It's a great season to be a Red Devil — The 2022 practice season is in full swing for Hinsdale Central's athletes. With nine sports on the schedule for the fall season the school has recently come alive with athletes returning to campus for practice. Fall sports include: boys and girls cross country, football, boys and girls golf, boys soccer, girls swimming and diving, girls tennis and girls volleyball. Along with the athletes there are hundreds of other students involved including cheer, dance and band. Please turn to Page 34 for more photos. (Jim Slonoff photo)

By Ken Knutson

kknutson@thehinsdalean.com

Hinsdale trustees Tuesday approved the concept plan and special use permits for Vine Street Station, a proposed age-targeted housing development in the old Zion Lutheran School.

The project from developer Holladay Properties Services Midwest aims to convert the 107-year-old two-story school building at 125 S. Vine St. into 12 lifestyle condo units — two three-bedroom units and 10 two-bedroom units — with underground parking and an elevator.

Village board members previously expressed support for the plan as both a nice addition to the community's housing mix and a welcome repurposing of a historic building. Village President Tom Cauley reiterated that sentiment Tuesday.

"We all like the project," Cauley said. "We like when you take an existing building in town and refurbish it."

The plan commission unanimously recommended the concept last month.

The units, which would range from about 1,200 to 1,600 square feet, are expected to sell for $600,000 to $900,000, and the .61-acre site would include a courtyard area for residents and a pocket park open to the public on the west side of the property.

Trustees, however, had a brief discussion on the use of 6,265 square feet of open space on the east side, which officials envisioned as available to all but not dedicated to the village as a park.

Drew Mitchell, vice president of Holladay Properties and a Hinsdale resident, said the plan for the open area has been intentionally left nebulous so as to develop a workable vision for both parties.

"We wanted to give discretion to the plan commission and to us as the applicant to identify a really thoughtful use of that space," he said, adding that he regards it as a possible place of meditation for Zion Church-goers. "I do believe that the intention was to have it be quasi-public where it wouldn't be restricted necessarily to the (building) residents."

Cauley concurred with that understanding, acknowledging that not having a clear public/private designation was somewhat experimental.

"(The idea is) you just kind of keep it open space without naming it as a park, and let people use it if they want to," Cauley said. "If a problem develops, we can address it prospectively."

But Trustee Laurel Haarlow expressed concern about the vagueness.

"I think that is perhaps difficult to enforce if it's not a little more clear-cut," Haarlow said. "I wonder what kind of precedent that sets in terms of future properties that might be going for some kind of a (planned unit development)."

Trustee Luke Stifflear agreed, worried that a non-resident might be accused of trespassing and suggested that the "no trespassing" signs be prohibited as part of the final agreement with the developer.

Hinsdale police chief Brian King told trustees that in the absence of such a sign, people could not be cited for trespassing.

"I'd wait until it's a problem," King remarked, regarding potential future restrictions in the event the area is misused.

Mitchell said he'd rather see a welcome sign and that the building's homeowner's association will ultimately shape its utilization.

"It's kind of a non-decision, which is always my favorite kind of decision," Cauley quipped.

Holladay will next go before the plan commission again to seek approval of the project's detailed plans.

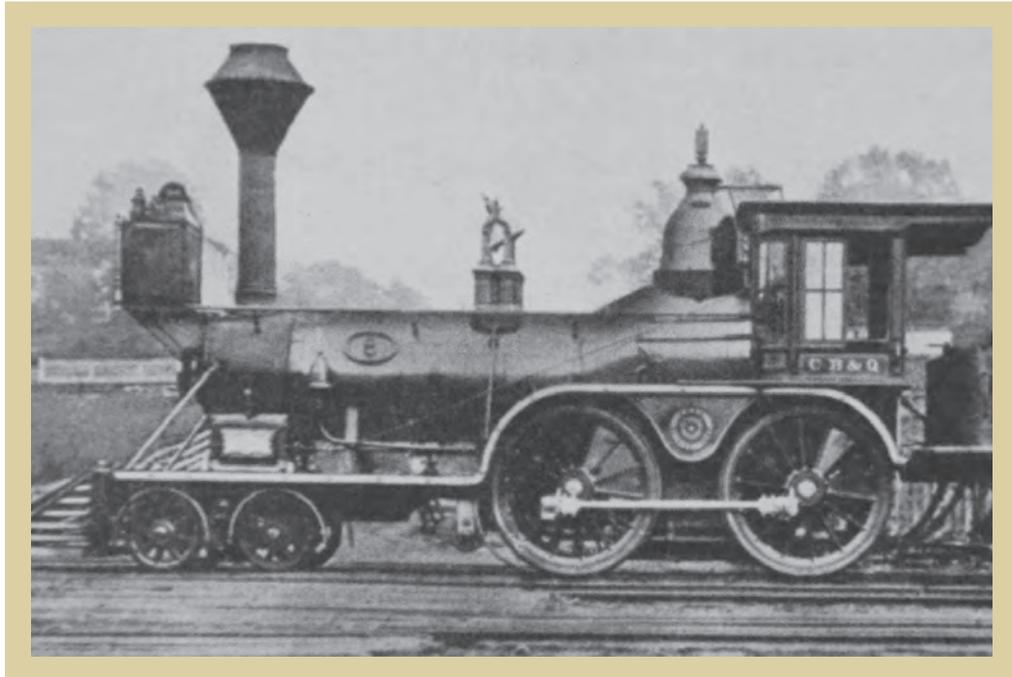

History comes to life at event

The Hinsdale Historical Society hosted the Folies-Bergere La Loie-Fuller celebration on July 21 at the history museum. With dancing, games and food, the evening was filled with the spirit of Loie Fuller. Depicting the celebrated dancer was Hinsdalean Allison Peters. Gia Digiovanni and Gretchen Lawrence of the West Suburban Ballet conservatory encourage a couple of youngsters to join them in their dance. Joseph Giammanco takes a moment for a refreshment. Isla Callahan works on painting her snake. (Jim Slonoff photos)

ONCE UPON A TIME

All aboard — The book “Hinsdale” by Sandra Williams features this image of an early Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad engine. The CB&Q first considered bringing train service from Chicago to Aurora in 1858. “The railroad had great difficulty laying track over the wide, wet marsh between Western Springs and Hinsdale known as ‘the flats,’” the caption reads. “Carload after carload of rock was dumped into the swamp until a bottom was found. Finally, a 30-foot-wide cut, still evident, was made through Hinsdale’s high ground to reach the prairie beyond.” Do you have a Hinsdale photo that is at least 25 years old? We’d love to share it with our readers. Stop by our office at 7 W. First St. or email it to jslonoff@thehinsdalean.com.

Paper earns three-peat in IPA contests

The Hinsdalean wins sweepstakes in editorial, advertising contests for third year

For the third year in a row, The Hinsdalean was named the best large nondaily newspaper in the Illinois Better Newspaper Contest.

The paper earned the Will Loomis Memorial Trophy and the Sam Zito Award of Excellence after receiving the most points in the Illinois Press Association's editorial and advertising contests, respectively. The awards were presented at the IPA's annual convention Friday in Springfield.

"When I worked at The Doings, we won the sweepstakes award a few times back in the 1980s," said Jim Slonoff, publisher and co-owner of The Hinsdalean. "Our staff at the time numbered around 60 employees. At The Hinsdalean today, we have seven members on our team — four full time and three part time. If you told me one day we'd win a sweepstakes here, I probably would have said you were out of your mind. Now to have a three-peat in both the advertising and editorial sweepstakes is overwhelming. The credit goes to the dedication and hard work everyone puts in for our readers and advertisers."

Editor and co-owner Pam Lannom had similar thoughts.

"Our goal is always to create the best newspaper we can for our readers," she said. "To have our peers recognize the work we do as excellent is a humbling and rewarding experience. We will continue working to do our very best to produce the best community newspaper in the state."

Editorial contest

The Hinsdalean won 42 awards in the 2021 editorial contest (see sidebar), including 10 first-place awards.

The staff won first place in community service for its Battle of the Boards food drive. The seven junior boards profiled in the series collected more than six tons of food and almost $2,500 for HCS Family Services' two food pantries.

"An engaging series of stories that highlights the efforts of area youth to help out those most vulnerable in the community," judges wrote.

Stolen motorcycle leads to charges for Hinsdale man

A Hinsdale man has been charged with multiple offenses following his arrest last week, according to the DuPage County Sheriff's Office.

Nicholas Svoboda, 28, 946 S. Bodin St., was arrested after sheriff's deputies executed an arrest warrant for him the evening of Aug. 9. In the driveway, officers observed a 14-foot box trailer carrying a blue 2007 Harley Davidson Fat Boy that had been reported stolen out of Lake County. Svoboda, who had multiple warrants for his arrest, was found hiding in the home's crawlspace.

A spokesperson for the sheriff's office reported that Svoboda was charged with receiving, possessing or selling a stolen motor vehicle or essential part; felony theft of the box trailer; unauthorized possession of title, registration, license plates; possession, sale or use of fireworks for possessing a white stick fireworks explosive; possession of firearm or ammunition by a narcotic addict without a FOID card; unlawful possession of drug paraphernalia for possessing two pipes used for inhaling crystal methamphetamine and resisting or obstructing a peace officer for hiding in the crawlspace.

DuPage County Circuit Court Judge Ann Celine O'Hallaren Walsh set Svoboda's bond at $250,000 on Aug. 10. He is scheduled to be arraigned on the charges at 10 a.m. Wednesday, Aug. 24.

Slight drop in number of new COVID cases

The DuPage County Health Department reported 22 new cases of COVID-19 in Hinsdale over the past week, bringing the total number of cases in the DuPage County portion of Hinsdale to 4,038, compared to 4,016 last week. The Cook County Health Department no longer reports on cases specific to Hinsdale.

The number of cases per 100,000 population in DuPage was 28.2 on Aug. 16, compared to 36.7 on Aug. 9. The community level remains high.

D181 puts safety lessons into practice

Shooting incidents, lingering COVID concerns keep officials on alert as students return

By Ken Knutson

kknutson@thehinsdalean.com

Student and staff safety is a top priority as the 2022-23 school year kicks off Monday, according to Community Consolidated School District 181 officials, both in terms of building security and personal health.

At Monday's regular meeting at Hinsdale Middle School, District 181 board members were given an overview by Superintendent Hector Garcia on of steps taken to provide a safe learning environment. Those include safety vestibules and secure office areas as lines of defense against potential threats.

"We really have spent a lot of time protecting our students by virtue of ensuring that these two are in place, and that there are staff members constantly monitoring these areas," Garcia said.

The report came against the backdrop of the school shooting in Uvalde, Texas, in the spring and the Independence Day parade shooting in Highland Park last month, among other mass shooting events around the country.

While stating that detailed information on the district's safety measures would not be disclosed for obvious reasons, he did note, in response to an inquiry from board member Grace Shin, that video surveillance was being bolstered.

"We're going to have more cameras in our district, and we're going to enhance their capacity," Garcia commented. "You will see that in more and more of our buildings.

"A great deal of work will continue to take place around cameras," he said.

Visitor ID management systems and exterior card readers are other methods the district uses to regulate admission to buildings.

"We want to make sure that students and staff members can easily identify people who should be here and who should not," Garcia said.

Garcia also highlighted school staff ALICE training on active shooter response as part of the school year preparations.

"We're going to be updating our reunification site location and procedures" in the event of an emergency, he added, and a special app will be used for internal communication when necessary.

The district has both a safety and crisis committee, and a districtwide threat assessment team, and they consult with the Hinsdale, Burr Ridge and Clarendon Hills police departments on safety matters.

"They've been terrific to work with. We'll continue the communication and collaboration throughout the year," Garcia said of the partnership. "We'll continue to look for enhancement opportunities to our safety measures throughout the entire year."

Shin suggested apprising school PTO groups about the expectations regarding keeping the building secure when hosting special activities both during and after school "so that it is uniform throughout the district."

Garcia expressed support for the recommendation.

Officials also are remaining vigilant against the spread of COVID-19 within the schools. Garcia said the district conferred with state and local health departments in its foundational strategies, namely encouraging students and staff to stay home when sick and not come to school for at least five days after a positive test.

"Rapid testing is going to be available at our schools" to be sent home, he reported. "The surveillance testing that we had in place last year was very, very labor intensive."

The school principal and teacher will work with the parent to provide optimal remote instruction for that student, Garcia said.

Students can come back on day 6 with the stipulation that symptoms have abated and recommendation that a mask be worn and a negative COVID test received.

Administrators reported no cases of positive COVID-19 tests among summer school students. Daily cases will be posted on the district website, and 10 cases or more in a cohort or classroom will trigger enhanced outbreak measures including enhanced cleaning and surveillance testing made available.

• Deavon D. Ingram, 25, 7225 S. Hermitage Ave., Chicago, was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol, driving with a blood-alcohol content above .08, speeding 35+ miles per hour over the limit, improper lane use and operating an uninsured motor vehicle at 11:44 p.m. Aug. 9 at Route 83 and 55th Street. He was charged and released to appear in court.

• Raul Acosta-Fermin, 24, 44 Sergeant Ave., Clifton, N.J., was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol, driving with a blood-alcohol content above .08, speeding, improper lane use, and disobeying a traffic control signal at 2:08 a.m. Aug. 13 at 55th and Madison streets. He was charged and released to appear in court.

Domestic battery arrest

A 57-year-old Hinsdale man was arrested for domestic battery at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 13 for making contact of an insulting or provoking nature with a family member. He was charged and transported to DuPage County Jail.

Arrest for stolen vehicle

Noah T. Moore-Hodgson, 24, 150 E. Juneau Ave., Milwaukee, Wis., was arrested for felony possession of a stolen motor vehicle and unauthorized possession of title registration at 12:10 a.m. Aug. 14 at Shell gas station, 210 E. Ogden Ave. after he was stopped when a registration inquiry reported the vehicle was stolen out of Fox Crossing, Wis. Fox Crossing police confirmed that it was stolen. He was charged and transported to DuPage County Jail.

Ruse burglary reported

Three unknown suspects claiming to be utility workers entered a home at 6:43 p.m. Aug. 11 in the 700 block of North Elm Street. One of the suspects stayed with the victim while two suspects went upstairs and rummaged through the master bedroom. The suspects then fled the area in a silver SUV. A list of missing items was not available.

Car stolen from gas station

A Toyota Camry was stolen between 5:55 and 5:58 p.m. Aug. 9 while it was parked outside of Shell gas station, 201 E. Ogden Ave. It had been left running unattended with the keys inside. The suspects were observed on surveillance video approaching the vehicle in a black Mitsubishi, and one was described as a black male wearing a gray hoodie and gray sweatpants.

Vehicle vandalized

A brick was thrown through the rear windshield of vehicle between 11:30 p.m. Aug. 11 and 5 a.m. Aug. 12 while it was parked in a driveway in the 600 block of East Hickory Street. Nothing was reported missing from the vehicle.

Identity theft targets direct deposit

An email account belonging to a resident of the 200 block of Bonnie Brae Road was hacked into Aug. 11 and used to give the victim's employer alternate direct deposit information for payroll. The victim reported a loss of $7,250.

Arrests do not constitute conviction of a crime, and individuals listed here should be presumed innocent until proven guilty. If charges are dismissed or reduced or the accused is found not guilty, he or she can contact The Hinsdalean at news@thehinsdalean.com to provide us with documentation. Information will be updated online and in the next issue of the paper.

Local teen proves volunteering can be delicious

The benefits of serving one's community are many, said Hinsdale Hospital Foundation Junior Board President Maddie Molis, and some of them are delicious.

Molis and others on the 150-member board are looking forward to the 68th ice cream social event from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 28. People of all ages from throughout the area are invited to Burlington Park in downtown Hinsdale for ice cream, a cake walk, games, an art project and a chance to support the work of the junior board and the hospital it serves.

"The whole thing is bringing the community together," and reminding them of the resource they have in their local hospital, Molis said.

An offshoot of the Hinsdale Hospital Foundation Board, the junior board was formed in 2004 to enlist the next generation in the mission to build good will and philanthropic support for AdventHealth Hinsdale Hospital. A member of several local non-profit organizations, Molis said she likes the role that faith and God play in the work of the hospital and the junior board.

The Hinsdale Central senior said she attended her first board meeting as a freshman.

"I've been hooked ever since," she said.

As president, Molis said she leads meetings, pitches in where needed and models leadership to the rest of the board's members. At the upcoming ice cream social, she expects to help to run games, answer questions, or shoulder other tasks that arise.

"I will be making people feel welcome," Molis said.

Another major event for the junior board is its annual blanket project.

Members put their creativity to work making fleece blankets for babies in the hospital's neonatal intensive care unit.

The board's work continues with a clinic planned for Oct. 8 at Lyons Township High School. Molis said people of all ages can access the clinic for dental care, vaccines, pediatric care, food and more.

"We're holding it for people who might need any type of medical help," she said.

MADDIE MOLIS

HINSDALE CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL SENIOR • OLDEST OF FOUR SIBLINGS • MEMBER OF NOTRE DAME PARISH IN CLARENDON HILLS • PLANS TO STUDY LAW IN COLLEGE • HINSDALE CENTRAL POMS CAPTAIN

A lifelong resident of Clarendon Hills, Molis also serves on the Clarendon Hills Chamber's Junior Board, as well as the junior board of the all-volunteer Mend a Heart Foundation, which works to enrich the lives of children born with congenital heart defects.

Molis said service to her community plays a big part in her life, even when she's far from home. When she and her family found themselves stranded in Florida after the initial COVID-19 breakout, it didn't take her long to find a local food bank in need of help.

"I spent the day just packaging food to be shipped out," Molis said.

Molis said she's proud not only of the impact that her work has on the community and the hospital, but of the impact that volunteer work has had on her own life.

"By helping others, you help yourself, too," she said.

Let's give kids a brake as they go back to class

Students head back to school this Monday in Community Consolidated School District 181 and Sept. 6 in Hinsdale High School District 86.

That means more youth and families crossing streets on their way to and from school to begin an exciting new year. May those of us behind the wheel not add to the excitement with unsafe driving behavior around our community's learning centers;

Heading back to class is always a change in routine for kids, and they may not always be as alert as they should be (i.e. eyes locked on a smartphone) while walking or riding.

We can do our part to make sure the route to school is a safe one for kids by following these tips from the National Safety Council.

- Don't block the crosswalk when stopped at a red light or waiting to make a turn, forcing pedestrians to go around you, as this could put them in the path of moving traffic.

- In a school zone when flashers are blinking, stop and yield to pedestrians crossing the crosswalk or intersection.

- Always stop for a school patrol officer or crossing guard holding up a stop sign.

- Take extra care to look out for children in school zones, near playgrounds and parks, and in all residential areas.

- Don't honk or rev your engine to scare a pedestrian, even if you have the right of way.

- Never pass a vehicle stopped for pedestrians.

The council also offers these suggestions for drivers sharing the road with bicyclists, noting that children often create special problems for drivers because they are not capable of properly determining traffic conditions.

- When passing a bicyclist, proceed in the same direction slowly, keeping 3 feet between your car and the cyclist.

- When turning left when a bicyclist is approaching in the opposite direction, wait for the rider to pass.

- When turning right with a bicyclist approaching from behind on the right, let the rider go through the intersection first, and always use a turn signal.

- Watch for bike riders turning in front of you without looking or signaling; children especially have a tendency to do this.

- Be extra vigilant in school zones and residential neighborhoods.

- Watch for bikes coming from driveways or behind parked cars.

- Check side mirrors before opening your door.

Finally, drivers who find themselves behind a bus should follow this advice.

- Never pass a bus from behind — or from either direction if you're on an undivided road — if it is stopped to load or unload children.

- If the yellow or red lights are flashing and the stop arm is extended, traffic must stop.

- The area 10 feet around a school bus is the most dangerous for children; stop far enough back to allow them space to safely enter and exit the bus.

- Be alert; children often are unpredictable, and they tend to ignore hazards and take risks.

Let's all do our part to make sure we share the road safely with students heading back to school.

Post simultaneously boosts, diminishes women

If you are a woman of a certain age, perhaps you've seen this Facebook post.

"To all my female friends from 40 years and up ... most of us are going through the next phase of our lives. We're at that age where we see wrinkles, gray hair and extra pounds. Menopause has already appeared or just waiting around the corner. We see the cute 25-year-olds and sigh. But we were also 25, just as they one day will be our age. What they bring to the table with their youth and zest, there we bring our wisdom, experience and good hearts. Everything we've been through to serve every gray hair ... raise children and dogs, bills, diseases, sadness and everything else life assigns us. We are survivors ... we are warriors in the quiet ... we are women. Like a classic car or nice wine. Even if our body may not be what it once was, it carries our soul, our courage and our strength. We shall all enter this chapter of our lives with humility and pride over everything we have been through and should never feel bad about getting older. It's a privilege that is denied many."

First I noticed one of my high school classmates had posted this with her photo (she looks fabulous, by the way). Then another did the same. Countless women, I've since realized, have been posting this message all summer.

I confess I have really mixed feelings about these posts.

On the one hand, I love the sense of empowerment they seem to convey. I smile when I look at the pictures of women of all different shapes and sizes and ethnicities who look strong, happy and sassy. I enjoy seeing the youthful faces of women who are 10 years younger than I am, but I love the photos of grandmothers who are 20 years older.

Pamela Lannom

On the other hand, I wonder what the posts would look like if they were written by men.

"We are looking good, brothers! The ladies love that touch of gray at the temples. Don't worry about those love handles — they're hardly noticeable. Dudes in their 20s are so clueless. Life is so much better over 40. We rock!"

An exaggeration, maybe, but I can't imagine most men would be nearly as concerned about justifying their gray hairs, noting their falling testosterone levels or extolling the advantages of wisdom over youth.

To get a reality check, I asked my husband what he thought.

Men don't post crap like that, he said.

Good point.

I asked him what a man would post instead, and I can't really print what he wrote in response. Trust me, there were no mentions of gray hairs or humility.

I truly believe whoever wrote the post (besides being infatuated with ellipses) had the best intentions in mind. It's too bad she felt such a need to call attention to what she perceived as shortcomings.

Here's what I wish the post said.

"To all my female friends who no longer feel as young as they once did, I wish you peace. I wish that when you look in the mirror, you see a woman who has learned many lessons in her life and who has given and received much love. I hope you are able to see past society's narrow view of beauty and recognize just how beautiful you are, inside and out. I pray that your life continues to be filled with all that truly matters."

We don't need to justify ourselves, ladies. We are looking good. Life is better after 40. We rock.

Gift of kindness lives on

When my oldest child Brian was a baby, I befriended a Hinsdale woman of my mother's generation named Rose. She gave me loads of practical advice about baby care and even babysat Brian at our home during what turned out three more of my daughters wore the christening gown at their baptisms over the several years following her move.

My daughters have enjoyed seeing photos of the baby versions of themselves in their first long dress but until recently hadn't had a chance to hold and admire the actual garment. That all changed when I retrieved the gown from decades of storage to prepare it for use by two new baby granddaughters expected eight weeks apart this fall.

That's also when I realized I'd messed up. I'd had it professionally cleaned but not packed into an airtight sealed box, and the upper part of the gown had begun to yellow after 26 years of storage.

Fortunately, Rose calmed my anxiety by regularly driving with Brian to functioning call centers to give me updates on his day.

Determined to make up for my mistake, I've been soaking the gown for days in OxiClean, and if that doesn't do the trick, I'll be looking to have it professionally restored.

When our second child Kristi arrived, Rose surprised our family with a tangible representation of her ever-present kindness by gifting us with a christening gown that she made herself. I was then and still am in awe of this gorgeous gown, with its super long skirt, ruffy hemline over a laced-edged underskirt and delicately embroidered bodice between tiny puffed sleeves. I sew a little bit myself and know the effort that must have gone into constructing such a beautiful dress. I would never be able to thank Rose enough for her kind gift.

So far, all but the tiniest shadow of yellowing remains visible on the garment and fortunately, my daughters don't seem overly concerned. Of most importance to them is being able to see their own daughters baptized in the beautiful gown they wore as babies so long ago.

Shortly after Kristi wore the gown at her baptism, Rose moved away and, sadly, I eventually lost touch with her. I'm not even sure whether she knew that

A kind and lovely gift is now becoming a treasured family heirloom. How I wish I could tell Rose!

Narrative surrounding baseball game manipulated

April 21 was a good day for baseball. A crowd cheered both HC and LT players. Although there were strong plays on the field that Thursday, fabrications about this game has become the story.

"Players and coaches for Lyons Township High School's baseball team heard no racial slurs during an April game, despite a complaint to the contrary ..."

On April 28, a woman sent a letter to Superintendent Tammy Prentiss alleging that HC players and students ("more than one hundred") repeatedly shouted racial slurs at LT players. These were reported in the Patch on May 27, 2022. On June 3, Patch reported that HC and LT (working together) interviewed players, coaches and others about the April 21 game.

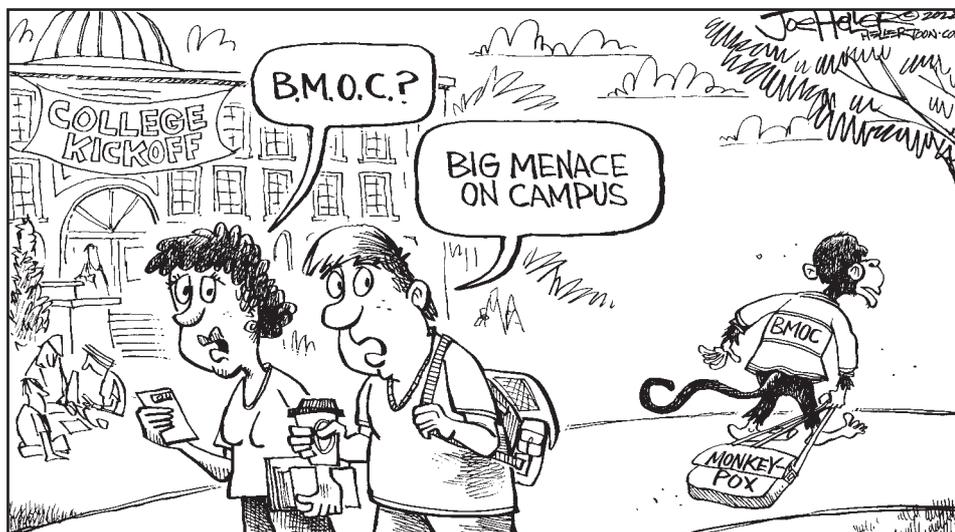

The Chicago Tribune picked up the story on June 21. It reported that some body-shaming comments may have been made by fans, but racist comments by players were not substantiated.

Neither school found evidence to back up the allegations of racial taunting. The June 3 Patch article reported that HC pitching coach Brent Kittel said, "We've taken heat for something we didn't do. I can tell you the racial slur did not occur."

The investigation is over. The allegations are false. Yet D86 refuses to apologize for insinuating that HC baseball players yelled racist comments. A shadow of doubt is useful to Prentiss. Racist undertones justify her crusades. Truth will not stop her.

On June 7, Patch reported that

We, the voters, must stop her. In April 2023, voters will elect three members to the D86 BOE. Your vote will decide whether Prentiss will continue to disparage your community unbounded by facts. — Anne Marrs Huber, Oak Brook

ASK AN EXPERT

DONOVAN LAUX, FASHION DESIGNER

When preparing to venture outside the house, people will often remind one another that “it’s not a fashion show.” That statement doesn’t apply to Donovan Laux of Hinsdale. For this budding fashion designer, every location is a runway, and every person is a model.

Laux said her fascination with fashion began long ago as she watched her mother and three older sisters purchase clothing and put together outfits.

She said her home was full of creative energy and confidence, both of which rubbed off on Laux, a 21-year-old fashion design student at the School of the Art Institute.

As a high school student at St. Ignatius in Chicago, Laux became known for her unique style, which often involved upcycling old jeans into new, creative pieces. Meanwhile, she drew inspiration from what others were wearing.

“I would walk around the mall like it was a zoo,” said Laux, taking in each shopper’s choices in clothing and accessories and always looking for new ideas to add to her own wardrobe.

For Laux, clothes aren’t just items meant to cover the body. Her unique designs often double as art, which made the Zolla/Lieberman Gallery in Chicago an appropriate venue for the debut of her latest creations. The runway show took place July 16 in collaboration with North Shore artist René Romero Schuler’s exhibit “Reflection.”

Laux said the opportunity to showcase the 12 looks in her clothing line resulted from an encounter with the artist at Laux’s Hinsdale home. Laux’s mother had purchased a painting from Romero Schuler, who wanted to see the piece in its new setting. A rack of Laux’s designs piqued Romero Schuler’s interest, she said, and a partnership materialized.

“I’ve definitely learned a lot about being an artist from René,” said Laux, who screenprinted Romeo Schuler’s work onto some of her designs.

Laux said her own wardrobe reflects the looks she creates as a designer. They are often a mix of new and old, purchased items and her own creations.

“I’m creating my own wonderland of fashion,” said Laux, who described her style as eclectic and expressive. “It’s really just based on how I feel like expressing myself that day.”

She revealed her one rule when it comes to choosing an outfit.

“I never step out in something that I’m not excited to be wearing,” Laux remarked.

She hopes her designs inspire others to express themselves through what they wear.

“Try something new, even if you’ve never seen anyone else do it,” said Laux, who is helping people to find their own unique looks through her own distinctive designs.

“I do a lot of sales on my Instagram page,” at donovanjordanaux, she said.

While she creates custom designs, Laux also has an inventory of ready-to-wear pieces available.

“I’m really open to working in different aspects of the fashion industry,” she said of life after graduation.

Until then, she’s content selling one piece at a time while also learning new skills and techniques, expanding her understanding of the fashion industry, and taking every chance to further her craft along the way.

— by Sandy Illian Bosch

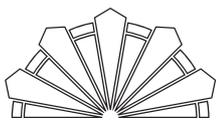

Laux’s advice to other young artists is to remain open to opportunities, which can happen anywhere at any time — even in your own living room. (Jim Slonoff photo)

Foreign language teachers polish skills

Excursions to France, El Salvador immerse educators in the languages they teach

By Sandy Illian Bosch
news@thehinsdalean.com

An educator's passion for their field doesn't end when class is dismissed. At least that's the case with Hinsdale Central High School foreign language teachers Jennifer Klein-Chaney and Rebecca O'Connor, both of whom spent time this summer immersing themselves in the languages they teach.

This summer's trip to France was more than a vacation for teacher Klein-Chaney. It was a chance to reconnect with family and friends while immersing herself once again in her native language. Klein-Chaney, who made the United States her permanent home in 2006, took this summer's trip with her husband and two children, ages 11 and 13.

Klein-Chaney said she and her family take in the slower pace of France and often take the opportunity to explore other parts of Europe. She also enjoys sharing her home and heritage with her husband and children while revisiting the culture in which she was raised.

After her family and childhood friends, Klein-Chaney said it's the food that she misses most. She and her family always take time to enjoy some of her favorite foods and eateries.

"We visit a lot of bakery shops," Klein-Chaney said.

The family's annual homecoming typically takes place in June, but it was pushed to July this year in order to make time for the Tang Soo Do Association World Championships in North Carolina.

"We had never participated in a world championship," said Klein-Chaney, who took part in the June competition with her husband and son.

Training at Eagle Academy in Warrenville two or three times a week, Klein-Chaney has achieved the rank of first degree black belt.

"I never thought I would ever delve into martial arts," said Klein-Chaney, who took her first class in the ancient Korean martial art six years ago, at age 40. She said she's seen an improvement in her balance and in management of the pain she suffers due to an autoimmune condition.

Performing with a long stick known as a bo staff, Klein-Chaney took home a medal from this year's World Championships.

"Surprisingly, I placed third in the weapons division," she said.

Klein-Chaney said she uses the sport to challenge and motivate not only herself, but her students at Hinsdale Central.

"I want to show them persistence," she said, and that with work and a good attitude, a bad day can always be followed by a better one.

Connecting with locals

During the school year, Rebecca O'Connor uses her Spanish speaking skills to teach students at Hinsdale Central. During the summer, her second language helps to provide safe drinking water for people in other parts of the world.

O'Connor traveled to El Salvador with Living Waters for the World, a volunteer-driven organization that provides sustainable, clean drinking water for communities in the United States and other parts of the world. Her role in the project was as interpreter, facilitating communication between English-speaking volunteers and Spanish-speaking residents of the villages where she worked and stayed.

This was O'Connor's second summer trip to El Salvador and her husband's first. A mechanical engineer, he stepped in to fill a last-minute opening.

"His skills were really useful for our team," O'Connor said.

O'Connor said her relationship with Living Waters for the World began in 2020 when she volunteered to translate documents. That was followed by interpreting Zoom meetings and finally, trips to worksites such as the one in El Paraiso.

Teams from Living Waters for the World install purification systems and then train locals to run and maintain the systems. The goal is to leave the community with a fully sustainable, safe source of water.

"It's a great way to use my Spanish to do something that's exciting for me," O'Connor said.

In the classroom, O'Connor typically has a stronger grasp of the language than her students, but her skills are put to the test in El Salvador. She said she added some new words to her Spanish vocabulary this summer.

"People don't speak English there. You can't get by with English at all," she said.

Upon her return, O'Connor said, she continued to sharpen her skills by reading books in Spanish and listening to podcasts in Spanish.

"In summer, I try to do at least an hour a day, just to keep myself in the language," said O'Connor, who said that even after more than 20 years of teaching, there is always more to learn.

Editor's note: This is the second in a two-part series.

The first installment ran Aug. 11.

Hinsdale Central Spanish teacher Rebecca O'Connor (center) used her Spanish-speaking skills to help bring clean water to the people of El Paraiso, El Salvador.

ON STAGE

■ 'A Walk with Joy'

Saturdays & Sundays through Aug. 28
Morton Arboretum
4100 Route 53, Lisle
<https://www.mortonarb.org>

Become immersed in Morton Arboretum founder Joy Morton's life during this live, full-length walking play, performed by professional local actors. In 1922, on the eve of opening the arboretum to the public, Joy falls into a dream, where he revisits his own memories and travels into all the way to present day, guided by a "salty," contemporary version of the Morton Salt Girl. The play will not exceed two miles in hiking distance. Time: 6 to 7:30 p.m. Tickets: $25, $15 for children. RR, MD

Equal Housing

It is the intent and goal of this newspaper to have each advertiser who wishes to place a covered advertisement in the newspaper comply with the Fair Housing laws. Any advertisement which is perceived to contain language contrary to these laws will be rejected or changed to remove the offending reference. There may be situations where it is not clear whether particular language is objectionable. Such advertisements should be referred to a supervisor for consideration and determination. Under certain circumstances, advertisers may claim that because of the nature of the housing being advertised, they are not subject to the Fair Housing laws. Such claims are irrelevant for purposes of considering advertisements for publication in this newspaper. Every housing advertisement published in this newspaper is subject to the Fair Housing laws.

Money is like an arm or leg - use it or lose it. Henry Ford

A man watches his pear tree day after day, impatient for the ripening of the fruit. Let him attempt to force the process, and he may spoil both fruit and tree. But let him patiently wait, and the ripe pear at length falls into his lap. Abraham Lincoln

I am determined to be cheerful and happy in whatever situation I may find myself. For I have learned that the greater part of our misery or unhappiness is determined not by our circumstance but by our disposition. Martha Washington

SPORTS

It's a great time of year to be a Red Devil football player

Practice is in full swing on Dickinson Field for Hinsdale Central football team. Last year Central was undefeated in the West Suburban Silver Conference (6-0) and went 8-1 for the regular season. The Devils open their season on the road against Naperville Central on Aug. 26. Their first home game will be Sept. 16 vs. Hinsdale South. (Jim Slonoff photos)
