D86 debates saving texts for FOIAs

By Ken Knutson

kknutson@thehinsdalean.com

The Hinsdale High School District 86 Board members last week discussed text messages as public records under the state's Freedom of Information Act and how best to preserve them.

"What's the most efficient solution that we can have to make sure that everything is compliant (and) protected, and we're being as responsive as we can and conservative in our practice?" board President Eric Held asked at the Sept. 22 meeting.

Under district policy, electronic communications are among those that must be preserved when they pertain to "the transaction of public business."

But Held said there is "a gray area" under FOIA, citing texts between district staff members or a staff member and a vendor as examples of unclarity.

"When are those to be considered — going back to that definition — of pertaining to the transaction of public business?" Held posed.

But board member Debbie Levinthal asserted that the criteria for saving texts as public records is already outlined by board policy and that both board members and staff are responsible for adhering to those procedures.

"I don't really think it's ambiguous. If it deals with the operations of the school district, it should be retained," she said. "I think the expectation needs to be set that text messages are not going to be deleted."

Board member Jeff Waters agreed that the rules are already in place.

"I don't think we need a policy change," he said. "This is the law."

The discussion came in response to criticism from some community members that text messages were omitted from the material provided pursuant to FOIA requests for public records regarding controversial developments last year around the district's efforts to hire an equity consultant.

"Were text messages responsive to any of these important FOIAs of public concern deleted?" resident Yvonne Mayer asked the board during public comment. "And if so, when? Why? And what are you going to do about it?"

Held said texts have been provided in response to past FOIA requests and floated the idea of purchasing an app to capture texts at a cost of $5,000 to $30,000.

Board member Terri Walker suggested the district buy phones for staff and board members to use exclusively for district business.

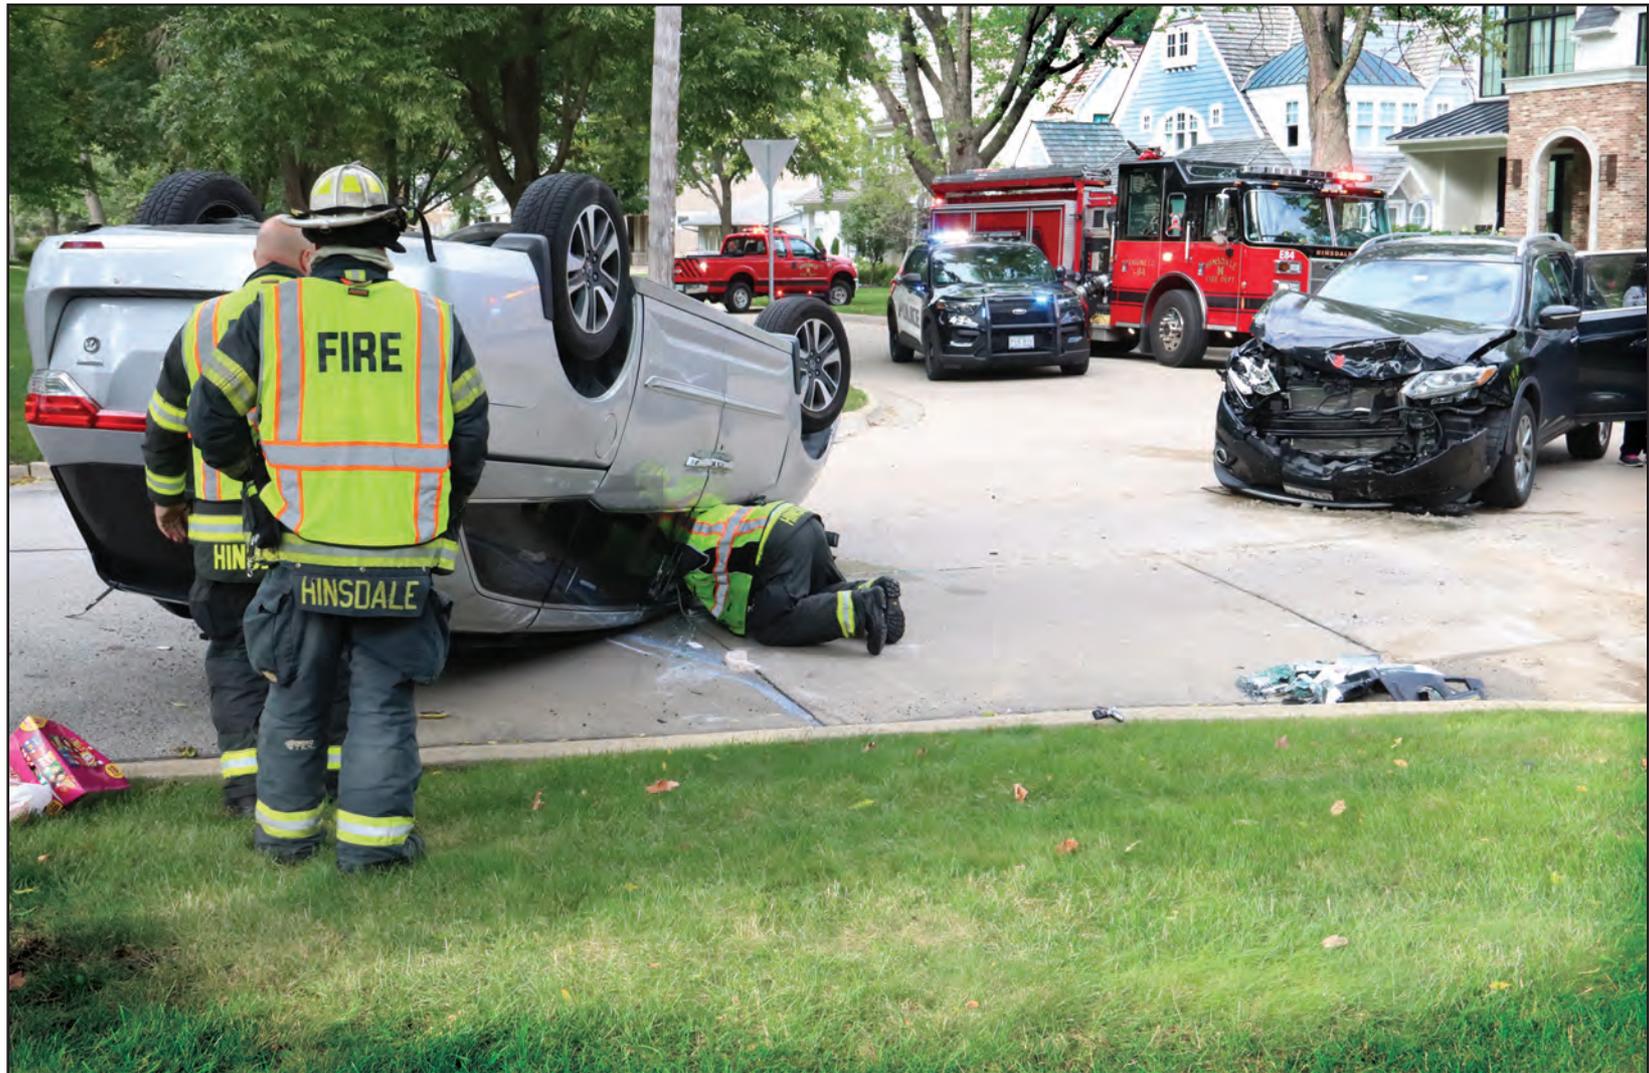

Held responded that would come at "a huge cost."

Held said board committees would take up the matter at their October meeting and provide recommendations for board consideration.

Board member Peggy James asked what should be done in the interim.

"Until then, it's still an individual's decision that they're making based on their knowledge of public records," he said. "That's how it's going to be until we have additional parameters."

Crash flips car on its roof at Fourth and Bodin

Hinsdale police and firefighters responded to the scene of a two-vehicle crash Monday afternoon at Fourth and Bodin Streets. Firefighters remained on the scene until the car was flipped right-side-up by a tow truck operator and to clean up debris. The intersection has yield signs on north- and south-bound Bodin. The driver of the black Nissan was cited for failing to yield at a yield intersection, police said. No injuries were reported. (Jim Slonoff photo)

Officials: SAFE-T Act not about safety

Police chief, state's attorney among critics who say law protects criminals, not public

By Pamela Lannom
plannom@thehinsdalean.com

The Safety Accountability, Fairness and Equity-Today act, which goes into effect Jan. 1, has an inaccurate acronym, in Hinsdale Police Chief Brian King's opinion.

"I think the name SAFE-T Act is a complete misnomer," King said. "It's reform legislation for criminal justice."

Some provisions in the law, such as the requirement that officers wear body cameras, have been beneficial to the community and law enforcement, King said.

"There are also parts of that legislation that are deeply problematic from a public safety standpoint," he added.

The Hinsdalean talked to King following a presentation from Bob Berlin, DuPage County state's attorney, at the Sept. 20 Hinsdale Village Board meeting. He was invited there by Village President Tom Cauley to address the act.

The legislation also was the topic of a discussion hosted by state Rep. Deanne Mazzochi (R-47, Elmhurst) and DuPage County Sheriff Jim Mendrick Monday at the Hinsdale Public Library.

This story addresses concerns raised during the interview with King and at both public meetings.

Citations, not arrests

Berlin first addressed the act's directive that police "shall issue a citation," for Class B and C misdemeanors, which includes trespassing. That means police can no longer arrest someone for trespassing unless they present an obvious threat or have a mental health issue.

Berlin offered the example of someone who is having a drink at a restaurant and refuses to leave at closing time.

"Are they an obvious threat to the community? Probably not," he said.

"There's going to be lawsuit after lawsuit and your municipalities are going to be responsible for the bills."

Deanne Mazzochi

"The police then cannot make a custodial arrest in that situation."

Mendrick offered several examples as well, from a person who is looking for a warm place to sleep at a grocery store or refuses to leave the local library at closing time. All law enforcement can do is write a ticket, he said.

"It will be up to the library staff to remove the person," Mendrick said.

"Everyone says it can't be true because it's so preposterous. It is that preposterous and its also true," he said.

Mendrick said he's also concerned about people taking the law into their own hands if someone is trespassing in their back yard.

"Well, I'll just shoot them," he said he's heard people say. "When I hear that response, I start to get nervous."

No more cash bail

Another provision calls for the elimination of cash bail for many crimes, including several felonies, unless the individual poses a threat to a specific, identifiable person or is a flight risk.

Both will be difficult to prove, Berlin said. Not showing up in court for previous cases will not be considered evidence of a flight risk.

"The only way that we're going to detain people in these cases to show

"By doing that, we'll have the right people detained, the people who are a threat, the people who are dangerous."

Bob Berlin

willful flight risk is to show they have a plane ticket to get out of town or if they made a statement to police saying, 'If I get out, I'm going to flee the country,' " he said.

Berlin said no one believes suspects should be detained solely because they can't post bond, but judges need more discretion to determine who is a danger and should be detained.

"That's what we're asking for — to give judges discretion," Berlin said. "By doing that, we'll have the right people detained, the people who are a threat, the people who are dangerous."

Mendrick has another issue with limiting the individuals who are detained pretrial. The many suspects who come in high on drugs or alcohol will not go through detox or be evaluated by the correctional facility's psychiatric staff.

"I'll be turning them away in a process so quickly, they'll still be on the substance when I put them back on the streets," he said.

Cauley, who noted crime is driving some corporations from Chicago, said the bill will have a direct impact in the region and in the village.

"We're going to see more (criminals) on the streets, more businesses leaving Chicago, more crime in Hinsdale," he said.

Jim Mendrick

Electronic monitoring

Another provision that troubles King allows individuals who have been sentenced to electronic monitoring to be absent without permission from that monitoring for up to 48 hours.

He brought up the robbery at the Verizon store earlier this summer, where one of the individuals involved was on a home monitoring bracelet from Cook County.

Police did apprehend the individual and recover the property. Had police received a call about the suspect wearing a ski mask near the property — which one man witnessed but did not immediately notify police about — they would not have been able to arrest the suspect for violating his home monitoring.

"It defies logic," King said. "The provisions of the SAFE-T act give you two days off a week to do whatever you want."

King also noted that one of the three suspects apprehended by Hinsdale police earlier this month in the shooting of a 12-year-old boy in Chicago was out on bond for two Class X felo-

"It defies logic. The provisions of the SAFE-T act give you two days off a week to do whatever you want."

Brian King

nies in Cook County.

"This cycle of taking violent, armed individuals and putting them back on the street creates a public safety issue for everybody," he said.

Mazzochi also spoke to the issue of repeat offenders, particularly involving violent crime.

"This is a very clear philosophy of not locking up people who have committed crimes," she said.

Warrants vs. summons

Right now if someone doesn't show up for court without an explanation, the state's attorney can get a warrant to have the individual arrested. Under the SAFE-T Act, a summons would be issued prior to an arrest warrant. When police serve a warrant in Chicago, they get support from the Chicago police, Berlin said. That won't be the case with a summons.

"These suburban police officers are not going to be going into areas of Chicago to try to serve a summons on violent crime," Berlin said. "It's not safe. They don't have the manpower to do it."

Financial implications

One of the themes at Monday's discussion at the Hinsdale Public Library was the financial burden the act and its ramifications will have on taxpayers.

New limits on how much force an officer can use during an arrest could lead to suspects later suing police departments.

"There's going to be lawsuit after lawsuit and your municipalities are going to be responsible for the bills," Mazzochi said. "All of this is going to have very real downstream costs."

The law's requirement that bond court be open every day, including weekends and holidays, also will carry

MEETING ROUNDUP

Hinsdale High School District 86

Among other business Sept. 22, board members:

- adopted the budget for fiscal year 2022-23 following a public hearing. The board approved an operational spending plan of $129.3 million against projected revenues of $129.4 million,
- approved a memorandum of understanding with the Hinsdale Township High School Support Staff Association regarding the creation and implementation of a retention bonus for the 2022-23 school year. This bonus, from a pool capped at $210,000, is available to paraprofessionals who are assigned to work in special education, was implemented in an effort to retain workers, who have been hard to recruit for the district amidst a widespread shortage in the field.
- approved the School Maintenance Grant Program for the upcoming fiscal year which, together with matching funds, will be used to pilot the Evolv weapons detection system at Hinsdale Central and Hinsdale South.
- discussed the district's earned honors credit pilot following audience comments expressing concern that credit for the four courses that are part of the pilot will not be awarded until the end of first semester, thereby negatively impacting seniors' transcripts submitted as part of the college application process. Chris Covino, assistant superintendent for academics, said this concern prompted the district to add a sentence to the comment box of the transcript alerting admissions departments of the courses that can be taken for the honors credit. Additional steps are also being considered.

Correction

Douglas Newby, Hinsdale Central Hall of Fame 2022 inductee, created the Dallas Restoration House of the Year Award, the first residential restoration house of the year award in the country. An article in the Sept. 22 issue incorrectly said he received the award.

Father, husband lived his life with joy

Family, friends, golf, scuba diving were among the things Tom McCleary loved the most

By Pamela Lannom
plannom@thehinsdalean.com

■ IN MEMORIAM

Don't live with regrets.
Be nice to people.
Do it today, not tomorrow.
Don't stop learning.
These are some of the tips for living a good life that Tom McCleary passed along to his kids just days before he died March 12 at the age of 63.

"He just rattled off all these things about how to get a good life," his wife, Megan McCleary said. "My son had typed them up in his phone in his notes."

He shared the advice shortly after learning there was nothing else doctors could do to treat the Stage 4 lung cancer he had been diagnosed with in May 2021. He died just three days after hearing the news.

Megan emphasized he was not a smoker.

"I feel like there is less empathy, sadly, for lung cancer because people think you bring it on yourself, which is wrong," she said.

The directives Tom shared with his children, and which were printed on the back page of the program for his funeral service, were not just empty phrases. They were the guideposts of his own life.

"He was different than anyone else I dated," said Megan, who met Tom on a blind date and described him as the man of her dreams. "He was always kind. He was smart. He was always positive, optimistic and he never wasted any time. Whether it be scuba diving or golfing, he was a liver and lover of life."

The two married in July 1997 and over the next few years would become parents to Sean and Anna, now 21 and 19. Tom took the same passion he had for life and for his wife into his role as a father.

"He was so excited and so proud of our kids and everything that they did, and yet he wanted them to do what they wanted," Megan said.

Sean said his dad always encouraged him and his sister, no matter where their interests led them.

"Unlike anybody else, he did not have an agenda at all — at all," Sean said. "He just wanted us to be successful and happy."

After the cancer diagnosis, the optimism that had been a hallmark of his personality became even more important. He never let his cancer get him down, Megan said.

Three weeks before he died he was able to travel to Florida to play golf with a group of friends. He got a hole in one — just as he had the week before receiving the grim news. "His cancer was bracketed by holes in one and we both feel like it was a sprinkling from God," Megan said.

Tom's love of golf was eclipsed only by his love of scuba diving.

"As much as he loves golf, when he goes to a place you can scuba dive, he tables golf," Megan said.

Sean, a senior at Indiana University, said diving was their favorite shared activity and estimated the two had

Along with the advice Tom McCleary gave his children just days before he died was a statement about what was most important in his life: "The best thing I did was have a family, one family, when I was ready." Tom was married to Megan and the proud father of Sean and Anna. "We were still madly in love after 25 years," Megan said. (photo provided) done 60 dives together. Any troubles on land or on the boat traveling to the site evaporate, Sean noted.

"Once you get underwater, you don't feel the weight (of your gear) anymore. You can't talk. Your mom can't tell you what to do. Your dad can't tell you what to do."

"It's just silent," he continued. "All you can do is look at how beautiful everything is."

His favorite diving trip was to the Galapagos Islands to celebrate his high school graduation.

"It was just spectacular," Sean said.

As he and other seniors at Indiana University prepare for life after college, Sean has realized just how much great advice his dad has given him about networking, preparing for interviews and so many other topics.

"I've got a lot to share and it's straight out of my dad's mind," Sean said. "It's something he ingrained in me."

Tom was a man who was always learning and sharing knowledge with others, neighborhood friend Lee Matricaria said. Tom also was someone who wanted to be part of the process, Matricaria noted, pointing to his work as a board member and mentor with Greenhouse Scholars.

"It's easy for us all to write a check and go that route when you support an organization," he said. "Tom took that to the next level and got involved."

"To me, when you show up and you roll up your sleeves and you're involved, that speaks to character and who you are," he added.

A memorial bench honoring Tom now sits in Burns Field, thanks to the many people in the neighborhood who cared about him, Matricaria said.

"He had friends of all ages. He was deeply loved," he said.

At a memorial golf outing Tom's friends organized this summer at Chicago Highlands Club in Westchester — where Tom was like the mayor, Megan said — person after person shared stories of Tom's kindness.

"He had a great job. He had a great career," Megan said. "That's not his story. His story is the kind of person he was and how he made people feel. He made people feel they were important and special and he cared about them. And he really did."

POLICE BEAT

Hinsdale police distributed the following reports Sept. 20 and 27.

Home burglarized

A house in the 800 block of Justina Street was forcibly entered, and a closet and bedroom dresser drawers inside were ransacked between 11:33 and 11:47 a.m. Sept. 20. A surveillance camera was taken from the house.

Dog bite reported

A person was bitten in the thigh by a dog while walking on the street at 7 p.m. Sept. 21 at 57th Street and County Line Road. The dog was on a leash and the owner continued walking away.

Identity thefts

- Someone used the identity of a resident of the 100 block of West North Street to open a telephone account and accrue a balance of $2,092. The victim contacted police Sept. 16.

- The identify of a resident of the 800 block of South Clay Street was used to open a cellular phone account and charge $178.43 on Sept. 8. The incident was reported Sept. 20.

- A bank account belonging to a resident of the 1200 block of Hawthorne Lane was accessed in an attempt to transfer money and request new cards between Sept. 17 and 21. The suspect also accessed the victim's email account and attempted to solicit money from the victim's contacts. No dollar loss was reported.

- A bank account was opened using the identity of a victim Aug. 25 at Hinsdale Bank & Trust, 25 E. First St. The incident was reported Sept. 23.

Property damage

Someone threw eggs at the front door of a home in the 5500 block of South Washington Street Sept. 17.

Arrests do not constitute conviction of a crime, and individuals listed here should be presumed innocent until proven guilty. If charges are dismissed or reduced or the accused is found not guilty, he or she can contact The Hinsdalean at news@thehinsdalean.com to provide us with documentation. Information will be updated online and in the next issue of the paper.

Central closes campus for potential threat

Hinsdale police were called to Hinsdale Central High School Wednesday after graffiti was discovered in one of the bathrooms that morning.

"It presented no credible threat, in the police department's opinion," Chief Brian King told The Hinsdalean. "The school asked for additional police officers to be assigned to the building throughout the rest of the day."

A email sent to parents (and shared with The Hinsdalean) from Central Principal Bill Walsh indicated a student alerted administrators to a "potential threat" written on a bathroom stall.

Administrators closed the campus for the day and performed a "controlled dismissal" of students in small groups starting at about 2:30 p.m.

"We understand and appreciate that some families may be anxious or upset that we are not permitting students to leave the building prior to the end of the day," Walsh wrote in the email. "However, after consulting with security and law enforcement, we are taking these steps referenced above out of an abundance of caution, and believe they are necessary for keeping everyone safe."

Officers were out of the building by 3 p.m., King said.

Career, volunteer jobs equip woman to open business

Kathleen Hanley's transition from working professional to mom also marked the start of her journey into a brand new career.

"After my third child, I worked part time," said Hanley, who spent 15 years researching and developing hospital products after earning a degree in biomedical engineering from Marquette University. As she stepped away from full-time work, Hanley said she found herself getting more involved with her community. A resident of Glen Ellyn at the time, she served on the village plan commission.

"When we moved to Hinsdale I served on the committee for the 2025 vision," Hanley said, as well as on the Madison School Parent Teacher Organization, including two years as president.

"I've always volunteered," Hanley said.

Through her volunteer efforts, she learned the ins and outs of raising money and awareness of the needs of nonprofits. She said a successful campaign to bring smart boards into the classrooms at Madison School moved her to put her years of experience to work by launching Kathleen Hanley Consulting in 2018.

"Through that I work and I actually volunteer," said Hanley.

The scope of the work determines whether she charges an organization or performs the work as a volunteer.

After helping the Oak Park-based Pro Bono Network as a paid consultant, she was hired by the organization in early 2022. As development associate, Hanley creates and executes fundraising events such as Celebrating Justice. Featuring dueling pianos, the event was held in River Forest in June.

Pro Bono Network consists of 425 volunteer attorneys who provide legal services to people in Cook and DuPage counties who cannot afford to hire a lawyer.

"There are so many people out there that need help," Hanley said.

In some instances, the help that's needed is simple but crucial to the person's well-being. Hanley shared a story about a woman whose food from Meals on Wheels couldn't be delivered because of a broken doorbell her landlord refused to fix.

"One of our attorneys stepped in and contacted the landlord," Hanley said, and the problem was soon solved.

Other cases are more complicated.

"There are people who are abused and they can't get away without some legal help."

Pro Bono Network lawyers help with restraining orders, orders of protection, immigration issues, divorce proceedings, social security benefits, senior care and more. Low-income clients include families, seniors, veterans, those with disabilities, people who are or were incarcerated and others.

A lifelong animal lover, Hanley also helps the Hinsdale Humane Society with its fundraising efforts. Among other things, she helps organize and run the annual Heidi Gebauer Memorial Golf Outing.

"Animals can change people's lives," she said, and she is proud to help make life-changing relationships happen.

Work in medical product development might seem far from her work in nonprofit development, but Hanley said both come down to finding solutions to a problem. And whether it's reaching out for donations or planning a gala event, Hanley said solving problems within her community is what she loves to do.

Talking about suicide is key to prevention

Students at Hinsdale Central High School might have noticed some interesting things this week.

Footprints placed in the hallway led to the school's new student services area, where teens can learn more about depression and how to get help in times of crisis.

"Lighthouses" placed throughout the school identified people who are serving as a "Beacon of Hope" to help someone in need.

On Monday, students were reminded during daily announcements of the number 988, the new Suicide & Crisis Lifeline, to contact for help with mental health, substance use and/or suicidal thoughts or plans.

The announcements encouraged students to help break the stigma surrounding mental health.

We commend the school for its efforts to recognize Suicide Prevention Awareness Month.

Almost one in five high school students reports serious thoughts about suicide and almost one in 10 reports a suicide attempt, according to the website for NAMI, the National Alliance on Mental Illness.

The rate of death by suicide among 15- to 24-year-olds in 2019 was about 14 per 100,000 people, slightly more than one suicide for every 10,000 people in the age group, NAMI reported.

Common risk factors include a family history of suicide, a history of mental health conditions, substance misuse, social isolation and a history of traumatic experiences. People who are at more acute risk might talk about life not being worth living, express feelings of hopelessness or start saying goodbye. They also might be researching ways to die.

The good news is there are factors that can help protect others against suicidal ideation or behavior. Those who have effective coping and problem-solving skills, strong social and family connections, access to quality mental health care, support from religious or social communities and lack of access to means of self-harm are less likely to engage in these behaviors.

Helping to provide that support is where local agencies and schools — like Hinsdale Central — come in. Hinsdale is fortunate to have more than one option.

The Community House counseling center offers support for a range of issues, including depression, anxiety and trauma. The nonprofit helps support these services with its annual fundraiser, Walk the Walk for Mental Health, which also raises awareness in the community about the need for good mental health.

Teens and adults 18 and older can visit The Living Room in La Grange if they are feeling scared, anxious, angry, sad or just need someone to talk to. The Living Room is a safe place that offers trained peer recovery support free of charge from noon to 8 p.m. 365 days a year. The Living Room is managed by NAMI Metro Suburban in partnership with Pillars Community Health and Healthcare Alternative Systems, with funding from Community Memorial Foundation.

Plans are in the works to start construction on a new Living Room in a nearby suburb to serve younger teens.

In addition to the new 988 number, the Crisis Text Line at 741741 is still a free, confidential option available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, for those who would like to begin a text conversation with a trained crisis counselor.

Community Memorial Foundation also created a Youth Suicide Prevention PSA that can be viewed on its website at <https://www.cmfdn.org/mentalhealth>.

"There is hope. There is help," the PSA states, with the hashstag #letstalkaboutit.

Suicide Prevention Awareness Month ends tomorrow, but the conversation around suicide prevention must not.

Daily Herald wrong target for 'newspaper' critics

So let me get this straight.

A group called Local Government Information Services — linked to conservative Republican Dan Proft — decides to print what is essentially campaign advertisements disguised as a newspaper. The Daily Herald in Arlington Heights, whose press does commercial jobs in addition to printing its own paper, prints the piece. And now the Daily Herald and its owner, Paddock Publications, are the bad guys?

What?

Let me be clear. I am not a fan of what I would consider to be a true example of "fake news." But I don't think the company that printed it should be first on the list of those we blame.

I fear I might stand alone in this opinion.

Crain's Chicago Business ran an editorial Monday, saying that printing these "newspapers" and distributing them using a postage permit registered to Paddock makes the Daily Herald responsible for what they say.

"Actually, producing and apparently providing postage for this stuff is pretty much the definition of promoting this message," the editorial states.

I don't know the legalities of how a postal permit can be used, seeing as we don't have one, but I can guarantee you Paddock charged for the printing — and the distribution. This was a paid commercial printing job. Nothing more, nothing less.

Printing a single newspaper — even if it's published seven days a week — doesn't generate enough money to keep a printing press running. Our printer publishes more than 100 different publications each week.

Do they evaluate the content of each of these to make sure their clients are practicing sound journalism? Of course not. And I don't know how they'd check the ones that are printed in other languages, unless they hired a team of translators.

The Illinois Times went after the Daily Herald, too, saying the paper "lost an incalculable amount of respect for its integrity that it may never regain because of its active participation in a tsunami of viral disinformation during dangerous times."

Besides being overwritten, that statement is ridiculous in my opinion. A prime example of cancel culture — do something we don't like once and we will despise you for eternity.

Here's my question — why isn't anyone writing an editorial about the folks who put this fake newspaper together? Why aren't writers blasting them for trying to trick readers into believing they contained actual news?

And why aren't we more upset that this tactic is believed to be effective? Why aren't we more concerned that so many have forgotten what real news actually is? Instead of slamming the Daily Herald, why aren't other papers calling for more news literacy programs to help teach students how to know if what they're reading is actual news or something else?

I'd love to say that if Jim Slonoff and I owned a printing press and were approached about printing these publications, we would turn them down without hesitation. I also know that if the revenue would boost our bottom line during a tough year, we might not be able to afford to stand on principle.

And the bottom line is people have a right to publish what they want to publish.

Let's face it. We don't want to start deciding what can and can't be printed on newsprint. It won't end well.

Beginnings and endings

Several weeks ago, a friend was lamenting summer's end as we drank margaritas on her deck. We chatted and watched the western sky glow.

"Summer's the best. Every year it's a different story," she said.

"I hate to say it, but I'm glad it's over," I replied.

It's autumn now. I hope your summer was a magical story. Like following ribbons of roads on cross-country adventures. Hots dogs, sun and too much beer in the bleachers. Sleeping with the windows open, the invisible tree frogs humming as day turns to dusk, nature's lullaby. A swim in a cool Wisconsin lake.

Mine was a season of beginnings and endings.

The beginning of a new story for my son, who moved to Los Angeles.

The ending of his grandfather's story, who moved into hospice.

It's happy and sad.

It's young turns to old.

It's like summer and winter.

For me, fall is the best season. I think pollsters should ditch politics and instead determine the country's favorite season. It's lolling around my head now, the blubbering and the bickering.

"Winter's the worst. You're an idiot!"

"No, it's not, you lazy buffoon. I ski and skate."

Reminds me of fighting with my siblings back in the day.

I digress. Sorry, I like sharp turns. Anyway, I don't know about you, but Jan. 1 never seemed like a beginning to me, like Happy New Year. Fall takes that trophy. Once I started school, every school year seemed like a new year. New classes, new teachers, new friends, new everything. The anticipation of cracking open the year like a fresh book.

When we dropped off our son at O'Hare, cars were honking and swerving as I hurried to give him a hug. Then, just like that, he went. Wait, shouldn't there be fanfare? Balloons dropping? Confetti? Nope, it's a story as old as time. He turned and gave me a quick smile before going through those automatic doors while I tried to photograph this monumental heading off. I'm slow with my phone, so I missed it. Anyway, all I saw was a small boy with a Thomas the Tank engine backpack walking into preschool that somehow morphed into tall man heading to the west coast. Thomas' smile replaced by a red Kelley logo.

I visit my dad as his story is ending. He is in a peaceful corner room on the second floor of his nursing home. The large windows keep his room bright and provide plenty of space for the family photos lining the sills. We watch the leaves as they start to change from green to gold.

Life is full of seasons and stories. Enjoy them all.

a high price tag, Mendrick said, noting a new facility is under construction in DuPage.

"You should see all the money just pouring into that building with all the construction," he said.

What's next?

Officials believe some changes will be made to the act before it goes into effect Jan. 1.

"I think they're starting to realize the bill is flawed," Mendrick said. "I think the governor said something about fine-tuning it. Six months ago, it was, 'No way — we're not changing a thing.'"

Mazzochi noted the narrow margins with which the bill passed the House and Senate and encouraged people to get out and vote.

"Elections have consequences," she said. "You need to change the numerical dynamics in Springfield."

She also suggested contacting Gov. JB Pritzker, and Mendrick recommended reaching out to state legislators.

Lawmakers have begun paying more attention to the complaints about the act, Berlin said.

"The public is paying attention and fortunately the media is picking up on it," he said. "There have been a number of articles written about it."

When Cauley asked if it would help if the village passed a resolution, Berlin responded in the affirmative.

"I think it would help, yes," he said. "I think every little bit of input might be able to move the ball."

All the speakers agree the issue should not be a political one. Berlin said he is working with 100 state's attorneys, Republicans and Democrats, to try to fix the problems with the act.

"We're all on the same page and it's all about public safety," he said. "We're trying to get language that will keep people safe but we're running out of time."

Mendrick offered a different perspective.

"When you call 911, we don't say, 'What's the nature of your emergency and are you Democrat or Republican?'" he said.

Reports of gunshot were unfounded

Although some people who were in the vicinity of Fourth and Garfield about 5:40 p.m. Sept. 24 reported they heard gun shots, no guns were fired, according to Hinsdale police.

Police were responding to a report of a man having a mental health crisis, Chief Brian King reported in an email to The Hinsdalean.

"The subject was combative with officers and a Bolo Wrap restraint device was utilized to safely take him into custody," King wrote.

"The police department does not normally report on mental health calls for service; however, there was a rumor that the man had been shot. This is not accurate," he continued.

The Bolo Wrap restraint, which wraps cords around a person's legs or torso, creates a popping noise when it is deployed, King explained.

The suspect, who initially resisted officers' efforts to take him into custody, was safely apprehended and taken to the hospital for evaluation.

New COVID case count holds steady

The DuPage County Health Department reported 20 new cases of COVID-19 in Hinsdale over the past week, bringing the total number of cases in the DuPage County portion of Hinsdale to 4,199, compared to 4,179 last week. The Cook County Health Department no longer reports on cases specific to Hinsdale.

The number of cases per 100,000 population in DuPage was 13.8 on Sept. 28, compared to 15.4 on Sept. 20. The community level has dropped to low.

District 181 reported five positive cases from Sept. 21-26, including three students and two staff members.

District 86 reported 11 positive cases at Hinsdale Central as of Sept. 23.

BRIAN STANTON, MARATHON RUNNER

How do you prepare for a marathon?

When Brian Stanton moved to Hinsdale last year from Charlotte, N.C., the avid distance runner was unfamiliar with the area's best training routes.

So Stanton, a senior vice president with Bank of America, created his own with a pass-by tour of bank branches.

"I thought, 'Why not try something a little different?' On one of my longer runs, I ran past five of them," he said, namely the Hinsdale, La Grange, Woodridge, Willowbrook and Westmont outposts. "I like new runs, new courses. I try not to do repetitive loops but areas I may not have been to before."

Naturally, Stanton will be among the roughly 40,000 taking part in the 44th annual Bank of America Chicago Marathon on Oct. 9. This will be his second Chicago race, having run it back in 2010. He's enjoyed preparing with a group of company cohorts.

"It's definitely a diverse group," said Stanton, who draws strength from both the community and accountability it affords. "We have some who do ultra races and others who are doing their first marathon, which adds a little bit of energy to the group because we all work toward getting everyone across the finish."

Stanton said having a workout routine is critical.

"If you don't have that routine and then try something new on race day, that's never a positive," he remarked.

And while it's a significant time and energy commitment, Stanton maximizes early mornings to avoid treading on precious time with his wife and three young boys.

"They think I'm a little crazy," he said of his sons' view. "But it helps teach them about exercise and putting your mind to something and achieving it."

"When I talk to them about anything they're doing, I can relate it to my marathon training," Stanton continued.

And obstacles will present themselves, whether in the form of injury or, well, literal obstacles.

"On a long run, I did have to kind of climb over construction barriers for a bridge that was under construction," Stanton said. "I just didn't want to deviate from the running plan I'd mapped out."

He was one of the first to participate in the inaugural Bank of America Chicago Running Series by completing the Shamrock Shuffle 5K in March and the brand new Bank of America 13.1 in June leading up to the Chicago Marathon.

"It was cool to be among the first crew that ever ran that series," Stanton said.

As a Chicago Marathon volunteer in 2021 he was able to cheer on those he had just started managing.

"I got to see many of my teammates cross the finish line, and I tried to illustrate leadership with my support," Stanton said.

Now he'll be the one needing a boost.

"There are so many people rooting you on and calling out your names," he said.

Stanton has even encountered Hinsdale neighbors that share his passion.

"Every time I see someone running now, I kind of think, 'Are they training for the marathon?'"

— by Ken Knutson

Hinsdale's Brian Stanton said anyone can train to run the Chicago Marathon, as he will on Oct. 9. "If you put your mind to it and your put your time in and do your research, you can help yourself a lot," Stanton said. (Jim Slonoff photo)

SEPPANEN RECEIVES VOLUNTEER AWARD

Seppanen

Hinsdale's Stephanie Seppanen received the 2022 Katharine Van Dusen Sylvester Service Award from The Community

House earlier this month.

Seppanen's involvement with The Community House began with her first performance in the Community Revue "Addicted to Hinsdale" after moving to town in 2011. Seppanen connected with many long-time TCH trustees while rekindling a childhood passion for musical theater. Since then, Seppanen has been in four more Revues and makes mental notes on Hinsdale life to contribute writing ideas for future songs and scenes. She chaired the Walk the Walk for Mental Health from 2016-18, with a focus on connecting with local schools walking the walk.

"I've lived many places, but my engagement with The Community House has always made Hinsdale feel like home", she said.

Seppanen joined The Community House Board in 2017, the executive board in 2019 and became social services committee chair in 2020. In addition to her leadership roles, she also actively volunteers as a staff therapist in the Counseling Center, spending much of her time with District 86 students in the Bridge program. Her entire family is involved with TCH and her three sons have enjoyed Jodie Harrison Basketball, youth theater and Fortnightly.

"We all know that there is an ever growing need for dedicated volunteers in our community as a need for services has soared," said Dan Janowick, The Community House executive director. "We are honored to recognize and congratulate Stephanie Seppanen, who has donated her time, faced the challenge head-on and made a significant impact for over a decade. We are so appreciative of her service to our community."

HINSDALEANS NAMED TO AGENCY'S BOARD

The DuPage Foundation welcomed four new trustees to its board this month, including two who live in Hinsdale.

Julie Curran is a retired senior executive with 30-plus years of experience in program development and management, business strategy and financial management. Her experience includes human resources, change and program management, revenue and expense management and partner governance. She was recognized in the Business Ledger, among "Women of Influence" and among the "Most Powerful Women in Banking" for "Top Banking Team" from 2010 through 2016 from U.S. Banker. Curran has sizable experience in community leadership and fundraising through board engagement in human services, education, community development and the arts from organizations including Elmhurst University, Choose DuPage and Arts DuPage, a DuPage Foundation initiative.

Curran earned a bachelor's degree in political science and history from Northwestern University and has an MBA with an emphasis in accounting and finance from the University's Kellogg School of Management.

Braden Waverley has served in multiple leadership roles, ranging from early stage technology companies to Global 100 enterprises and is currently the COO at RAY-ALLEN Inc., a global provider of information technology asset management and recurring revenue solutions. Previously he was the COO of CyFIR LLC, a Virginia-based cyber security software company serving global enterprise customers in the finance, government and technology sectors.

Waverley is the founder and managing director of

Curran

Waverly

ABW Holdings LLC where he has invested in multiple private placements over the past 15 years. Prior to his experience as a public company CFO, he worked with multiple private equity and venture capital firms on transactions throughout the investment cycle.

Waverley serves on DuPage Foundation's Investment Committee and is a board member of the District 181 Foundation. He previously served as board chairman at The Community House.

Waverley earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Wisconsin-Madison and his MBA from Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management.

First attempt at making sushi a success

Nabuki chef shares the secrets to create a beautiful — and tasty — salmon roll

By Pamela Lannom
plannom@thehinsdalean.com

After trying numerous types of cuisine — French, Italian, Chinese — a teenage Juan Perez decided he would dedicate his career to making sushi.

“I noticed that between the chef and customer is only three, four feet away,” Perez said. “You see the reactions of people when you are making the food.”

The chef and partner at Nabuki in Hinsdale has been preparing sushi for more than 30 years, making him the perfect person to teach this curious reporter how to do it.

Perez doesn’t follow recipes when creating the rolls at Nabuki (24 on the menu, more than 100 off), so we didn’t either. We started with a piece of nori (dried, edible seaweed), a handful of Japanese rice and a warning.

“You’re not going to get the roll right on the first time,” he said. “It’s going to be fun.”

We placed the nori on the damp cutting board, textured side up. Starting in the upper left corner, Perez showed me how to spread the rice, using damp fingers and working right, across the top two-thirds of the nori. Then, working in the same direction, he instructed me to spread the rice over the bottom portion.

“Now try to fix it equal,” he told

Nabuki chef Juan Perez taught me how to make a sushi roll, from spreading the very sticky rice on the nori to rolling the roll. He put his incredible knife skills to use several times during the lesson. (Jim Slonoff photos) me, as I struggled to keep the unbelievably sticky rice on the nori and off my fingers. I was grateful for the wet towel and small dish of water he had placed at my station, which soon had several grains of rice settled at the bottom.

We then flipped the rice-covered nori over and chose salmon for the filling. The restaurant goes through 40 to 50 pounds of fish every day, Perez said, which means the salmon, tuna and other fish coming from as far away as Portugal and Spain is used while it’s fresh.

Perez sliced thin pieces from a beautiful salmon fillet and placed them on the nori. We grabbed some julienned cucumber to place on top of the fish and Perez sliced thin pieces of avocado to add. Then it was time to roll.

Starting on the right, we rolled the bottom of the nori partway up to the top, being careful to tuck the rice under. I couldn’t quite keep up, as my cucumber strips kept escaping out of the top. With persistence, I managed to create something that resembled what was on Perez’s station. Then we rolled the nori the rest of the way up, making sure the seam was on the bottom.

My roll looked better than I expected, but still nothing like what I’ve eaten at Nabuki. I realized why as Perez pulled out a makisu, a sushi mat traditionally made of bamboo (Perez prefers plastic). He showed me how to use the mat to shape first the right side of the roll, then the left, then the center.

“You press it with one hand, and then you hold it with the other one, like this,” he instructed. “You’re going to press it equal, like this.”

I was able to transform my roll into a more compact, cylindrical shape.

“Not bad,” I thought to myself.

“It is a perfect roll,” Perez said.

“You’re doing great.”

Then we moved on to the toppings.

Perez spread crunchy tempura sweet potato and red beet sprinkles, for lack of a better word, on a sheet of a plastic wrap for each of us. The wrap helped us move the rolls through the sprinkles, completely coating the rice. Then we grabbed the makisu mats again.

“Just to make sure, you can always do an extra push,” he advised, leading me to believe my roll needed an extra push.

Perez then sliced his roll while it was still wrapped in plastic, and offered to cut mine as well. (Note: It was clear he didn’t want to let me use the knife. I didn’t want to cut myself, so I didn’t object.)

He selected an oblong plate and arranged the slices quickly but carefully on it. We topped our rolls with spicy mayo, barbecue and wasabi sauce to dress them up — and add some kick.

I was amazed at the speed with which Perez worked, but he and the rest of the staff have to keep moving to prepare the hundreds of rolls Nabuki might serve on a Friday or Saturday night.

When the restaurant opened 12 years ago, Perez noted, there were three chefs on staff.

“Right now I have 14 guys making sushi and I can’t keep up,” he said.

Finally it was time to taste my roll. I thought it was delicious, but it got even better reviews from my daughter, who was eager to sample some of the leftovers I brought home.

“You made this?” she asked, sounding astonished.

“This is the best sushi I’ve ever eaten,” she mumbled with her mouth full.

And that’s the kind of reaction that Chef Perez loves to get — even if no words are expressed after the first bite.

“You don’t have to tell me,” he said. “I already saw your face.”

My salmon, cucumber and avocado roll with sweet potato and beet crunchies and spicy mayo, barbecue and wasabi sauce looked almost as good as Perez’s — and good enough for general manager Steve DeKoker to ask if I could work a shift this weekend.

Highly recommended Hinsdale Realtor

Here is what two Senior Hinsdale Sellers say about working with Carol Lee Cikanek in this changing market

"A note to thank you for assisting us in the process of getting our house market ready. You took us to taking it to fruition for a prompt sale.

Your expertise and the familiarity of the Village of Hinsdale is a boon to any newcomer to the area as well as a Hinsdale resident.

Thanks for all your suggestions about the paint, the lighting fixtures and the overall beautification of our property. Your years of working in Hinsdale, your connectivity with contractors and experienced real estate lawyers greased the wheels for the sale. Coldwell Banker is fortunate to have you on board. Wishing you many years of success in the real estate world."

Prayer for peace in our country

Lord God, heavenly Father,
You are the very God of peace. Abate the pride, check the malice and confound the devices of all who are not lovers of peace.
Arise and, with Your good right hand, help all the oppressed and miserable of the earth.
Grant grace, that the dissensions and bitterness that now prevail may finally be put aside; and set thereon
the seal of permanence and of blessing, that Your Word may have free course everywhere and that the vineyard which You have planted among the nations may flourish.
Give peace in our time,
O God; through Jesus Christ, our Lord.
Amen.

IN FOCUS

Homecoming weekend lives up to expectations

With a Friday night last-second victory at the football game and a cool, rain-free Saturday morning parade, Hinsdale Central celebrated homecoming weekend in style. The parade led off with the Hinsdale Central Marching Band, and was followed up by dozens of Central teams and clubs that delighted spectators. (Jim Slonoff photos)

9U GOLD TEAM FALLS IN OT

The battle of two 4-0 teams lived up to all its hype. The Falcons' defense came out with a vengeance when Sebastian Christensen and Marco Oliverio forced a fumble, recovered by Soren Carlson. On the next defensive series, Ben Murphy forced a fumble recovered by Lucas Zayed.

The offense did not want to be outshined and on the ensuing drive. Key blocks by Nate Thangamani, Carter Cox, Ivan Burt and Jacob Zager sprung Topher Allanson for a 65-yard touchdown run. The defense closed out the first half strong behind key tackles from Marcello Salamone, Joey Hillegass and Miles Perucki. Nico Will and Christian Kirchev wreaked havoc up the middle, which led to a third fumble recovery by Lukasz Gewont and Reid Jacobsen deflected two passes to end the half.

Park Ridge punched one in to tie the score 6-6. It stayed that way to force overtime. Park Ridge scored first and made its 2-point conversion. On the Falcons' first play, Kellen Brown took a pass from Murphy and dove across the goal line, but the Falcons failed on the 20-point conversion.

It was a hard fought game to the bitter end, with a final score of 12-14.

10U SILVER DOMINATES

The Falcons came soaring into Naperville Sunday prepared for battle with a tough Naperville Saints team

The Falcons' dynamic running attack was again the star of the show. Jaxon Uthe, Gavin Shuler, Johnny Trombly and Leo Yanklowicz chewed up yardage all game. Uthe showed the wheels on his 65-yard break away touchdown, led by a huge block by Lucas Spatera.

Shuler showed his playmaker moves scoring both on the ground and through the air. Brady Madden led the team up and down the field at quarterback, with crafty passes and nerves of steel.

The Falcon defense was in all-out attack mode all game. Nick Carbonara pulled off the defensive hat trick with a fumble recovery, sack and the interception to close out the game. Shane Behar, Lucas Herrick, Rayan Sheihk, Augie Seraphin and the rest of the Falcon Defense dominated the contest throughout, winning 26-14.

Falcons take on undefeated Carol Stream at Hinsdale Central at 8:30 a.m. Sunday.

10 GOLD FALLS TO HORNETS

The Hinsdale Falcons 10U Gold (2-2) dropped its second straight game this week, falling 12-0 to the Lemont Hornets.

Similar to last week, the Falcons excelled in the three phases of the game but couldn't quite get the ball to bounce their way. On offense, the Falcons ran for good chunks behind linemen Grant Kirchheimer, Leo Crooks, Grant Wanless, Sal Calandriello and Torsten Wood, sustaining long drives, though proving fruitless.

The passing game got going in the second quarter with quarterback Dillon Phelan connecting on long passes to Kellan Goodwin and Spencer Marnell. The Falcon defense put together a hard-hitting game led by Charlie Lynch and Michael Kipnis, but ultimately lost the field position battle leading to two touchdowns for the Hornets.

The Falcons battle Tri-City next week.

ONE MORE 11U JV RED SHUT OUT

Under Coaches Ryan Stamer, Paul Hadden, Tom McInerney, and Mark Konieczka, the undefeated 11U JV Red beat a scoreless Naperville and are working toward the chance at an extra long season.

Remarkable offensive plays compromised of Will Stamer's exceptional catch and run for gains, Jack Omiecinski's three completions for over 70 yards, Ryan Rogero's charge through jerseys for his always consistent and above-bar athleticism, Grayson Elder's extra points kicking, Hunter Velco's incredible grab for a first down, Nate Weichman's key snaps and the positive gains by the invariant Will Geiersbach.

Defensively, strong hustle and subsequent stops were shown by Cam Konieczka. Gavin Hoang tackled the opponent in open field, keeping a donut on the scoreboard. Marco Guisto took out a running quarterback, William Cowey had critical blocks and Ben McLaughlin came in to make a solid impact at the end of the game. Coach Hadden credits Michael Murphy's SFX seventh-grade playbook for the winning defensive line.

11U SILVER FENDS OFF PANTHERS

Somebody queue AC/DC, because the boys were back in black Sunday to face the Downers Grove Panthers for the last home game of the regular season.

This week it was Hinsdale's explosive offense giving them an early and commanding lead. Within only 4 minutes, wide receiver/cornerback Jake Wolowick, nephew of LA Ram Cooper Kupp, showed his family ties by recovering a Panther fumble and receiving two Benjamin Allanson touchdown passes. The Falcons' O-Line, led by Bryce Kinder, Leo Rivera, Luke Altemose, Alex Schaeffer and Willy Smith produced incredible blocks to spring two breakaway touchdown runs by Jake Knapp and Allanson, putting Hinsdale up 28-0.

Running back/linebacker Austin Wilson started the third quarter hot, juking through five would-be tacklers for the 41-yard touchdown.

The Falcons' defense played ferociously per usual, limiting DG to a single score. Guard/defensive tackle Noah Natarelli also added an outstanding effort, contributing multiple key downfield blocks, four tackles and a fumble recovery.

The Falcons finished 34-7.

12U GOLD SHUTS OUT LYONS

The 12U Gold Defense held Lyons Township to zero points while their offense ran on all cylinders in a convincing win.

The Falcons' offense set the tone with a 70-yard opening drive capped off with a 17-yard touchdown run by Mikey Menza.

After a turnover on downs, it took the Falcons only two plays to find the end zone when quarterback Caleb Brady connected with Frankie Carbonara for a 55-yard touchdown pass.

After another defensive stop, the Falcons' offense moved the chains highlighted by a 22-yard pass to Joey Deftos. A few plays later, Charlie Foster found the end zone with a 14-yard jet sweep.

Following a quick stop by the defense, Connor Plunkett started things off with a 22-yard punt return. Menza continued to run hard, and with an 8-yard run up the middle found the end zone again.

In the second half, running back Kavin Tucke had a 35-yard touchdown called back on penalty. He found redemption a few plays later with a 3-yard touchdown run.

The Falcons' Defense only allowed one first down, with turnovers credited to Nate Ruth for recovering a fumble (forced by Brady Hannigan) and Matthew Lynch with an interception.

VARSITY RED FIGHTS FOR WIN

The Falcons traveled to Knoch Field Sunday to face down the 3-1 Naperville Saints. They would come away a 6-3 victor in what would be a hard-fought contest.

The first half saw neither team able to move the ball. Both defenses played tough. Tommy Riordan led the Falcon defensive line with multiple sacks and tackles for loss. The first two quarters would end scoreless in a penalty ridden half.

Naperville was the first to put points on the board. The Falcon defense held tough in the red zone after a long drive from the Saints but gave up a short field goal to make the score 0-3. Hinsdale eventually got the ball back on its own 9-yard line following a huge tackle from cornerback Beau Knapp on fourth down. With 6 minutes on the clock, Owen Sunderson led his team down the field. He found Luke McLaughlin several times for big completions and used his feet to pick up a few more first downs. With 50 seconds at fourth and goal from the 3-yard line, Sunderson would audible and take the ball himself behind the blocking of Luke Zajicek, Mutaz Alshrouf and Riordan to dart untouched into the endzone.

The Falcon defense held tough to seal the victory. The team hosts Oswego at 4 p.m. Sunday at Hinsdale Central.

SPORTS — ROUNDUP

STUDENT ATHLETE PROFILE

Sarah Thornton
Senior
Hinsdale

When did you first start golfing?

I started golfing the very beginning of middle school. My brother played and I kind of took over one of his lessons and just started playing.

What do you enjoy most about the sport?

I love meeting new people and being able to practice. It's really calming for me and what I do in my free time.

Do you have any pre-meet rituals or routines?

I always listen to music and I have to eat something before I play and every three holes while I'm golfing.

What is the best advice you've gotten from a coach?

Never give up on a hole, never give up on a round.

How have you improved since your freshman year?

I've definitely gotten more mentally strong. I feel like right now, I'm a lot more calm on the course. I'm better at bouncing back from bad holes.

What example do you try to set as captain?

Since we have such a strong team, if we had bad days, just trying to be there for each other and making sure if you do play bad, you're still a part of the team and you should make everyone feel included and confident going into the next round.

What course would you most like to play?

Waterville in Ireland. I played there when I was little and it was my favorite course I've ever played. Also Whistling Straights in Wisconsin. I've never played but I want to play there.

What's your favorite class?

AP lit. I like reading and writing.

What would people be surprised to know about you?

I'm really good at the piano. I played a lot of concerts when I was little, and I traveled to Carnegie Hall in New York and the Lincoln Center in New York and I played concerts there. I took time away from concert piano because of golf, but I still play by myself.

Why does coach Nick Latorre like having Thornton on the team?

Sarah has been a rock in our program for the past four years. She has an incredible work ethic and has been a great role model for all of our younger players. Additionally, her leadership skills have really blossomed and she is a pleasure to have on our team.

Hinsdaleans huddle at Halas Hauler

Distinctive tailgating van is tribute to friends' allegiance to Bears and each other

By Ken Knutson

kknutson@thehinsdalean.com

The rain was relentless. But it was no match for the indomitable spirit of tailgating Chicago Bears fans at the dawn of a new season. That was evident, despite the deluge, in Soldier Field's south tailgating lot before the team's Sept. 11 home opener.

In a prime spot on the western edge of the tightly packed lot sits an unmistakable blue- and orange-painted 1969 Dodge Van: the Halas Hauler.

Hinsdale's Dan Logan is one of the rig's five owners, four of whom, including him, are members of Hinsdale Central's class of 2000. They quintet acquired the vehicle in 2008 and have been a famed part of pregame festivities ever since. Above the din of pumping music and driving raindrops, Logan said the gatherings are a special time of fellowship.

"Tailgates are extremely important to use, especially now as we've gotten older, with families and living in the suburbs," he said. "It's not like our immature days back in our 20s living in the city. This is our chance to catch up with one another."

Logan said the vibe is like a big block party, with as many as 50 people congregating, at least when the weather cooperates.

"We know the neighboring cars. We all pull in together so we can spread out and have more space to work with," he said. "It gradually gets bigger and bigger."

The group acquired the Hauler in 2007 when friend Brian Anderson found it in rough shape in Minnesota.

"$902.50," said Anderson of the price.

"The purchase price was less than the shipping cost," noted Central grad Mike Fates.

Until then they'd been using a parent's SUV. Well, more like abusing it.

"You cannot get pickle juice out of a car," Anderson noted.

Staining items are carefully handled around the Hauler's seats and ceiling, which are covered in team logo material. Significant funds were used to recondition the vehicle and convert it to the superfan-mobile it is today. In 2008 it was featured on the cover of the Bears pro gear catalog.

Late-season games can test its resilience.

"Sometimes it takes a while to warm up in the winter," Fates remarked.

"We've always made it on time," Anderson said, citing one exception during COVID when the backup driver tested positive.

During the week it lives at Anderson's South Loop home. In the offseason it lives at a storage facility near O'Hare.

"It's due for body work this summer," Anderson said,

Right now its body is getting soaked — along with everyone else's. Some of the more intrepid grillers in the lot continue to ply their trade, but the spread of food is a fraction of the normal volume.

Fates said his wife is "hiding out" at a breakfast spot with a friend waiting out the rain.

"I'm like, 'Just order another omelet,'" he quipped. "It's better than doing this."

But the men say the rain is nothing compared to the harsh winter days when the windchill makes even the diehards think about staying home.

"This is not as bad as a January game," Fates said.

Although below-freezing temps can help with Friends Brian Anderson (behind the wheel) and Hinsdale Central grad Mike Fates hang out in the Halas Hauler while tailgating at Soldier Field before the Chicago Bears season and home opener Sept. 11. They and three other friends, including Hinsdale residents Dan Logan and Dan Hillegass, bring the blue and orange 1969 Dodge Van to every Bears home game to grill up good food and enjoy fellowship with all the loyal fans on game day. food preservation.

"You can actually pack the van the night before and the ice is not going to melt," Logan said.

Another member, Joe Pedota, is responsible for creating the menu from his family's deli.

The Hauler is a Bears games exclusive but for a University of Illinois-Northwestern University contest in Evanston several years ago. The guys were cheering on the Wildcats, but the van's color scheme, which is the same as the Illini, projected a different allegiance.

"People were very confused," Fates said.

As long as the group has known one another, there are still surprises, like Logan revealing that his father was a past president of the Indiana University Alumni Club.

"You're dad was the president of the Alumni Club?! How did we never know that?" Fates exclaimed.

Logan, a native of Hinsdale and longtime Bears season ticketholder, said whether or not the team is good, nothing can dampen the tailgating fun.

"We like this part, We like the social aspect," he commented.

"This is the best part," Fates added. "Even if the Bears are bad, we all come here in the morning to hang out. This is what I look forward to."

Green Bay Packers games always raise the energy level, Logan said, and he enjoys the rivalry.

"I don't find Green Bay fans intolerable," he revealed. "They walk by and get booed by everyone, but it's part of the fun."

One of the guys said if they could get a wardrobe do-over, they would have dressed in flip-flops and a bathing suit. And with the beach-party-like vibe of the tailgating scene, the ensemble wouldn't have been out of place.

They all go the game and then come back to the lot afterwards for a post-party, regardless of the outcome.

"If they go 6-11 and the quarterback's decent, that's all that matters," Fates said of the hope for this year's team. (They went on to beat the 49ers on this day.)

Logan, a father of three, said it's fun seeing the next generation of fans join the party

"It's a good time, and you're starting to see kids coming now," he said.
