," he said.

The result, said Lee, is a highly desirable area with very low inventory.

After graduating from University of Illinois and while spending nearly a decade as a trader in Chicago, Lee said he always knew his career in finance would eventually lead to real estate. He said his parents and grandparents owned properties and he saw firsthand the value of real estate as an investment. He finally made the move to full-time Realtor in 2014.

Lee said many Millennials are now seeing the value of home ownership, too. Once more interested in experiences than in creating a permanent home, buyers in their late 20s to early 40s are dominating the market, Lee said. Meanwhile, the generation known as the baby boomers are often choosing to stay put rather than downsize. That, along with rising interest rates, means buyers don't have a lot to choose from.

Lee said younger buyers often enter the market in search of a move-in-ready home that has everything they want. His job often is to help buyers see the potential in a property that might not look like their dream home at first glance.

"The land is what is special. That can't be replicated," Lee said, echoing the age-old real estate mantra of "location, location, location."

"It's absolutely true," he said. Sometimes, offering over asking price is a good move. Other times, it's not worth it. Lee said he helps buyers see the difference and weigh their options with facts and data when transactions become emotional.

While the real estate market in Hinsdale is short on homes, it's anything but short on real estate agents. Lee said his knowledge of Hinsdale sets him apart. A resident of Hinsdale since age 7, Lee has experienced the village as a child, a teen and now as a parent. Lee said he not only knows the personalities and nuances of every Hinsdale neighborhood, he also knows each surrounding town and what it can offer a buyer.

Not one for social media, Lee relies on mailers and personal relationships to make himself known.

"It's important to talk to people," he said, and to take time to listen.

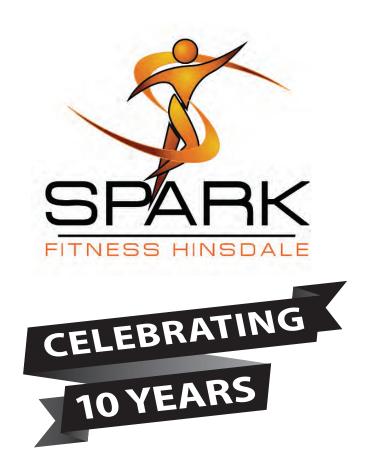

He points to dedication, time, work and commitment as the reasons for his success in a career he finds rewarding.

"Helping people find their home is massively satisfying," he said.

— by Sandy Illian Bosch

As a lifelong resident of Hinsdale, Realtor Gary Lee said he knows every corner of the village and can help new Hinsdaleans find just the right corner of town to call home. (Jim Slonoff photo)

Hinsdale honors fallen during Memorial Day procession, ceremony

Members of Hinsdale's American Legion Post 250 led the annual Memorial Day procession up Washington Street to the Memorial Building on Monday. Along the route hundreds cheered the vets, scouts and the Hinsdale Central marching band. Blake Burrows had a good spot in the shade along Washington to view the procession. On the grounds of the Memorial Building, Cub Scout Braxton Cirone observes the ceremony; later Eagle Scout Shreemann Patel from Troop 10 salutes during the call to colors. As the names of the honored dead were read, legion member Kevin Hall and post Cmdr. Jack Orbell placed a wreath at the Winged Victory statue inside the building. Gold star mom Chris Hotchkin gets some support from Preston Bokos as her son Army Specialist Gunnar Hotchkin's name was read. Hotchkin, who died during the Afghan War, was the 63rd Hinsdalean among the fallen, whose names are engraved on a plaque near the statue. (Jim Slonoff photos)

HOSPITAL EARNS 'A' FOR SAFETY

UChicago Medicine AdventHealth Hinsdale Hospital was awarded an "A" Hospital Safety Grade for the 10th consecutive year by The Leapfrog Group, a national nonprofit upholding the standard of patient safety in hospitals and ambulatory surgery centers. This accolade recognizes UCM AdventHealth hospitals in Hinsdale — and La Grange — as two of only 34 in the hospitals nationwide and six in the state of Illinois to be awarded an "A" in every hospital safety grade cycle since 2013, including this latest grade update, reflecting safety during the height of the pandemic.

"This recognition demonstrates our continued commitment to providing the highest level of safety to all of our patients," said UCM AdventHealth Hinsdale and La Grange CEO Adam Maycock. "It is a credit to our physicians, nurses and other health care professionals on our team who work tirelessly to provide our patients with the highest-quality care and do whatever they can to prevent infections and eliminate errors. We want to always keep you safe."

The Leapfrog Group assigns an a grade of "A" to "F" to all general hospitals across the country based on more than 30 national performance measures reflecting errors, accidents, injuries and infections, as well as systems hospitals have in place to prevent harm.

"We find with these newest Hospital Safety Grades that patient safety has suffered major setbacks nationally during the pandemic. But that's not the case at these two hospitals, which have earned straight 'A' grades for more than a decade," said Leah Binder, president and CEO of The Leapfrog Group. "That is an extraordinary accomplishment, particularly now, and shows a relentless determination to put patients first no matter what the circumstances. My congratulations for inspiring all Americans with your leadership against all the odds."

ZOO WHIRL GALA A SUCCESS

The 42nd annual Whirl hosted by the Chicago Zoological Society's Women's Board and Board of Trustees April 29 raised more than $1.6 million to benefit animal care and welfare initiatives, as well as the conservation and education programs of the Chicago Zoological Society. This year's theme — Gorillas in Our Midst — highlighted the new 2-acre outdoor habitat for Brookfield Zoo's western lowland gorillas, orangutans and other primates that is scheduled to open in 2025.

The fundraiser, which was attended by 525 corporate, civic and philanthropic leaders, was held at the Hilton Chicago.

The evening began with a cocktail hour and featured several of Brookfield Zoo's animal ambassadors, including a blue-throated macaw, a Linnaeus's two-toed sloth, a prehensile-tailed porcupine, a cape porcupine, a snake, a tamandua and a tarantula. Also, during cocktails, guests were able to view a detailed architectural model of the new outdoor primate habitat.

A three-course dinner followed in the Grand Ballroom, which was spectacularly decorated by Phillip's Flowers. While dinner was being served, several more animal ambassadors took center stage, including the zoo's popular Humboldt penguins. The evening also featured a paddle raise, raffle drawing and a live auction. Dinner was followed by dancing to the music of the Ken Arlen Evolution Orchestra.

Fine Arts Festival turns 50

One of the season's most visible events returns to downtown this weekend

By Ken Knutson

kknutson@thehinsdalean.com

The Hinsdale Fine Arts Festival is an event for the family to enjoy — and an exhibition where even the artists are family.

Among the 85 participating artists at this year's milestone 50th annual fest Saturday and Sunday, June 3-4, in Burlington Park, 30 E. Chicago Ave., are brother and sister Scott and Teri Causey.

Teri, an abstract painter, was the first sibling to present at the show, debuting last June.

"A friend of mine had told me about it the year before, saying, 'I think you would do well there,' " she related from her home in Mississippi.

That proved to be true, as Teri was awarded the Best Newcomer award. And her work graces this year's promotional material.

"I was really surprised about that. It's quite a honor," she remarked of the featured floral piece. "I think it's the right clientele. It's an easy show to do, in a great neighborhood with a great downtown."

So impressed was Teri by Hinsdale's set-up that she recommended it to her brother Scott, a ceramic sculptor based in Florida. He'll have his first booth in Burlington Park this weekend, although he expects to see some familiar faces.

"When you go to a show for the first time, it's always interesting to run into people that I've seen down here in Florida who are now back where they live in the summer months," Scott said. "There some collectors of my pieces who live there in Hinsdale but are part-time Florida residents."

Just as rewarding, he continued, is meeting those seeing his striking sculptures of animals for the first time. Each brightly glazed figure, first constructed then broken into pieces, which are glazed separately and fired before being reconstructed, takes nearly a month to complete.

"It's quite a long process — I think there are over 28 different steps to it," he said. "I use gold and platinum and mother of pearl and really bright glazes. I try to create something that most people haven't seen before."

Scott said animals are what he is known for, adding that he has a lot of repeat business.

"Nobody just buys one. They usually get several," he said. "The biggest thing for me is just keeping up with inventory. When a piece gets sold, it takes me three weeks to replace it."

The festival, presented by the Hinsdale Chamber of Commerce, is one of the village's cultural highlights of the year. Food vendors will be available on the west end of Chicago Avenue. And a face painter will be on hand from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday in celebration of the fest's 50th year, according to Amanda Wagner, the chamber's marketing director.

Siblings Teri and Scott Causey will be showcasing their creations with the nearly seven dozen artists participating in Hinsdale's Fine Arts Festival this weekend. Teri's vibrant abstract paintings and Scott's striking animal sculptures will give visitors a feast for their eyes. (photos provided)

"We thought it would be fun for families to have this out there," she Tesla Motors will be on site all day Sunday as well.

Teri said she started out as an interior designer before following her passion for creating her vibrant works.

"I just try to make an impression with color and not go overboard on the design," she said. "As an artist you can do more of what you want to do rather than what someone else wants you to do."

Scott, who studied at the Ringling College of Art and Design in Sarasota, said his love for animal imagery dates back to his youth. He takes credit for convincing his sister to pursue painting, while he owes her a debt for leading him to art shows in addition to gallery exhibits.

"It's so much better when you actually get to meet your customers. You're out there getting to know the person who's collecting your work, and they're getting know who you are. It's a firsthand experience," Scott shared.

The fine arts festival runs from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the park at 30 E. Chicago Ave. Visit www.hinsdale-chamber.com/fine-arts for more information.

Mary and Bill are a fantastic duo! They are well-informed of market prices, are diligent about follow-up, and provide (and support) recommendations for showing improvements.

They've assisted us and many of our family members with buying/selling properties over the years. We highly recommend them and know that they'll bring their best A-game when servicing their clients. They're unlike any other realtors we've worked with in the past and beyond all of this, they're wonderful people who care about people!

- Mailee, Hinsdale/Chicago

We worked with Mary and Bill to sell out house and to buy our next home. While many people have told me it is a tough process, Mary and Bill made it pleasant and seamless. We recommend them to everyone and anyone who wants prompt, professional, and personal service. They truly want what is best for their clients and it shows with how great they care for you. They really are the best.

They respond to every need and they do it first class all the way.

- Tom, Western Springs

Working with Mary was a dream! Her knowledge of the housing market, combined with her decisive and professional manner, are evident in working hard to give her clients the very best sale. We loved her transparency throughout the process and completely trusted her with our largest investment!

I can't recommend her enough!

Fellow Hinsdalean and Benet sophomore Patrick Burke also competed and placed in the top 12. The three helped the Redwings capture state runner-up honors.

Boys track takes fourth

The Hinsdale Central boys track team earned three first-place finishes and came in tied for fourth at the state finals May 25-27 at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston.

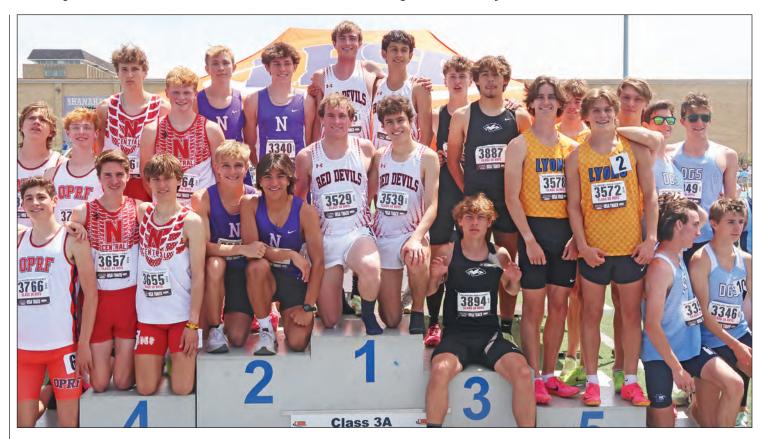

Senior Dan Watcke won the 800-meter race and was part of the 4x800-meter relay that also captured first. His performance was outstanding, varsity coach Jim Westphal said.

"He's an athlete who in those pressure situations always steps up," Westphal remarked. "Ending his career in that fashion just speaks to his legacy of performing at a very high level. Pretty remarkable as you think about his career."

Watcke, who won the 800 at state as a sophomore and then came in second as a junior, had a burning desire to improve on last year's performance.

"It was good to finally get back on top. It felt good to win it for sure," he said.

Seniors Michael Skora, Grant Miller, Kyle Doorhy and Watcke were motivated to win in the 4x800-meter relay after their teammates in the 4x400 had a baton exchange mishap in the preliminaries. Another team's interference was cited as the cause by Central but not by meet officials, and the team didn't make it to the finals.

"It was disappointing, but I think the team used it as motivation to try to get as many points as we could on Saturday with the events we made it in. It actually motivated me to try to win those two events," Watcke said.

Westphal said the athletes handled the situation really

"They were certainly disappointed, absolutely, as one would be in that situation," he said. "They processed it that evening, but after that they just put it behind them and went in Saturday focusing on what they could do and what they needed to do. They demonstrated some great maturity and resolve.

The seniors also were facing the pressure of being the team to beat as returning state champs

"Our guys, every one of them responded just admirably, from Michael leading off putting us in a good position to Grant Miller keeping us in that position. Kyle Doorhy ran great and Dan Watcke, your star anchor, for the win. It was pretty remarkable and a lot of fun," Westphal related.

Junior Aden Bandukwala earned two medals at the meet, placing first in the 1,600meter race and third in the 3,200 meters.

"He ran extremely tough in the two miles to get third place in that event. It's a very tough double for a weekend to run the two (mile) and the one (mile). That's a big ask," Westphal said.

Bandukwala had a tough start on his second race.

"He was way out of it with a lap to go," his coach said. "I thought he was going to get last place. His final lap was remarkable, how he closed and finished and won the event. It was very, very exciting. It was thrilling.

"He said, 'Coach, I was tired. My legs were dead.' They were for three of the four laps and something clicked and he put on the jets and it was game over," Westphal continued. "It was pretty remarkable — one of the best finishes I've ever seen."

While the team had hoped to bring home a trophy, Westphal said he is happy with the team's 37 points and fourth-place finish.

"We do not take fourth place for granted," he said. "That's a remarkable achievement. We know that those guys laid it on the line and had a great weekend. As coaches, you couldn't be happier for them."

Central tennis still dominates at state

Team effort leads to fourth title since 2018; boys track earns three wins, fourth place

By Pamela Lannom

plannom@thehinsdalean.com

They've done it again.

The Hinsdale Central boys tennis team won the state title Saturday for the fourth time in five years and 28th time in history.

The team earned 36 points to handily beat New Trier (30 points) and Fremd (29 points) for the Class 2A championship at the state final Thursday to Saturday, May 25-27, at Palatine High School.

"We always try to be optimistic," varsity coach John Naisbitt said.
"We knew we were going to be in a close tournament. We really did. We played New Trier early in the year and they got us pretty good. We played Fremd at their place, and Fremd won three of the four state positions.

"We went into it saying we have to play our best tennis of the year, our best tournament, and we did. We played better than our rivals and we got the championship because of it."

Central managed to win state without capturing any first-place finishes, which is not atypical, Naisbitt said.

"While it's helpful to have a title — it really is helpful — it's not mandatory. We've done this before and so have other teams," he said.

No. 1 singles player Alex Kotarski, a junior, earned the highest finish by placing second, winning his first five matches before falling to Fremd's Andrew Spurck in the final. He earned 12 points for the team.

"His second-place finish was instrumental in getting us enough points to win state," Naisbitt coach said.

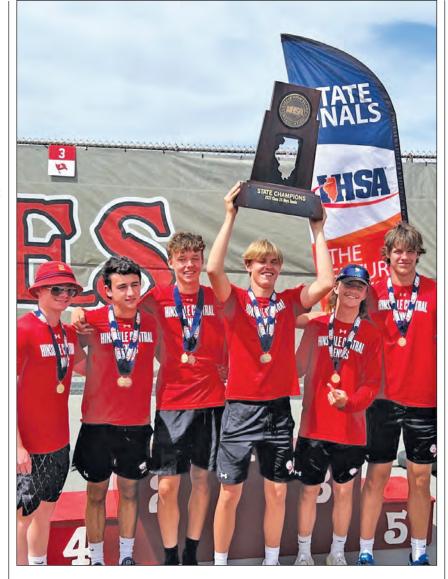

Kotarski said the highlight of the tournament was beating Hersey's Mitch Sheldon in the semi-finals.

"I had lost to him pretty badly about a month ago," Kotarski said. "Finding out that win had clinched us the team title was huge."

Kotarski was riding that high when he went into his final match.

"Obviously I wanted to win, but was just happy and ready to compete," he said.

The No. 1 doubles team of Nathan Hernandez and Bodie Teuscher came in third, earning 11 points.

The Hinsdale Central boys tennis team celebrates its decisive victory at the state meet May 25-27 in Palatine. "We're certainly not feeling less than because we don't have an individual title because our goal is team championship, period," coach John Naisbitt said. (photo courtesy of John Naisbitt)

Naisbitt said the duo did an excellent job.

"They are sophomores who had not been to state," he said. "They are inexperienced at state, but they are tournament players and they had a great tournament coming in third."

Hernandez said he and his teammate started out confident and strong.

"We were just playing better and better," he said. "The momentum was just kind of stacking up."

Then it was time for the semifinal match against New Trier's Chris Ackerman and Stan Okesson, who ended up placing second.

"I was playing a kid I've known my entire life (Ackerman) and we've been going back and forth for a while," Hernandez said. "It was just a lot of pressure and a lot of new things we had to do in order to beat them and we didn't really catch onto it in time. They had a completely different style of doubles than what we were used to."

After the loss, the two had to regroup to play for third place. Hernandez's older brother Noah, who placed second in singles at state last year, offered some much-needed encouragement.

"I'd say in the beginning it was pretty hard to move on from the loss," Hernandez said. "We lost the first set 6-4. I was talking to my brother Noah on the sidelines. He told me to bring the energy up and this matters, third place matters, so we just brought the energy up on the second and the third set."

Teuscher said the tournament was nerve-wracking but as it went on, he acclimated better to the pressure.

"Especially that last match, I felt like once I had enough confidence, I played a lot better," he commented.

He agreed with Hernandez that playing for third place was challenging, especially with the championship match taking place on the very next court. But he didn't want to finish fourth.

"I think there's such a big difference between third and fourth place," he said.

Also competing for Central was Winston Stangle, who earned 6 points in singles, and the doubles team of James Theriault and Aidan Hernandez, who earned 7 points. Their contributions made a difference, Naisbitt said.

"If you're not going to have one or two individual titles, you need to have a whole team effort, and that's absolutely what we did and what we preached all year," he said.

Assistant coaches Bill and Peter Alex, a father-son team, were critical in the effort, Naisbitt said.

"They're brilliant and they just did a great job of managing and helping and coaching," he said. "We wouldn't be here without Bill and Peter Alex."

• Hugh Davis from Hinsdale, a sophomore at Benet Academy, and his partner, Zach Bobofchak of Naperville, won the 1A state doubles title Saturday, beating Jake Goldstein and Mark Tismensky of the Latin School of Chicago in the championship match and earning 14 of the team's 20 points.

"Winning it all was just a surreal moment," Davis texted The Hinsdalean. "Seeing the last ball drop out and the satisfaction of winning it on the first match point was amazing. It is what we worked hard for all season and what our goal was from the very beginning.

"It is also cool that we are the first state champions in Benet's boys tennis history, so to do that was just special and a moment we will never
