Details of D86 reopening plan announced

Students return during week of Oct. 5, then 25 percent attend for week at a time

By Pamela Lannom
plannom@thehinsdalean.com

While most Hinsdale Central students will be back on campus for one day during the week of Oct. 5, the final group of in-person learners won’t return until Nov. 2 according to the Hinsdale High School District 86 reopening plan.

The plan, released at the Sept. 24 school board meeting, calls for 25 percent of students to be on campus at a time. Each of the four equal groups — which will be assigned by an algorithm and will have siblings grouped together — will attend a single half day the first week of October.

Then each group will return for a full week of in-person classes, starting with group A on campus the week of Oct. 12. The modified block schedule has four 65-minute periods and runs from 8 a.m. to 12:50 p.m.

The decision to have each group attend for one full week was based on guidance from the DuPage County Health Department’s Return to School Framework to limit or avoid mixing groups of students and teachers during the day, said Chris Jascula, communications director.

“By bringing in one group at a time, we can adhere to this recommendation and keep our students, staff, families and community healthy and safe,” he said.

Students in the E group, who have unique needs and have been identified by educators, will attend every day. The R group will remain in remote learning all year.

The plan will remain in place while the county is in a “moderate” transmission rate, as defined by the DuPage County Health Department. If the transmission rate slows to “minimal,” 50 percent of students will be allowed on campus. If it increases to “substantial,” all students will learn remotely from home.

“Should we be able to get that robust saliva testing system in our school system, I also believe we could maintain that 50 percent in person even if the county is at that moderate level,” Superintendent Tammy Prentiss said.

The transition week of Oct. 5 is designed to help students acclimate to being back at school, said Chris Covino, assistant superintendent for academics.

“It’s not incredibly easy to jump back into in-person instruction,” he said. “Most students have never even walked their schedule. Even if they are seasoned Hinsdale South or Central students, that may take a minute to figure out.”

In order to maintain consistency, the primary method of instruction for all students will be remote, now called Remote 2.0+.

“The plus in Remote 2.0+ refers to the other things that can happen because there are some students in the building,” Covino said, citing science labs as an example.

Students will wear headsets and use Zoom even when they are at school so all students can participate in class. Teachers will be given amplification devices so they can be heard through their masks. The district’s bandwidth also has been increased to avoid system crashes.

“We’ve been doing a lot of testing to make sure all the technology is going to work,” said Keith Bockwoldt, chief information officer.

The plan also allows teachers to work remotely if necessary. The district expects as many as 29 teachers will not be able to come to campus, said Mary Dudek, interim director of human resources.

“We try to work around that as best we can to make sure our staff is in front of our kids as much as possible,” Dudek said. “It’s not easy. It’s a puzzle, but we’re working on it every day.”

When in-person learning resumes, 19 substitutes will be needed at Hinsdale Central to cover teachers who have taken leave under the Family and Medical Leave Act. Twenty-nine subs will be needed districtwide. The district had 17 confirmed subs as of last week.

If teachers have to be home for childcare reasons or because they have been quarantined but are able to teach, they will do so remotely and a “line of sight” sub will be hired to monitor the five to seven students who will be in the classroom.

An additional 10 subs could be needed districtwide each day to cover staff members who develop COVID-19 symptoms during the year.

“There are a lot of symptoms on this list. Any one symptom would trigger a call to HR and perhaps an absence or a remote working assignment for that period of time,” Dudek said.

Prentiss said the availability of teachers and subs will affect whether school buildings can remain open.

“Even if we have figured out all the safety and protocols and the technology piece, quite frankly, staffing is something that could also cause us to be unable to sustain or maintain in-person instruction,” he said.

The district had four positive cases of COVID-19 as of Sept. 23, with 28 individuals in isolation and 86 in quarantine. A total of 14 positive cases have been reported among faculty, staff and students since the start of this school year. The district is now reporting cases each Friday on its website at https://d86.hinsdale86.org > COVID-19 Data Dashboard.

Many administrators praised the staff for all their hard work. Central Principal Bill Walsh said the students also should be recognized.

“I don’t want to forget the 4,000 students of District 86 who have demonstrated an unbelievable sense of maturity, an unbelievable desire to be successful in their classes and engaging in these classes day in and day out,” Walsh said. “It’s as hard for them as it is for teachers, and they are pivoting the way they have learned how to learn for the last 10 years, in some cases 11 years.”

Critics decry Graue Mill dam removal
Locals say history will be washed away

By Ken Knutson

A plan to remove the dam in Salt Creek near the historic Graue Mill has been making waves in the community, with proponents touting the cleaner water that would result and opponents arguing the historic dam contributes significantly to the picturesque site in Oak Brook just beyond Hinsdale.

In response to an Illinois Environmental Protection Agency finding that Salt Creek at Fullersburg Woods did not meet state water quality standards for dissolved oxygen or for fish and aquatic insect biodiversity, the DuPage County Forest Preserve District commissioned a study. The DuPage River Salt Creek Workgroup, in its subsequent master plan, stated that “these issues are directly associated with the presence of the dam, as the lowest DO levels on Salt Creek were found in the impoundment area and a large decrease in fish and insect biodiversity were found upstream of the dam.”

To remedy this, the workgroup said the forest district should “create over one mile of sarge on 17 miles of Salt Creek by removing the existing dam and replacing it with a rock riffle.”

But opponents say eliminating the dam would eliminate a treasured local landmark. Don Fuller, president of the Fullersburg Historic Foundation, said there’s actually been a dam at that location since 1837, when a sawmill operated the banks. The current concrete dam was built in 1934 by the Civilian Conservation Corps.

“It’s really historical in nature. It really puts a huge amount of history in perspective when you walk around the mill,” Fuller said of the dam.

The waterfall created by the dam is what draws many people to the site, he said.

The board approved the budget Sept. 24 following a public hearing at which no one spoke. The spending plan was projected to increase only $20,000 this year. The cost of benefits will rise almost $500,000, from $50,000 in FY 2019-20, largely due to the pandemic, which caused all students to move to remote learning in March.

D86 approves budget that just might change

By Pamela Lannom
plannom@thehinsdalean.com

Drafting a $117 million budget in these uncertain times is an art and a science.

The board approved the budget Sept. 24 following a public hearing at which no one spoke. The spending plan predicts revenues of $118.3 million and expenses of $116.8 million, leaving a $1.4 million surplus.

The district saw a $1.2 million surplus at the end of FY 2019-20, largely due to the pandemic, which caused students to move to remote learning in March.

The budgets last year were significantly under spent,” Stephenson said. “Due to the school shutdown, a lot of supplies were not consumed. A lot of travel was not consumed.

Just take that into account,” he advised board members. “We did not have a typical school year.”

Property tax revenues are expected to increase about $11 million, or 13 percent, to $95.7 million. This increase reflects $9.6 million levied to begin repayment of the $139.8 million referendum voters approved in April 2019.

State and federal revenues remain essentially flat and interest income is down, due to the drop in interest rates, Stephenson said.

Revenues include two new grants. The $267,000 C.A.R.E.S. grant provides funding for personal protective equipment and COVID-19 related expenses. The $50,000 Illinois School Maintenance Grant provides funding for life-safety projects.

On the expense side, salaries continue to be the largest line item in the budget at almost $57.9 million. Salaries for the district’s 603.3 full-time equivalents are projected to increase only $20,000 this year.

The cost of benefits will rise almost $500,000, from about $24.9 million to $25.5 million.

“Benefits are fairly stable,” Stephenson said of the 2 percent increase.

The budget includes $50.6 million in proceeds anticipated from the third and final bond sale related to the referendum, which will take place this month. The budget also includes $36 million in design and construction expenses.

“Obviously with a multi-year project it doesn’t always fit neatly inside of the fiscal year,” Stephenson said. “If there are any large variations, we may have to do an amended budget, similar to what we did last year, for the construction expenses.”

The budget can be viewed online at https://d86.hinsdale86.org, under the business department tab.
COVID-19 case count is approaching 400

The number of Hinsdale residents who have been diagnosed with a confirmed case of COVID-19 hit 392 on Sept. 30, compared to 380 a week ago. The DuPage County Health Department reported 350 confirmed cases in Hinsdale and the Cook County Health Department reported 42 confirmed cases in the village.

A total of 168 confirmed cases and 34 deaths are associated with ManorCare in Hinsdale, according to the Illinois Department of Public Health. Those numbers include residents and staff who might not be DuPage County residents.

Amita Hinsdale Hospital had seven confirmed COVID-19 patients and seven patients awaiting test results on Wednesday, a spokeswoman said.

Community Consolidated District 181 had reported four confirmed cases and Hinsdale High School District 86 had reported four confirmed cases as of Friday.

DuPage County has recorded 17,753 confirmed cases, including 562 deaths, up from 16,757 cases and 549 deaths a week ago.

The rolling seven-day positivity rate for Region 8, which includes DuPage County, was 5.3 percent Sunday.

The number of confirmed cases in towns neighboring Hinsdale are as follows:

- Burr Ridge, 279
- Clarendon Hills, 168
- Oak Brook, 204
- Western Springs, 572

Farmers market open for two extra weeks

The Hinsdale Chamber of Commerce Farmers Market will run until Oct. 26 this year.

The market, which is open from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. Mondays on Chicago Avenue near Burlington Park, was scheduled to end two weeks earlier. The chamber asked the village for the extension to help support the vendors during these tough times.

The market, which features vendors of fruits and vegetables, eggs, honey, cheeses, meats and poultry, jam and more, is in its 44th year.

ALCW adapts to meet needs in new ways
Volunteers are making changes to existing programs, working on new requests for help

By Pamela Lannom
plannom@thehinsdalean.com

Re-imagining has become standard operating procedure for Assistance League of Chicagoland West members. They’ve had to rethink everything from how to distribute coats to schoolchildren to how to hold their annual Books and Brunch fundraiser. They’ve also been working to meet the increased need that exists with many out of work and a backlog of individuals who were unable to receive services when the pandemic first hit in March.

Meg Cooper, vice president for marketing/communications, said items to outfit seven kitchens were going to PADS clients this week. “Things are picking up and people are moving into their independent living and it really came alive in the last two months,” Cooper said. “We were actually sort of put in a situation to help in ways that were different from how our normal programs worked.”

One of the earliest projects was creating emergency kits for homeless individuals who were put up in hotel rooms after the shelter-in-place order was issued in March. The kits included crock pots and disposable products that would allow people to fix meals in their rooms. “It was an extreme rapid response,” Monica Heidkamp of Clarendon Hills said. Members weren’t sure at first they would be able to find all the necessary items for the kits. Bijal Doshi of Burr Ridge headed to the Kohl’s at 75th Street and Lemont Road. “Literally I walked in and took every single slow cooker they had,” she said. She learned from employees the store was closing the next day. “We got in in the nick of time to buy the crock pots,” she said.

Finding supplies — which has been difficult for everyone — has been an ongoing challenge for members. “We source five different Walmarts and now we’ve found Dollar Tree is our friend, too,” Beth Waldo of Hinsdale said.

Some of those supplies were used to assemble 400 toiletry kits for families served by the HCS Family Services food pantry and summer school supply kits for kids at Anne M. Jeans School.

“Now as we are moving into fall, it’s still a new normal and it turns out everything has to be rethought,” Cooper said. “Everything you’ve done for years, you have to think, ‘How do I do it now? How do I so the same thing with new restrictions?’”

Permission slips for the Operation School Bell fall coat distribution has moved online and members are serving as personal shoppers for middle school students who can’t participate in the annual shopping days.

Now members are preparing for their annual fundraiser. Books and Brunch Evening Edition, like many fundraisers, will be offered in a virtual version this year. “We thought about canceling the whole thing and we thought, ‘No, there is too much need and the need is greater in the community,’” said Janet Roxworthy, who is co-chairing the event with Vicki Knowles.

Because the fundraiser is focused on authors each year — rather than dinner and dancing — the event should work well online, Cooper said. A local author featured two years ago has agreed to interview this year’s featured writers, Gloria Chao, Chris Jones and Sonali Dev.

“It might even be more interesting watching the authors because they are going to be interviewed by Andrea Thome,” Roxworthy said. She and Cooper both noted that Dick Johnson, who passed away in June, had served as moderator of Books and Brunch for more than a decade. “Those are such big shoes to fill,” Roxworthy said, adding that she’s confident in Thome. “We have no fear she will rise to the occasion and be a great host and interviewer for us,” she said.

ALCW will continue to work to serve the community however it can, Cooper said. “Even as it’s more complicated and harder to do, we’re still trying to grow,” she said.

Assistance League of Chicagoland West members spent Monday morning stuffing envelopes for the group’s Nov. 10 Books and Brunch fundraiser, while Monica Heidkamp and Bijal Doshi unloaded sets of dishes that will be donated to PADS clients transitioning to permanent housing. (Jim Slonoff photos)

Hinsdale teen takes steps to reduce plastic waste

Anton Riegger loves just about everything about being outdoors. Everything, that is, except for the plastic waste that litters the forests, lakes and oceans that he so loves to explore.

A few months ago, Riegger decided to get behind a movement to decrease the amount of plastic waste in the environment by taking a pledge to reduce his own use of plastic and encouraging others to do the same.

After taking the No Plastic Drinks pledge himself, Anton signed on as a youth ambassador on the No Plastic Drinks team.

As youth ambassador, Anton joins in on virtual meetings with other team members. Together they brainstorm ideas for how their organization can help people cut down on their use of plastic products.

Started in Florida, No Plastic Drinks is just getting started in its quest to help the environment by reducing the plastic bottles, cups, lids and straws that are used and discarded, often improperly.

“It’s swimming in the oceans with the fish,” Anton said. He learned that one trash truck full of plastic is dumped in the earth’s oceans every minute of every day.

“That’s a lot of garbage trucks,” he said.

In addition to the world’s water, plastic also makes its way into our food supply. Bits of degrading plastic have even been found in all sorts of foods, including fruits and vegetables.

Plastic comes in all sorts of forms and in all kinds of products, but Anton said a huge amount of waste could be eliminated if people simply used reusable metal water bottles. That was one of the first steps he took in reducing his own plastic use.

“It takes more than 500 years for a plastic bag or a plastic water bottle to decay,” Anton said. But a metal bottle can be used countless times without adding waste, and a single water pitcher filter can replace up to 1,800 single-use plastic bottles. Anton said these are simple steps that everyone can take.

The entire Riegger family is behind the movement, Anton said. Mom Barbara also serves as a volunteer with No Plastic Drinks, and the whole Riegger household uses reusable beeswax wraps instead of baggies and plastic wrap and takes reusable bags to the grocery store.

Anton said he had hoped to engage his school and his classmates in his quest to reduce plastic waste, but with classes going virtual, the opportunity waned. Virtual school, however, has had the unintended benefit of reducing his own use of plastic, and likely that of others.

Because Anton isn’t packing a lunch each day, he’s virtually eliminated his use of plastic packaging.

Anton said he’s concerned about all kinds of pollution. Plastic pollution is one that he believes he can do something about, one reusable bag and bottle at a time.

OPINION

We get it, Kevin.
We agree it’s inconsiderate — bordering on rude — for citizens to come to Hinsdale High School District 86 Board meetings, complain about something during public comment and leave.

And we know, board President Camden, that you have the authority to set the agenda.

But moving “audience communication” to the very end of school board meetings (item 21.1 on Sept. 24) is a disproportionate response to this discourteous behavior. At best, it reads like punishment for a misbehaving child. At worst it could be interpreted as a strategy to squelch public comment.

Eleven people spoke during public comment at the Sept. 10 meeting. (A rally to reopen schools that took place outside Central right before the meeting might have boosted attendance.) Two weeks later, after Camden said he was moving public comment to the end of the meeting, no members of the public were there to speak.

This isn’t the only restriction that is in place in District 86. The board has allotted a maximum of 30 minutes for public comment at each meeting, and residents must sign in at the beginning of the meeting in order to address the board.

So, at the Sept. 24 meeting, a person who wanted to speak would have had to arrive promptly at 6 p.m. to sign in and then wait more than two hours — until 8:10 p.m. — to speak. It’s no surprise the only comment was sent in via email.

Moving forward, we wonder what a resident should do if they want to offer input on a decision the board faces. Do they need to make sure they’re at the meeting two weeks before the vote will be taken, so they can share their thoughts at the end of that meeting?

Certainly public comments that are delivered thoughtfully by informed residents who have the benefit of listening to board deliberations on a regular basis are always appreciated. And if board members got more than a cursory “Thank you for your service” before having to listen to complaints about the louzy and unfair decisions they are making.

Unfortunately, that is not the world we live in. People seem polarized on almost every issue, from the national level to the local one. Instead of trusting public officials to make the best decisions for everyone involved, many are focused on what they want and demand that public officials actions’ align with their desires.

And, like it or not, listening to these folks — not forcing them to sit through a meeting — is the job board members signed up for.

We hope Camden made his point and will return “audience communication” to the beginning of the agenda, where it belongs. If he’s not inclined to do so, we hope his colleagues will help change his mind.

It’s pumpkin spice season, Charlie Brown

My level of caring also was low because I received this digital newsletter on Sept. 8, a full 22 days before the Official Start of Pumpkin Spice Season on Oct. 1 (at least as far as I’m concerned).

I know many believe PS season starts much earlier. Perhaps they are the same people who endorse the start of “meteorological fall” on Sept. 1 rather than waiting for the actual autumnal equinox on Sept. 22.

Not only do I avoid pumpkin spice like the plague in August, I find its flavors lack appeal in September as well. September is an apple-cinnamon month, in my mind. Pumpkin is reserved for October and November, with an occasional foray into December, if you happen to encounter a pie at a holiday party.

Anyway, back to the nutritional virtues of the season’s most popular flavor. According to the article, pumpkin is an excellent source of vitamin A and fiber and contains some potassium. The author suggests consuming healthy pumpkin spice foods that provide nutrients, such as a whole-grain cereal or yogurt. Other suggestions include adding pumpkin to homemade nut butter (sorry, don’t make homemade nut butter), making chia seed pumpkin pudding or adding canned pumpkin to hummus.

None of those sound even remotely appealing. What does sound good is a Starbucks pumpkin spice latte — if you’re willing to give up lunch. A grande with 2-percent milk has 380 calories, 14 grams of fat and 50 grams of sugar. You could probably cut calories and fat grams by choosing skim milk, but the whipped cream is non-negotiable in my opinion.

I do enjoy some healthier pumpkin spice application, such as adding it to oatmeal. I also love pumpkin ice cream.

My two favorite pumpkin applications are diametrically opposed when it comes to nutritional value. I can’t wait to make the whole wheat pumpkin pecan pancakes from skinnytaste.com and the frozen pumpkin mousse with walnut-toffee crunch from Bon Appétit. One offers protein and fiber, the other heavy cream and toffee bits. (I was chastised for not posting the recipe for Ultimate Rib’s after my Sept. 10 column, so both of these recipes will be on our Facebook page today.)

I have no interest in the new pumpkin spice mac and cheese Kraft is releasing in Canada or pumpkin spice hard seltzer. And while I love a nice pumpkin spice candle or pumpkin spice air freshener, I draw the line at pumpkin spice latte deodorant.

There are a host of pumpkin spice items to try this year: pumpkin spice Twinkies, “pumking” whiskey, pumpkin spice baking truffles (in lieu of chocolate chips), pumpkin spice cotton candy, pumpkin spice kettle corn, pumpkin spice hot cocoa mix and pumpkin spice swirl bread.

Whichever you choose, just make sure to eat it all up before you put up the Christmas tree. OK?

GUEST COMMENTARY

Your old road is rapidly aging

Bob Dylan once sang about prior generations turning a cynical eye to youth activism.

Fifty-six years later, when recent Hinsdale Central grad Maiven Amegadzie organized June’s peaceful protest against racial oppression, some Hinsdale business owners criticized young protesters claiming the timing was not right and that “nothing good will come out of it.”

A quote from Maiven touched upon that criticism: “...I feel like a lot of people are sheltered and cloistered here. They don’t understand the struggles that I have had to cope with here: I’m tired of having to be politically correct, tired about being silent about issues that are important to me. If I don’t do it now, when will I ever?”

“Come mothers and fathers, through-out the land, and don’t criticize what you can’t understand.”

After the Parkland shooting tragedy, high school activist Emma González called out politicians who claimed that no law could have prevented the massacre. The Parkland students encouraged a national “walk out” day protest, which included hundreds of Hinsdale Central and South students demanding gun control legislation.

“The adults we look up to and who are in charge in Congress have failed us,” said HC student Laine Williams. “We have to step up and fight for ourselves because they can’t instill common sense gun laws.”

“Your sons and your daughters, are beyond your command.”

Critics believe that young activists like Greta Thunberg are merely repeating back what adults have told them. A few years back, no guidance was sought from nor given to my child on a fifth-grade writing assignment outlining reasons to support Colin Kaepernick’s right to peacefully protest. Now, a recent Washington Post poll shows 56 percent of Americans say athletes kneeling during the anthem is an acceptable form of protest.

Contrast that support with this guy’s recent opinion tweet (one of many disparaging players who knelt): “We should be standing up straight and tall, ideally with a salute, or a hand on heart. There are other things you can protest, but not our Great American Flag – NO KNEELING!”

My then-10-year-old understood the basis for the protest (versus the method). Public sentiment has shifted to what has been stressed repeatedly by players — that kneeling is not about protesting the flag or military, rather a call to hold the country accountable for racial injustices. Not all agree, as witnessed in the NFL season opener when KC fans booted NFL players uniting (not kneeling) for a “moment of silence dedicated to the ongoing fight for equality in our country.” You can connect the dots on why those fans felt emboldened to boo. “Your old road is rapidly aging. Please get out of the new one if you can’t lend your hand.”

Chicago sports radio personality Dan Bernstein mentioned the following on his June 11 show: “There’s a fine line between patriotism and nationalism. Nationalism is gross jingoism where patriotism is loving one’s country and being able to understand its flaws and wanting to have a constant evolution to fix what’s wrong.”

Today’s youth activists seem to best embody that definition of patriotism. To bring about real change, keep doing what you’re doing, young Hinsdaleans, in highlighting problems that make people in power (and the sheltered/cloistered status quo) uncomfortable. For the times they are a-changin’.

Fundraiser to prevent sudden cardiac deaths

As junior board members of the just1mike Foundation, we wanted to inform residents about our Facebook fundraiser in October. Just1mike was created to honor Michael Brindley, a Hinsdale Central student, who suffered sudden cardiac death in 2016, playing basketball at just 16 years old.

The mission of just1mike is to raise awareness and survival rates of sudden cardiac arrest in teens and young adults through training, screening and education. Many are unaware sudden cardiac arrest is the No. 1 killer of student athletes. It is also the leading cause of death on campuses and the second leading cause of death of young adults under 25. Sudden cardiac arrest affects 9,500 youths annually in the U.S.

Just1mike has supported Young Hearts for Life high school cardiac screenings where students receive a free EKG test at school. An EKG can help detect up to 70 percent of hidden heart conditions associated with sudden cardiac death. Over 7,000 students have been given the gift of free EKG testing at local schools, including Hinsdale Central and Hinsdale South, with the support of just1mike.

With COVID-19, the need for screenings and awareness is more important than ever.

October is Sudden Cardiac Awareness month and Michael’s birthday month. Michael would have turned 21 on Oct. 7. Please consider a gift of $21, or whatever you can, to support just1mike’s mission.

Visit the following link for the Facebook fundraiser running in October: https://www.facebook.com/just1mike.

Thank you. — Luke Marcic, Jackson Mangon and Connor Mangone, Hinsdale

Re-elect Casten to fight climate change

Rep. Sean Casten is such a breath of fresh air, so to speak, in leading the charge to fight climate change.

As tempting as it might be to believe Jeanne Ives that the climate has been changing for millions of years and that there is time for policy makers to act “in a reasonable manner.” NASA, on their website, states that “humans have caused major climate changes to happen already and we have set in motion more changes still.”

Former state senator applauds Hinsdalean

There are many reasons we love living in Hinsdale. Among them is The Hinsdalean, which arrives FREE each week on our driveway.

As a former state senator and aide to two governors, I have read many local or nondaily newspapers. None are published with the professionalism, pride and journalistic love of our hometown paper. Kudos to Jim, Pam, Ken, Becky and all who contribute to this vital community resource we call The Hinsdalean on winning the highly competitive Illinois Press Association’s top honors. — Kirk Dillard, Hinsdale

Dr. George Farah

Dr. George Farah, loving father of three, passed away Sept. 17, 2020, in La Jolla, Calif., at the age of 88.

Papa George touched many with his joyful personality and positive outlook on life. His smile lit up a room and his storytelling of traveling adventures captured the attention of many. His motto was “It’s a Wonderful World,” and he lived that way everyday.

Papa George was born in Beirut, Lebanon, the second of eight children, to Dr. Salim Farah and Alexandrea Farah. He attended Jesuit high school at St. Joseph in Beirut and studied medicine at the University of Lyon in France.

After completing medical school, he followed his dreams and traveled to America by boat to be near his sister. With little knowledge of the English language or what lay ahead, he fully embraced the adventure and challenge.

He interned for his medical degree at Saint Clare’s Hospital in New York City. During his long career of more than 45 years, he made front page news and served on multiple boards and organizations, including the Chicago City Council, The Arab American Medical Association and Henrotin Hospital. He held his career at Saint Joseph Hospital in Chicago. Papa George was proud of his medical career and helping patients in need even when they couldn’t afford it.

Papa George raised his three children in the suburbs of Chicago and lived in the area for most of his life. Beyond family, Papa George was an avid tennis player and was very popular at Winnetka’s Nielsen Tennis Center. He also loved to paint. Many weekend afternoons he could be found in his backyard painting the watercolors of his traveling adventures around the world.

He always prioritized family and later took an active role in his grandchildren’s lives. He never wanted to miss holidays, sporting or school events.

He spent his last years in sunny La Jolla at Casa De Manana. The staff and his friends there gave him a second lease on life. He participated in every program offered, from daily swim classes to knitting with the ladies, and of course he never missed a party or a martini.

Papa George had a big heart and loved his large circle of family and friends. He is survived by his brother, Elie Salim Farah; his sister, Pierrette Farah Gadala-Maria; his sons, George Farah and James Farah; his daughter Simone “Gigi” Farah Goldman; five grandchildren; and many nieces, nephews and cousins.

A memorial Mass was said Sept. 25 at Mary Star of the Sea in La Jolla, Calif. In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to Father Joe’s Villages (to help the homeless), 3350 E St., San Diego, CA 92102.

Dr. Paul G. Fredrickson

Paul resided at the Oak Trace Retirement Center and also had lived in Oak Brook, Manitowish Waters, Wis., and Green Valley, Ariz.

Born in Chicago in 1925, he graduated from Hinsdale High School in 1942. He went on to receive his bachelor’s from the University of Michigan and his M.D. from the University of Chicago. Paul was in the Navy during World War II and then went on to serve as an Army doctor during the Korean conflict.

After his service, Paul went into practice with Dr. Mathias in Hinsdale.

He was preceded in death by his wife of 67 years, Jean I. Fredrickson.

He is survived by his children, Paul (Susan) Fredrickson, Gail (Alan) Edgren, John Fredrickson and Mark (Amy) Fredrickson; his 13 grandchildren; and his 19 great-grandchildren.

A private graveside service was Sept. 28 at Clarendon Hills Cemetery in Darien.

Memorials may be made to the Hinsdale Covenant Church, 412 S. Garfield Ave., Hinsdale, IL 60521.

Brian Powell Funeral Directors of Hinsdale handled the arrangements.

Dr. William Gordon

William “Bill” Gordon, M.D. 87, a longtime Hinsdale resident, passed away Sept. 13, 2020, in Oak Brook, after a purposeful and adventurous life.

He was born in 1933 in Chicago to William P. Gordon Sr. and Adeline Singer Gordon. He grew up in Beverly alongside his brother, Philip (Jean) Gordon and his sisters, Mary Beth (late John) Dove, Kathy (Steve) Kula and the late Barbara (Philip) Alfwater.

He graduated from St. Ignatius High School, St. Louis University and Loyola Medical School. Bill and his longtime friend George Bonertz were partners in medical practice.

As a physician, he was responsible for bringing thousands of children into the world. In his free time, he traveled to 50 states and 60 countries. His companion in these travels was his wife of 54 years, the late Virginia Farmer Gordon.

Their close relationship was a cornerstone of his life, and he was a dedicated caretaker to her in her later life.

His daughter, Anne Gordon Saunders, inherited their love of travel and was fortunate, along with her husband Stewart and children Stanley and Clare, to witness Bill zip-line in Costa Rica when he was 81.

Despite his worldliness, Bill was a proud, life-long Chicagoan.

Bill is also remembered as a beloved uncle to 15 nieces and nephews. A favorite memory is “Uncle Bill” playing Santa to the group every Christmas.

Bill’s time serving in the Army, while based in Colorado, spurred a life-long love of skiing. He and Virginia were avid contemporary art collectors. A long-time member of Hinsdale Golf Club, Bill only played golf on days ending in “y.”

Due to COVID-19, a memorial will be held in spring 2021.

Brian Powell Funeral Directors of Hinsdale handled the arrangements.
Celeste Gill Stevens

Celeste Gill Stevens, known to her family and countless friends as Candy, passed away at home surrounded by her family on Sept. 21, 2020. She succumbed within weeks to metastatic pancreatic cancer.

The daughter of John J. Gill and Gertrude L. Rheb Gill, Candy was born in 1954 in the Flushing neighborhood of Queens, N.Y., raised in Manhasset, N.Y., and graduated from the local high school. Tall, graceful and lovely, she was a high school cheerleader and editor of the class paper. She majored in psychology at Duke University, where she met her future husband, Bruce, and graduated in December 1975. She and Bruce wed the following month near her home.

Moving to Hinsdale in June of 1979, Candy threw herself into local charitable organizations, including Newcomers, the Hinsdale Humane Society, where she served on the board, the auxiliary of the Katherine Legge Memorial Park and the youth programs at Union Church. In later years, she joined the board of the Anti-Cruelty Society in Chicago.

Candy is survived by her husband, Bruce; her sister, Karen G. Meyer; her son, Gill; and her daughter, Cara.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to the Anti-Cruelty Society of Chicago, the National Alliance on Mental Health, Pancreatic Cancer Action Network, The Lustgarten Foundation (for pancreatic cancer research) or Union Church of Hinsdale.

Interment is private.

Sullivan Funeral Home in Hinsdale handled the arrangements.

Anna Burg

Anna Burg, 103, a former longtime resident of Mayslake Village, Oak Brook, passed away September 22, 2020. Anna was born in Yugoslavia in 1917. She spent many years as a housekeeper for the Catholic priests.

Anna was always working and making beautiful things such as crochet angels, baby blankets and scrubbies for the Mayslake Village Bazaar. However, she was best known for her cookies, which eventually earned her own “cookie corner” at the bazaar. She was always caring for others. She gave love every day and those who knew her were blessed to have her in their lives.

She is survived by her nephew, Peter (Marilyn) Bogner; and her great-nieces and -nephews, Peter II, Kathryn Bogner and John, Walter, Herbert and Greta Bogner.

A graveside service was held Sept. 25 at St. Joseph Cemetery in Wilmette.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to Amita Alexian Brothers Hospice, Attn: Joanne Retondo, 901 Martha Ct., Elk Grove Village, IL 60007.

Brian Powell Funeral Directors of Hinsdale handled the arrangements.

Diana taught in Gower Elementary District 62 for 32 years. She was the fond third-grade teacher of more than 900 students, many of whom still kept in touch with her. She was well respected not only by her students and their parents but also enjoyed a warm relationship with her colleagues and many friends. After retirement in 2003, Diana continued to teach and enrich students through tutoring. She will be missed.

She is survived by her husband, Robert; her son, John; and her sister-in-law, Joanne.

A memorial service to celebrate her life will be held in the late spring/early summer.

Memorials may be made online to the Alzheimer’s Association at https://www.alz.org/donate.

AGENT PROFILE

ANN REIDY SMITH, COUNTY LINE PROPERTIES

Hinsdale has always been home to Ann Reidy Smith. As a real estate broker, she’s made a career of helping others make the village their home, too.

“I love the community and I’ve always wanted other people to feel the same way about it,” Smith said.

A lot has changed since she began selling homes in Hinsdale, she noted. But in the decades since she sold that first house, at least two things have remained the same.

“It all comes down to relationships and trust. That has not changed,” Smith said.

Building relationships with customers and building their trust remain at the heart of Smith’s career as a Realtor. She said it’s not her job to sell houses, but to help each buyer find the perfect home for themselves and their family.

As a broker with County Line Properties, Smith said she prefers to work with a small number of clients, taking care to help each one find the right home. By concentrating her efforts in her hometown, Smith said her familiarity and knowledge are valuable tools for her and her clients. After decades spent growing up, going to school, working and raising a family in the village, Smith knows neighborhoods and houses, inside and out. She can help those new to town find a dryer cleaner, a contractor or even steer them toward a babysitter or dentist.

The County Line Home Design Center also is a valuable resource for those new to Hinsdale. Located next door to the real estate office at 110 S. Washington St., the design center pools the talents of more than a dozen carpenters, designers, artists and others in the home improvement industry, giving customers a one-stop shop for ideas, information and expert advice.

Smith said today’s buyers are looking for homes that fit their current needs. A place for children to take online classes and for parents to work from home are the new must-haves for many buyers, Smith said. Outdoor areas where homeowners can safely escape the confines of the house also are important to today’s buyers.

Smith said sellers who want to make improvements on their homes prior to going on the market need to get busy. Home improvement professionals are in high demand, and homeowners might need to wait to have work done.

“Get on the list now,” she said. “There’s no time like the present to start getting stuff done.”

With interest rates so low, Smith said it’s a good time not only to shop for a new house, but to consider a refinance. That extra money can help homeowners make changes that will make their homes more enjoyable, and one day, sellable.

The market traditionally slows as the weather turns colder, but that doesn’t mean that houses won’t sell. For those planning to sell this winter, Smith suggests taking pictures now, while the fall colors are showing and the flower beds are still in bloom. That picture on the website makes an important first impression, she said, and a home’s curb appeal might be easier to see before the snow begins to fall.

OUR COMMUNITY IS BETTER BECAUSE OF YOU!

The HCS Family Services Board of Directors
Walk the Walk focuses on mental health

TCH event has two goals: start a conversation, raise funds for counseling department

By Pamela Lannom
plannom@thehinsdalean.com

When the COVID-19 pandemic hit in March, it was clear The Community House’s annual spring fundraiser would not take place in April.

What wasn’t clear was whether the Walk the Walk for Mental Health would take place at all in 2020, said Dan Janowick, executive director of The Community House.

But then, months passed and the realization set in that the fall would not bring a return to business as usual.

“I think that’s when we started to hear over and over again the theme of people talking about mental health,” Janowick said.

Organizers decided they didn’t want to wait until next spring.

“This isn’t the right year to skip it,” he said. “We really do need to have it.”

The 13th annual walk has been rescheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 24 and 25. The theme this year is “Start a conversation.”

“I’d say the main message is that everyone should be thinking about their own mental wellness and what can they do for themselves and also what can they do to check in on family members,” Janowick said. “Reminding people they are not alone is really important. It’s important any time, but everything is magnified with the unknowns of COVID.”

The uncertainty created by the pandemic, coupled with a change in daily routines, creates stress, said Bob Agnoli, director of mental health services at The Community House.

The best thing to do is acknowledge that and talk about it, he advised.

“It’s easy to minimize it, and it’s good that we can count our blessings and say, ‘I have a place to live’ or ‘My job is OK,’” he said. “It doesn’t negate the fact that we are under a tremendous amount of stress and the people around us are under a tremendous amount of stress.”

Feelings of anxiety and helplessness are common among many clients served by The Counseling Center at The Community House, Agnoli related. Counselors have been able to resume in-person meetings with about 70 percent of clients, with another 30 percent continuing with Zoom or telehealth sessions.

Acknowledging those feelings and finding strategies to cope with them is important.

“We can’t live in isolation. We need others to connect with as a healthy way of managing the stress levels,” Agnoli said.

The walk is not only an opportunity to start a conversation but a chance to financially support the work of The Counseling Center.

“All funds will be used to provide access to people who don’t have insurance or don’t have enough insurance to get mental health services at The Community House,” Janowick said.

“Seven out of every 10 clients we see is seeing us on a sliding scale.”

Walk co-chair Jennifer Lawrence (working with Sarah Charles) said the importance of having access to mental health professionals firsthand. Her son attempted suicide a little more than two years ago, the day after he completed seventh grade. And she knows her family is not alone.

“Everyone knows someone who is struggling through mental illness or depression or who has committed or thought about committing suicide,” she said. “Everyone is affected in one way or another.

“It is so important to have the money come in to support these kids, to support these families that need us in our community,” she added. “This is so important to me and my family. I don’t want any family to go through what we went through.”

How wonderful it would be, she said, if Hinsdale Central students who couldn’t get in to see their counselors or needed more support could just walk over to The Community House and get the help they need.

“That is my goal,” she said. “That would be amazing, just to have counselors available if you don’t have the money or you can’t talk to your family.”

Registration for the walk is open at https://thecommunityhouse.org/walkthewalk2020/.

Registration is $35. Walkers can sign up as individuals or fundraise as a team.

Influenza viruses become widespread each year beginning as early as mid-fall and running as late as mid-spring. This coming year’s influenza season will also compete with COVID-19.

The virus that causes COVID-19, SARS-2-CoV, can cause symptoms that are similar to influenza: fever or chills, cough, shortness of breath or difficulty breathing, fatigue, muscle or body aches, headaches, sore throat, congestion or runny nose, nausea or vomiting and diarrhea.

So how can someone tell the difference between influenza and COVID-19?

The short answer is to test for influenza virus and for SARS-2-CoV virus. The long answer is that it depends on how much virus is circulating in the community and other risk factors.

Influenza is more likely when there is a lot of influenza circulating in the community. For example, during March 2020, influenza would have been more likely because there were a lot more people infected with that virus than COVID-19. On the other hand, in April and May 2020, there were few to no patients with influenza and a lot more people infected with COVID-19.

What are some characteristics of each virus?

- Symptoms. The influenza virus can create mild to severe symptoms. COVID-19 can be asymptomatic, mild or have severe symptoms.
  - Contagious period. Influenza virus can be contagious a day prior to symptoms and last a few days on average. SARS-2-CoV virus can be contagious two days prior to symptoms and last until 10 days after the onset of symptoms. Asymptomatic individuals can transmit infectious virus for no more than 10 days.
  - Complications. Risk for severe COVID-19 infection is higher for adults, rising with age, obesity and chronic medical conditions.

Pregnancy is also a risk factor for severe influenza infection. Unlike influenza, COVID-19 infection can trigger inflammation in the lungs days later.

- Testing. This year everyone who is sick needs to be tested. Without a test, there is no way to tell if it is influenza virus, another respiratory virus or COVID-19.
  - Recovery. Influenza patients may recover at home and go back to work or school as soon as they have no fever for one day. COVID-19 patients need to stay in isolation for 10 days, and all their close contacts need to stay in quarantine for 14 days.
  - Vaccine. There are multiple FDA-licensed influenza vaccines produced annually to protect against the three or four flu viruses that circulated in the previous year. This year is more important than any other year to get the influenza vaccine.

While people can still get the flu if they are vaccinated, during most years it provides at least 70 percent protection from getting the flu.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends that all people 6 months and older get a yearly flu vaccine. September and October are good times to get vaccinated. However, as long as influenza viruses are circulating, it’s still worth it to get vaccinated, even in January or later.

COVID-19 vaccines are still being developed. Until they are widely available, most people have no immunity to the virus. The only defense is keeping away from others who are infected.

If everyone does the right things to keep COVID-19 away — by wearing masks, washing their hands and keeping physically distant — they might not have to get sick from influenza either.

— Dr. Jonathan Pinsky is medical director of infection control and prevention at Edward Hospital in Naperville.

This year everyone who is sick needs to be tested. Without a test, there is no way to tell if it is influenza virus, another respiratory virus or COVID-19.

She went out of her way to help us to prepare and sell our home. She brought in associates for advice along the way. She planned photography and advertisement for our home that reflected its strengths. She sold our home in seven days. She did not stop there. She referred us to helpful trades people and professionals that we needed. We thought she did an excellent job for us.”

STUDENT ATHLETE PROFILE

Name: Emily Ascher
Year: senior
Hometown: Clarendon Hills

When did you first start golfing?
I actually started getting the ball off the ground and into the air, and that was really encouraging. Playing with my dad and my grandparents for a while — he dragged me out for a while. I actually started liking it on my own around seventh grade.

What happened in seventh grade?
It sounds super basic, but I actually started getting the ball off the ground and into the air, and that was really encouraging. Playing with my dad and my grandparents was definitely a motivator.

How has COVID-19 affected the team?
We can’t even do basic things like take the bus together to tournaments and matches, and we don’t really travel that much any more. We have four or five new players. It took a while to get to know everyone. That definitely has been the biggest struggle.

What is the best advice you’ve gotten from a coach?
Coach Latorre always says you miss 100 percent of the puts you leave short. That obviously can be applied to everywhere else in life.

What is your goal for the season?
Finish the season happy and satisfied with golf and the season that we’ve been given.

We’re just super thankful and trying to make the best with what we’ve got. We’re just happy to be out there and getting some semblance of normalcy in these crazy times.

What course would you most like to play?
I really want to play Pebble Beach out in California. That would be really cool. Or just play a couple of courses in Scotland. Any course.

What are your plans for next year?
I think I want to play Division III golf, so that’s been helpful for trying to find good schools. I really like Rhodes College in Memphis. I have family there and I really like the coach.

Why does coach Nick Latorre like having Ascher on the team?
Emily is a very kind, respectful young lady with great leadership qualities. Emily leads by example, and is a wonderful role-model for all of our younger players. She has a tremendous work ethic, is a great student and always represents the Hinsdale Central community in a positive way. It has truly been a pleasure having Emily in our program for the past four years, and I have really enjoyed watching her mature as a person and as a competitor.

Veteran coach has put Central girls cross country program well ahead of the pack

By Ken Knutson
kknutson@thehinsdalean.com

In 1998, Hinsdale Central’s girls cross country program was looking for an assistant coach. Mark McCabe had a track record helping the boys the previous six years and had coached some of the girls distance runners during track season. But would that experience translate?

“I never really pictured myself as a full-time girls coach,” McCabe admitted.

Despite that, he took the position and quickly found his stride.

“I loved it,” he said. “(Girls) are like sponges in terms of soaking up everything that you teach them.”

Head coach Gail Avery’s retirement two years later led to his elevation to the top spot. Now in his 20th year at the helm, McCabe reflected on his coaching journey and the heart for young people that propels him.

“The kids have to know first and foremost that you care about them,” he said. “Then they’ll go to the ends of the earth for you.”

The Oak Park native was a standout runner at Oak Park-River Forest High School under coach Roy Gumerson, whom he credits with helping shape his approach to coaching.

McCabe went on to Eastern Illinois University, then a powerhouse on the Division II cross country landscape.

“I knew all along I wanted to be a teacher and a coach,” related McCabe, who got his wish in his first job at Teutopolis High School as boys and girls head track coach. Stints at Dixon and Libertyville high schools followed before he arrived at Central in 1995.

The program won the state title in 2006, establishing a standard that would be reflected in nine conference championships and 12 top-10 state finishes, not to mention a slew of accolades for individuals. McCabe said capturing the first-place trophy is gratifying but doesn’t constitute the biggest reward.

“I remember standing up on that stage and thinking, ‘Boy, this is cool!’ but it wasn’t a life-changing moment. It was all the stuff that helped you get there, the work and the experiences and everything that came together at the right moment,” he said. “At the end of the day, you realize it’s about the difference you make with kids.”

Or, as one of his staple motivational quotes would render it: “Luck is when preparation meets opportunity.”

Former Red Devil Kayla Byrne, now a sophomore runner at Northwestern University, has found McCabe’s penchant for proverbs to have lasting resonance.

“I still have some of my favorites written on a white board in my room as a memory of how incredible my time in Central’s cross country/track program was,” Byrne said. “Coach himself is without a doubt the most dedicated person I have ever met and really treated his athletes like we were collegiate athletes and his friends. I consider myself very lucky to have had him as my coach.”

McCabe takes pride in Central’s strong representation in college programs of all levels.

“It’s rewarding to see people go on and be successful in college and in life and to think that maybe I was able to play just a little part in that,” McCabe said.

Those recruits also include erstwhile teammates Reilly Revord and Grace McCabe — Mark’s daughter — who are presently competing as juniors at the University of Missouri and University of Iowa, respectively.

Revord praised McCabe for creating a culture of camaraderie at Central.

“Coach McCabe had a strong emphasis on team, and that allowed me to bond with my fellow teammates, who are still some of my best friends today,” she said. “It allowed me to run not only for myself, but for a greater purpose and prepare for competing at a higher level.”

McCabe said Central student-athletes are generally not in need of motivation but rather a healthy perspective on achieving the potential, which can take various forms, depending on the person.

“It’s not so much motivating them as guiding them and helping teach them the importance of balance,” he said. “It’s learning how to deal most effectively with different personalities.”

He said it was not unusual to put in 70 hours a week during the season between his work as a guidance counselor and coaching. Although he retired from counseling four years ago, staying on as coach has kept him plenty busy. Plus, he’s able to coach daughter Catie as he previously coached Grace.

“It’s really been a great chance to be able to combine family and job,” said McCabe, who’s wife Sarah is the former girls cross country coach at Oak Park-River Forest.

Every year at the banquet, he tells graduating seniors his wish.

“I say, ‘I want you to look back and say joining the cross country team was the best decision I ever made,’ ” he shared.

Another quote from his collection reads, “Today I will do what others won’t so tomorrow I can do what others can’t.”

McCabe said he plans to keep coaching today, tomorrow and for the foreseeable future.

“I’m going to keep doing this until I’m not willing to give 100 percent anymore,” he said. “Then it’s time to leave.”
